19 BONDSMEN ARE ORDERED DROPPED FROM ELIGIBLE LIST

Action Is Taken After Attention of Police Board Is Called to Statute Governing Bondsmen.

MOVE IS AIMED AT ALLEGED "FIXERS"

President Miller Orders 21 Eligibles Remaining After List Is Revised Watched Closely.

Nineteen professional bondsmen, among them several well-known politicians, were ordered stricken from the list of eligible sureties in Police Court cases by the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday afternoon, when President Miller's attention was directed by police officials to the following excerpts from Section 8963 of the Revised Statutes of 1919:

"Police officers in charge of police stations may refuse to receive as such surety or sureties any and all parties with unsavory reputations or who, as professional bondsmen, tend to defeat the ends of justice, and no one shall be accepted as bondsman who shall have standing against him an unsatisfied judgment rendered on a forfeited bond; such police officers may refuse to admit to the presence of arrested persons confined in stations all persons who have the reputation of being what is known as grafters or shysters, or those attorneys who are guilty of the practice of soliciting business."

Shortly after the order was issued Emory Chase, proprietor of the Garrick Hotel, 523 Chestnut street, a politician, whose name was among those ordered placed under the ban, appeared at Central Police Station and offered bond for a Police Court prisoner.

"You are persona non grata," said the Desk Sergeant, and when Chase demanded an explanation the Desk Sergeant added, "for further particulars see President Miller of the Police Board. He is upstairs now."

Appeals to Miller.

Chase went upstairs and submitted his case to Miller. He said that he was a duly qualified property-owning bondsman and quoted the city ordinances regulating police court bonds.

"I don't care if you own a million dollars' worth of property and I don't give a snap of my finger for the ordinance you refer to," said Miller. "We get our authority from the State law and whenever an ordinance conflicts with the State law, well, you know how much that ordinance amounts to. No, you are objectionable as a bondsman to the Police Department and that settles it."

The other 18 bondsmen scratched from the police list included James P. Miles Jr., 1226 Aubert avenue, son of Justice of the Peace Miles; Charles (Cap) Troll, 3843 Shaw avenue, Republican politician; Sam Andrews, a negro, of 8 North Leffingwell avenue; Clarence (Gullie) Owens, 1135 Chestnut street; Paul E. Browne, 2853 St. Vincent avenue; George Dominick, 1300 South Seventh street; John Kelly, 3300 Olive street; John D. Moore, 1030 Market street; Sam Nieman, 1112 Franklin avenue; Charles Nash, 1729 Elliot avenue; Jack Nieman, 1415 North Fifteenth street; Paul B. Brown, 1727 Lafayette avenue; Walter Niehaus, 4494 Penrose street; John Oehler, 3811 Finney avenue; Simon Hart, 1628A Market street; Abe Copperman, 4207 Russell avenue; Mabel Hyman, 1514 Franklin avenue, and John T. Smith, 4526A Franklin avenue.

When the 19 bondsmen had been eliminated it was found that the list of qualified bondsmen at Central Station still contained 21 names.

"Watch those remaining bondsmen closely," President Miller directed Capt. Doyle, "and if you find that any of them are carrying on a regular business of signing bonds for known police characters, or that any of them are posing as 'fixers' or if their activities are such that they interfere in any way with police business, take them from the list. The process of eliminating objectionable bondsmen will be continued in other police stations next week."

The action of the Police Commissioners followed complaint by Chief O'Brien that the activities of certain Police Court bondsmen were seriously interfering with the work of the Police Department. He cited cases of recent raids in which the bondsmen were at Central Station ready to provide bonds before the Desk Sergeants had finished booking the prisoners.

BIG DAY FOR MILLINERISM!
MAR 27 21

Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Today cold wave, with showers and thunderstorms; strong west and northwest winds. Monday, fair and cold.

For Missouri and Illinois—Showers today and cold wave; tomorrow, clear and cold.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Anything but favorable weather for Easter was forecast today by the Weather Bureau. An unexpected storm of marked intensity, with its tail swinging low over Southeastern Colorado, caused a revision of preliminary forecasts of fair weather tomorrow. The storm is sweeping east-northeastward and pressure was high today off the Atlantic coast and high and rising rapidly in the Northeast.

EARLIEST EASTER TODAY IN 8 YEARS

Moreover, It Will Be More Than Nine Years Before It Comes as Early Again.

Easter is earlier this year than it has been celebrated since 1913, and it will be more than nine years before it happens so early again. The date was fixed almost 1600 years ago at the Council of Nice as "the first Sunday after the first full moon that falls after March 21." If a full moon occurs on Sunday, Easter is celebrated one week later. This year the full moon occurred on March 22. Easter came on March 23 the last time in 1913. When the full moon occurs just before March 31, Easter has to be delayed until after the next full moon, which sometimes throws it late in April. In 1905 and 1916 Easter was delayed until April 23.

Weather Bureau officials say there is no truth in the old saying that an early Easter makes an early spring and vice versa, but there is no question about an early Easter bringing out early styles prematurely, and any person that can prevail on Christian countries to celebrate Easter on the same date each year will have the heartfelt thanks of dressmakers, milliners and clothiers all over the world. It is not likely, though, that this change will ever be made, as it took almost 1800 years before the important countries managed to agree on a common date for this important spring event, and even yet in counties where Russian and Grecian churches hold sway Easter is celebrated according to Old Time, which generally throws it on some other Sunday than it comes in the western countries.

Following are the dates of Easter for the next nine years:

1922, April 16; 1923, April 1; 1924, April 20; 1925, April 12, 1926, April 4; 1927, April 17 1928, April 8; 1929, March 31; 1930, April 20.

THREE ROBBERS GET $10,000 FROM LUMBERJACKS AT CAMP

One Man Who Refuses to Give Up $2000 Is Killed—Posses Search W. Virginia Mountains.

RICHMOND, W. Va., March 26.—Posses of lumberjacks with bloodhounds are searching in the mountains north of here tonight, for three armed robbers who last night held up a lumber camp, killed one man and escaped with $10,000 in cash, $6000 in checks and some jewelry.

The three robbers, wearing masks, appeared at the camp, 30 miles north of here, just after night fall. Thirty lumberjacks were lined up, and while one of the robbers covered the men, the others collected the cash, jewels and checks. One man refused to hand over $2000 and he was killed.

The news of the holdup and subsequent robbery of the men's winter savings spread quickly, and tonight every pass from the mountains was barred by men armed with rifles.

RETAIL PRICE OF MILK WILL REMAIN UNCHANGED IN APRIL

The retail price of milk in St. Louis will be unchanged from 14 cents a quart and 8 cents a pint during April, though an increase of 5 cents per 100 pounds (44 quarts) will be charged distributors by Southern Illinois producers.

At a meeting yesterday between the distributors and producers, an application of the contract between the two whereby the price is adjusted each month by a fixed formula resulted in an increase in price from $2.23, paid during March, to $2.28 per 100 pounds for April, and from 25 to 26 cents a gallon in cans.

BODIES OF FIVE NEGROES DUG UP ON GEORGIA FARMS

Nine Bodies Have Been Found Since Plantation Owner Was Accused of Having 11 Killed.

POSSE HUNTING FOR TWO MORE

Department of Justice Agents Led in Search by Negro Who Is Said to Have Told of Helping at Killings.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, March 26.—Bodies of six negroes were found today on the Jasper County plantation of John Williams by Department of Justice agents led by Clyde Manning, a negro, who was employed by Williams, and who, according to the authorities, has confessed that he aided Williams in the killing of negroes.

The bodies found today brought the total discovered in connection with the peonage investigation in Jasper County up to ninne, the bodies of three other negroes having been found several weeks ago in the Yellow River, chained and weighted down with rocks. The Department of Justice agents announced tonight that they would continue the search for two more bodies said by Manning to have been thrown into the Alcovy River.

Weighted Body in River.

One of the bodies found today was taken from the Alcovy River. It had been weighted down and chained as were those taken from the Yellow River. The five others were dug from shallow graves, the heads of four of the negroes having been crushed with an ax or similar instrument. The fifth negro, officers said, had been shot to death.

Williams is in jail on a State warrant charging murder, and warrants have been issued for the arrest of his three sons, Julius, Hayler and Marvin.

The warrants for three sons were taken out in Fulton County yesterday at the request of Gov. Dorsey and were to have been turned over to officers in Jasper County, but reports tonight from Montezuma, Ga., state that the sons were there and had not been placed under arrest.

Of the bodies recovered today hree were found in a pasture near the Williams house during the morning. In the afternoon Manning led the party to the Campbell farm, about five miles southwest of the Williams place, where two more bodies were disinterred. The Campbell farm is said to be under the management of Williams.

Charges of Peonage.

Belief was expressed by the authorities tonight that all the victims had been killed at the Williams place since Feb. 21, when agents of the Department of Justice visited the farm during an investigation of alleged peonage in that vicinity. Williams is a cousin of Sheriff Persons of Jasper County, who is under indictment for alleged peonage. It developed today that information also has been filed with the United States Attorney here against Williams relative to peonage charges.

Manning, the negro, was brought back to Atlanta tonight and placed in the Fulton County jail.

Reference to "Chain Gang."

Reports from Jasper County tonight said that sentiment was strong against Williams. According to Department of Justice investigators who worked with the officials of Jasper and Newton counties, Williams' employes were referred to as "Williams' Chain Gang," and ruled with iron discipline and seldom permitted to leave the place.

A two-room cabin on the Williams farm today was pointed out as the "stockade" where the negroes were locked up at night. The windows were barred and the three doors chained at night, it was said, but in the day time these were removed, making the house look like an ordinary cabin.

Both county and Federal forces will continue the investigation, it was said.

Manning was taken to the Williams plantation to substantiate his alleged confession that he himself had killed four negroes, and aided in the death of others at the direction of Williams. While the search was being made the Jackson company of the Georgia National Guard was held under arms ready to go to the scene in case of opposition being offered the Department of Justice agents.

Williams Charges "Frame-Up."

Williams today denied any connection with the deaths of the negroes, and declared that an old family feud had resulted in conspiracy to bring about his arrest.

A general denial of charges that he had worked negroes in peonage and then had 11 of them killed when they threatened to run away, was made last night by Williams.

Williams declared that seven years

TRUCK IS LOOTED OF EASTER FINERY VALUED AT $3000

Parcel Delivery Machine Held Up by Two Armed Men, Who Rob Driver of $30 and Throw Him Off.

$7000 WORTH OF GOODS NOT TAKEN

Robbers Believed to Have Become Frightened After Carrying Only Part of Plunder to Touring Car.

Two men at 2 p. m. yesterday held up the driver of an automobile delivery truck operated by the John Kamper Parcel Delivery Co., robbed him of $30 and drove away with the truck, which was found about an hour later in an alley at the rear of the 4000 block of Shenandoah avenue, looted of $3000 worth of Easter finery. About $7000 worth of clothing was not taken.

The driver, R. L. Halpin of 5168 Kensington avenue, started from downtown with 178 packages of men's and women's suits and hats, collected from clothing firms for which the Kamper Company delivers. The truck load was valued at $10,000.

At Lawrence and De Tonty streets, where he had made a delivery, two men jumped on the running board. Both were armed with revolvers. They ordered Halpin to increase his speed and to drive east in De Tonty street. At Spring avenue they ordered him to stop, forced him into the inclosed part of the truck, took $30 from his pocket and threw him off. The men drove away, going south in Spring avenue to Russell avenue and west in Russell.

Halpin reported the robbery to the Magnolia avenue police district, and the truck was found. An inventory showed 34 packages valued at $3000 were missing.

The police found a negro woman who reported she had seen two men make several trips from the alley to a green touring car parked on Thurman boulevard, carrying packages on each trip. After several trips they seemed to become alarmed and drove away in the touring car, she reported. The description of the men furnished by the negress corresponded with that given by Halpin.

PLYMOUTH APPROPRIATES $40,000 FOR TERCENTENARY

$2000 to Be Devoted to Maintenance of Passamaquoddy Indian Camp.

By the Associated Press.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., March 26.—The town of Plymouth at its annual town meeting today appropriated $40,000, in addition to $10,000 previously given to assist in defraying the expense of the Pilgrim Tercentenary celebration next summer.

The sum of $2000 will be devoted to maintenance here of a camp of Passamaquoddy Indians as a reminder of the part friendly natives played in the success of the Plymmouth colony. Today is the 300th anniversary of the appearance of the Indian Chief Samoset before the Pilgrims with words of welcome.

The celebration will be spread over the whole summer. On Aug. 1 President Harding will be the guest and the Atlantic fleet will enter Plymouth Bay.

FOUR COMPLETE AIR RACE

Lieut. Strahm of Kentucky Winner in Fast Time.

By the Associated Press.

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 26.—With the leader maintaining an average of close to two miles per minute the four De Haviland army planes entries with Liberty Motors demonstrated complete superiority in the 100-mile Clearwater-Belleair Air Derby here today, opening the National Southern Air Tournament. Lieut. Victor Strahm, Bowling Green, Ky., won with a time record of 51 minutes flat. Lieut. J. G. Williams, New York, was second in 51.30.

The only others of the nine starters to finish were Captain C. W. Ford, New York, third, and Major A. H. Gilkerson, Sallarsville, Pa.

CAT UNCOVERS LIQUOR CACHE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—A cat in search of a lost chord today led to seizure of 36 bottles of whisky inside a piano aboard the Trinidad liner Mayaro.

A prohibition inspector accidentally stepped on pussy's tail. Puss yowled and jumped from the deck through a porthole into a cabin. She landed on what would have been the top of an upright piano, had the top been closed. But it wasn't and aimd a bit of feline jazz, the "dry" agent caught the jangle of glass. Discovery of the whisky followed.

STILLMAN ALIMONY DECISION MAY BE GIVEN TOMORROW

Ruling on Whether Wife Shall Get More Than $50,000 a Year to Have Bearing on Issues in Case.

PATERNITY OF BOY QUESTIONED

28-Months-Old Son of Mrs. Stillman Named as Co-Defendant in Divorce Action by Banker.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Justice Morschauser, in the Supreme Court, will hand down at White Plains, possibly Monday, perhaps not until a week from Monday, the decision in the alimony motion made by Mrs. James A. Stillman, the former "Fifi" Brown-Potter, against the president of the National City Bank.

Upon the Justice's decision rest several important factors in the divorce suit. The decision will determine whether Mrs. Stillman is entitled to larger allowance than the $50,000 a year her husband is now paying her, and what her lawyers shall be allowed for counsel fees. Whether Mrs. Stillman is allowed more or not, Justice Morschauser must decide, at least by implication, how far-reaching is the lawsuit in settling the paternity of Guy Stillman, the 28-months-old child born to Mrs. Stillman Nov. 7, 1918.

On the argument for alimony, Justice Morschauser intimated that he considered the questions raised by Stillman as to the paternity of the boy the most important feature of the litigation.

Daniel J. Gleason, Surrogate of Dutchess County, is the referee in the divorce action, and he has already held one session at which testimony was taken. Stillman was a witness then, and through his counsel, De Lancey Nicoll, it was sought to have the record read that Stillman considers he is the father of only three children—Anne, James Jr. and Alexander, aged 19, 17 and seven years, respectively. This would leave the implication that he is not the father of Guy.

Boy Party to Divorce Suit.

But John E. Mack, who has been named as guardian ad litem for the child, objected to any questions that would establish such a belief on Stillman's part as a matter of court record and Referee Gleason sustained the objection, on the ground that Stillman was not a competent witness in regard to such testimony. The boy was made a party defendant with his mother in the divorce suit and the Court is specifically requested to render judgment that James A. Stillman is not the father of Guy.

Justice Morschauser, it is understood, will direct Referee Gleason to resume his hearings and to hold them behind closed doors. It is possible, therefore, that in deciding the alimony motion the Justice may give some indication of what weight he attaches to Stillman's charge that he is not the father of the child.

Attached to the papers are a mass of exhibits, many of them letters from her to him, and a round half-dozen letters said to have been written by Ferd Beauvais, the half-breed Indian guide and trapper who worked for the Stillmans at Three Rivers, Quebec, where the bank president has for years maintained a hunting lodge called "Stillness."

These letters of the guide, with the envelopes in which they were mailed, were sent, it is alleged, to Mrs. Stillman, through a third party who had agreed to receive and forward them. They are said to be written on note paper indicating that the guide had access to Mrs. Stillman's own stationery. Persons who have seen copies of these letters—the originals are filed with Justice Morschauser—state that they are couched in endearing terms. Passages in them refer, it is stated, to matters which could be known only to Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman.

Denial Made by Mrs. Stillman.

Mrs. Stillman, it is declared, denies ever receiving these letters and, therefore, doubts their authenticity. It is expected that Stillman's counsel will call as a witness a woman who did receive them and had agreed to re-address them so they would reach Mrs. Stillman. It will be the contention of Stillman's attorneys that these are merely some of the letters to Mrs. Stillman from the guide which did not reach her, and that there were many other letters which did reach her and are not in the possession of her husband.

The letters were written, it is said, in 1918, 1919 and 1920, one of them just before Mrs. Stillman sailed for Europe on the Olympic last June. It was just as she was about to embark that she was served with the complaint in the divorce action.

Mrs. Stillman, according to her

ST. LOUIS U. TO SEND WEATHER FORECAST BY RADIO TELEPHONE

Those With Receiving Apparatus Can Get Missouri and Illinois Reports by "Listening In."

Beginning April 15 the official forecasts of the United States Weather Bureau for Missouri and Illinois will be sent out daily by radio-telephone, from the St. Louis University wireless station. The forecasts will be sent out at 10 a. m. and 10 p. m., and anyone within 150 miles of St. Louis who has a receiving apparatus can "listen in" and get the prediction.

Arrangements for the service have been made by Montrose W. Hayes, in charge of the local office of the Weather Bureau, with the university authorities. The Department of Agriculture will suggest to the newspapers and commercial organizations of cities within the radius of transmission, as well as farmers' organizations, to make arrangements to receive the messages. Individuals and organizations which will undertake this are asked to notify the Department of Science of St. Louis University.

The St. Louis University wireless station was used, until the completion of the Government wireless station at the Chain of Rocks, to direct the air mail service between St. Louis and Chicago. This was a telegraphic service, while the weather bulletin service will be telephonic.

CANONSBURG, Pa., March 26.—The Standard Tinplate Works here will resume operations April 11, according to notices posted by the company today. The plant has been closed since March 5. All of the 2400 employes will return to work when the plant reopens.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., March 26.—Resumption of full time operations by the Federal Motor Truck Co. was announced today. Increasing demand was given as the reason.

By the Associated Press.

FLINT, Mich., March 26.—Increased production by the Buick Motor Co. was announced today to take effect Monday. The force now employed is to be placed on a basis of 5½ days a week instead of three.

HARDING EXPRESSES SYMPATHY FOR IRISH RELIEF CAMPAIGN

Wishes New York Workers Success in Drive to Mitigate Suffering.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—In response to a request by a group of Irish leaders in this country, President Harding sent to New York tonight a message of sympathy for the Irish relief movement. To be read at a relief meeting to be held there on April 3. The communication was transmitted to Morgan J. O'Brien, chairman of the New York Relief Committee, and was as follows:

'I wish you the fullest measure of success not only in the great benefit performance at the Metropolitan Opera House on April 3, but in every worthy effort to make a becoming contribution on the part of our people to relieve distress among the women and children in Ireland. The people of America never will be deaf to the call for relief in behalf of suffering. Humanity, and the knowledge of distress in Ireland makes deep appeal to the more fortunate of our own land where so many of our citizens trace kinship to the Emerald Isles."

MARCH OF UNEMPLOYED LIKELY

James Eads How Arranging for Delegation to Visit President.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 26.—James Eads How of St. Louis, who is engaged in forming an "organization of unemployed" here, declared today that it was probable that a big delegation would shortly wait on President Harding and request that work on Government projects be hastened to provide more jobs.

How said that there were many millions of dollars available for road construction. He said that the delegation which would travel to Washington would go afoot, picking up unemployed on the route from the Far West to the capital, and that it might be several thousand strong.

Price Fixing Restrained by Court.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Five lithographic concerns, said to be makers of 40 per cent of the cigar bands, labels and flaps used in the United States, were perpetually restrained in Federal Court here today from fixing prices on products shipped and transported in interstate commerce.

TWO ST. LOUIS MEN NAMED AS ORGANIZERS OF BASEBALL PLOT

Carl Zork and Benjamin Franklin Indicted With Players on Chicago Team in 1919 World Series.

NEW INDICTMENTS NAME 18 MEN

Bond for Each Man Fixed at $24,000, Which May Be Doubled Under Law—Trial Next Fall Likely.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Carl Zork, shirt waist manufacturer, and Benjamin Franklin, both of St. Louis, were charged today by officials of the State's Attorney's office with being the organizers of the alleged plot through which Chicago White Sox players were said to have thrown the 1919 world series to Cincinnati.

Announcement that these two men would be formally accused when brought to trial with engineering the alleged deal, was made by the State's Attorney's office after indictments against 18 men, including Zork and Franklin, had been returned by the Cook County grand jury which today finished the second investigation into the baseball scandal.

Joseph J. Sullivan, known in the case as a gambler; Louis and Ben Levi, formerly of Des Moines, Ia., and Abe Attell were linked with Zork and Franklin by the State officials in announcing the results of the jury investigation.

Sullivan, officials said, the evidence showed, handled operations in the East; the Levi brothers directed the alleged conspiracy in the Central West, with Des Moines as headquarters, and Attell acted as traveling agent.

18 Men Indicted in All.

The charges created a sensation in baseball circles, for although Zork, Franklin and the Levi brothers were mentioned by witnesses before the first grand jury, which conducted its investigations last fall, none was indicted at that time. Sullivan and Attell were indicted then, however.

Zork, Franklin, the Levi brothers and David Zeller, who has been said to be well known in both Des Moines and San Francisco, were indicted today. In addition, the 13 men indicted last fall were reindicted. These men were Claude Williams, Eddie Cicotte, Joe Jackson, Buck Weaver, "Swede" Risberg, Oscar Felsch, Fred McMullin, "Chick" Gandil, Hal Chase, Joseph J. Sullivan, Rachel Brown, Abe Attell and Bill Burns.

Each man was named eight times in the indictments and each indictment specified three counts against them—conspiracy to defraud, conspiracy to do an illegal act and obtaining money under false pretenses.

Bail was fixed at $3000 for each count for each time a man was named, making $24,000. Under the law this can be doubled and the State announced that the men would be required to put up $48,000 bonds.

The State's Attorney immediately began preparation of extradition proceedings against the men indicted, but it is not expected that the trial will come up before fall.

Statement by State's Attorney.

Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, in discussing the naming of Zork and Franklin as the alleged fixers of the series, said:

"I told you when we dropped some of the baseball cases a few days ago that the first investigation had been bungled, and that the real men behind this conspiracy had not been indicted. We have handled this second investigation carefully and have not overlooked a single legal point. When the case comes to trial we will be ready. That is all I can say now."

The cases against the men indicted last fall collapsed recently when Crowe dismissed proceedings against seven of the men and took the other cases off the court call. He declared then that corruption of witnesses and improper handling of the case by his predecessors in office had made a farce of the affair and that it would be impossible to convict anyone with the evidence then at hand. He asked for six months' delay and when this was refused, announced he would drop the cases then, but would seek reindictment and "eventually drive the guilty men out of baseball and into the penitentiary."

It is believed that he will delay the trial so that his agents will have time to procure additional evidence which he says is available. Men

MRS. M. Z. FISKE LEAPS TO DEATH FROM FREE BRIDGE

Wife of Stove Company Treasurer, Long in Ill Health, Killed Instantly When Body Strikes Levee.

Mrs. Mary Z. Fiske, 54 years old, of 6237 McPherson avenue, wife of George Frederic Fiske, treasurer of the American Stove Co., ended her life at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon by leaping from the first span at the west end of the free bridge. Her body struck the levee, between the railroad tracks and the river, on the north side of the bridge, and death was instantaneous, her skull being crushed.

J. C. Brady of 3836 Eiler avenue, who was driving across the bridge in an automobile, saw Mrs. Fiske climb to the rail, but before he could reach her she had jumped. He telephoned to police headquarters and the body was removed to the morgue.

Mrs. Fiske had taken off her hat and coat and placed them with her umbrella and a kodak on the floor of the bridge. A small purse in a pocket of the coat contained her husband's business card and he was summoned to the morgue. After identifying the body he collapsed from grief.

Later Fiske stated that his wife had been in ill health since a year ago last July, when she underwent a major operation. She feared that she never would recover her normal strength, he said, and frequently was subject to severe spells of mental depression.

She had threatened several times to take her life, Fiske said, and once was found acting in a suspicious manner on the free bridge, and was escorted home by a policeman. When he left home for his place of business yesterday morning, he said, he suggested that she take a ride with him, and he drove her in his automobile through St. Louis County and then to his office, arriving there about noon. When she left him she said that she was going to do some shopping.

The point on the bridge from which Mrs. Fiske jumped is only about two blocks from her husband's office. She evidently had taken some photographs, as part of the film in her kodak had been used.

In addition to her husband Mrs. Fiske is survived by two sons, Frederic E., 28, who is a teacher of English at Cornell, and Clark P., 19, who is in his junior year at Washington University.

PRESIDENT TO CONSULT DAWES

Seeks Information Regarding Policy on Soldiers' Compensation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—To ask for advice regarding an administration policy toward soldier compensation and related subjects, President Harding today called to Washington Charles G. Dawes of Chicago, who served as a Brigadier-General in France.

Dawes will go to dinner at the White House tomorrow with Col. F. W. Galbraith, Commander in Chief of the American Legion; Thomas W. Miller, Alien Property Custodian, and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt of the Navy Department, all of whom have been active in the work of the legion since its organization.

MUSICIAN FLEES FROM WOMEN

Locks Self in Stateroom to Avoid Enthusiasm of Admirers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW York, March 26.—William Mengelberg, Dutch orchestra conductor, was so flabbergasted today when some of 400 admirers tried to kiss him, slap his back and shake his hand before he sailed for Holland, that he stumbled into his stateroom and locked the door.

The crowd—mostly women—clustered on the steamer in admiration of the man who last night concluded a season as leader of the National Symphony Orchestra. As sailing time approached ship officers persuaded the musician to unlock his door and greet the crowd. He began to speak, but some of his listeners tried to embrace him. Four women kissed Mengelberg. Two women fainted. Finally the ship sailed.

HUGHES' POLICY ON RUSSIA HELD TO BE LIKE WILSON'S

View in Washington Is That Secretary Has Stated in Own Way Attitude of Former President.

PROPOSAL FOR TRADE REJECTED

American Consul at Reval Instructed to Hand Communication to Litvinoff as "a Person."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—While rejecting the proposal of the Russian Soviet Government that a delegation be sent here to negotiate a trade agreement with the United States, many diplomats take the view that Secretary of State Hughes in his communication of yesterday really invited the Moscow Government to recognize the ordinary laws of economics and international relations. Some diplomats were inclined to see in the Hughes communication a distinct divergence from the Wilson administration's Russian policy, in that the new Secretary of State confined his direct criticisms to the economic phases of the Bolshevik regime.

The general view expressed here today is that Hughes simply restated in his own way the policy which former President Wilson followed with regard to Russia. Retiring officials of the Wilson administration familiar with the Russian situation did not hesitate to say that they felt absolutely certain of their ground, and only hoped every other pending question was in as good shape as the Russian question.

It is pointed out here that Hughes places no confidence in the off-hand statements credited to Lenine that the Bolshevik economic policy already has been abandoned. The crux of the question appears to be, what would constitute "convincing evidence" of "a proper basis for considering trade relations."

It is regarded as significant that the American Consul at Reval was instructed to hand the Hughes communication to M. Litvinoff as "a person" and not as an official, and that nowhere in the note is reference made to the Soviet Republic of Russia. It is believed the note of Secretary Hughes will have the effect of cutting off discussion of the Russian situation in the Senate except by the faction which includes Borah and France. This group desires the immediate resumption of trade relations with Russia, without awaiting the development of future contingencies.

Soviet Forces Are Reported to Have Lost Odessa.

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 26.—An unconfirmed report from Varna is that the troops who lost Odessa early in March after they had captured it from the Bolsheviki, recaptured the city from the soviet forces on the night of March 17.

The revolt in South Russia began Feb. 25, when Ukrainian revolutionary troops led by Simon Petlura, the peasant leader, and Gen. Makno, occupied the center of Odessa, but subsequent advices appeared to indicate that Odessa had been retaken by the Bolsheviki.

Third Congress of Third Internationale Reported to Have Been Called.

By the Associated Press.

HELSINGFORS, March 26.—The newspaper Pravda of Petrograd says the third congress of the Third Internationale of Moscow has been called for June 3, in Moscow, says a dispatch from Petrograd today.

The old soviet regulation forcing workmen to remain in one factory has been lifted, the dispatch adds, and they now are permitted to change their employment if they desire, upon application to the commissioners for permission.

YOUTH CHARGED WITH FORGERY

Two warrants charging second degree forgery were issued yesterday against Gilbert M. Brown, 18 years old, of 1805 Galle street, who was arrested Friday when he went to a downtown printing shop to get blank pay checks which had been ordered printed in the name of the Pedigo-Weber Shoe Co., without the authority of that company.

In a grip at Union Station, the baggage check for which was found in Brown's pocket, policemen found two books of blank checks of the St. Louis Manufacturing Corporation, and it was recalled that two fraudulent checks of that company, each for $25, had been passed on druggists. Brown was identified as having passed the checks.

Germans Underbidding Americans.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Evidence of efforts by Germany to regain her lost foreign trade was given in official dispatches today showing what was declared to be a definite program by German business interests to underbid other foreign exporters in the Spanish market. German traders in the Spanish market were said to be well informed concerning American prices and were quoting their stocks at figures just low enough to obtain the business.

Papal Music at Funeral of Cardinal Gibbons

Gregorian Chant Never Before Heard Outside Sistine Chapel to Be Used at Services in Baltimore Cathedral.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, March 26.—Music heard before only at the funeral of sovereign rulers of the Catholic church in the Sistine Chapel in Rome will be sung at funeral services for Cardinal Gibbons next Thursday in the Cathedral. The manuscript never before has left the Vatican.

Just before the body is laid to rest in the crypt beneath the Cathedral altar and the distinguished assemblage stands with bowed heads, this solemn Gregorian chant will be sung.

This music, which was prepared especially for funeral services of popes, is among the most beautiful and impressive compositions ever written for a Gregorian choir. It will be sung by the Gregorian Choral Society of St. Mary's Seminary.

As has been announced, Archbishop J. J. Glennon of St. Louis will preach the sermon.

Manuscript Obtained.

A manuscript copy of the music, believed to be the first which has ever found its way out of the Vatican, arrived in Baltimore early last week. Some time ago, when the Cardinal was very ill, the subject of Gregorian music, which the late prelate loved, was being discussed with the apostolic delegate in Washington.

Then came the suggestion that Rome be asked if a copy of the papal funeral music could be sent to Baltimore in view of the American prelate's services to the church.

This request was transmitted at the time and Pope Benedict ordered the authorities of the Pontifical Chapel, of whom the music is the exclusive property, to have a manuscript copy made and sent to the Very Rev. E. R. Dyer, president of St. Mary's Seminary and president of the Society of St. Gregory in America.

With the arrival of the music just before the Cardinal's death, a small group of the late prelate's personal friends were asked to finance the printing of the music for the choir. The Cardinal's body will rest for the last time tomorrow night on his own bed in his room at the archiepiscopal residence, watched over by special guards of Christian Brothers. Early Monday morning it will be removed without special ceremony to the Cathedral, where it will lie in state until the funeral Thursday.

Requiem at 10 O'Clock.

The body will be placed in position just outside the sanctuary, at the side of the central aisle, before the first requiem mass at 10 o'clock, which will be for children of the archdiocese.

The guard of honor, consisting of 876 men, will be maintained from 8 a. m. Monday until 9 a. m. Thursday. It will be changed hourly, and will consist of 12 men at a time, one from each of 12 big Catholic laymen's organizations.

Bishop Owen B. Corrigan was confirmed as administrator of the archdiocese by Monsignor John Bonzano, apostolic delegate to the United States, today, and immediately assumed charge of the clerical affairs.

Baltimore Jews Pay Tribute to Cardinal.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, March 26.—Among the hundreds of messages of sympathy and regret over the death of Cardinal Gibbons that continue to pour in at the archepiscopal residence from persons of all creeds and rank was an official testimonial from the Baltimore Hebrew Congregation. It extended the sympathy of the congregation to the members of the household and to their "Catholic brethren of Baltimore," and concluded:

"We voice the prayer that in God's providence a leader shall be given to the Catholics of America who shall maintain the same noble standards of Catholic dignity, American citizenry and humane service."

A glowing tribute to the Cardinal's memory was voiced in a resolution adopted yesterday by the Baltimore Federation of Churches, representing virtually all the Protestant denominations of the city, which said that he merits the praise and esteem of all men "without distinction of creed or sect."

Jules Jusserand, French Ambassador at Washington, sent the following telegram to Bishop Corrigan:

"We mourn with you a prelate admirable for his sanctity; a citizen admired for his patriotism; a model American in whom during the great crisis France found a friend."

BOY SAID TO ADMIT HELPING MOTHER KILL STEPFATHER

Grand Rapids, Mich., Woman Corroborates Story of Clubbing Man and Removal of Body in Cart.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 26.—Caspar Didia, 14 years old, confessed today, according to the police, that he helped his mother club to death his stepfather, Joseph Scalbius, last night. Then, according to the confession, he and his brother, James, 9, placed the body in a toy wagon and carted it to the railroad yards, where they left it. The body was found early today by a switching crew. He was awakened during the night, Caspar declared, by a quarrel between his mother and stepfather. "I struck him with an ax and a shovel, and my mother hit him with a stick," the police quoted him as saying. "Then my brother and I carried the body away in a cart."

Mrs. Scalbius and the two boys were taken into custody shortly after the body was found.

The woman later corroborated the boy's story, saying she struck her husband with a rolling pin after he had been felled by Caspar with an ax, and the younger son had hit him with a coal shovel. She said she instructed the boys to cart the body to the railroad track.

16-YEAR-OLD BOY SAYS HE WAS BEATEN BY ARMED MEN

Emory Coleman, 16 years old, of 217 Bates street, reported to the police last night that, as he and two companions were crossing Michigan avenue, at Bates, about 9 o'clock, a man in a speeding automobile going north in Michigan shouted at them to get out of the way. Coleman said he shouted "Shut up" to the man, whereupon the car was stopped and a man with a revolver alighted. Coleman's companions fled as the man seized Coleman and dragged him into the car. There were two other men and a boy in the car, and the man who seized him displayed a badge and said they were prohibition enforcement agents, Coleman said, and searched his pockets, taking some business cards, which was all that he had. The car was started and as it proceeded, Coleman said, the men beat him. He was put out at Virginia avenue and the men drove away.

VETERANS TO BE C. OF C. GUESTS

Veterans of the Battle of Shiloh, who will be in St. Louis next Saturday en route to the annual celebration of the anniversary of this battle which is to be held at Pittsburg Landing, on the Tennessee River, will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce during their stay in the city. James R. Dunn, chairman of the Public Celebrations Committee of the chamber, is in charge of the program, which includes a luncheon at Hotel Statler and an automobile tour of the city.

Gov. Hyde, Mayor Kiel, W. Frank Carter and American Legion and army and navy officials will speak at the luncheon. The post band at Jefferson Barracks will furnish the musical program and vocal selections will be given by members of the Pageant Choral Society.

MAN ARRESTED 56 TIMES FOUND WOUNDED IN CHEEK

Motor Cycle Patrolman Believes Man One of Four Who Attempted Cafeteria Robbery.

Responding to a call from a drug store at 1001 O'Fallon street last night at 10:30 o'clock, the police found Leo Casey, 22, 2716 Howard street, whom they have arrested 56 times in three years, on the floor of the store suffering from a bullet wound in the neck, the bullet having emerged through his left cheek.

Motor Cycle Policeman Edward Fierce, who yesterday at 3:30 a. m. interrupted four men carrying a safe from the Y. W. C. A. cafeteria, at Grand avenue and Delmar boulevard, said at the city hospital that he was sure Casey was one of the four, the one who lurched forward in the machine as if shot when he replied to the robbers' fire. He said that he was positive of the identification because he passed within a few feet of the men when he first observed them.

The police were told that Casey had been brought into the drug store by another youth dressed in a brown suit, who ran out directly afterwards. They also were led to believe that he had been brought to a point on O'Fallon street in an automobile.

However, Casey told the following story of the shooting: He said that he had been walking north in Tenth street when he was stopped by two negroes, each of whom had revolvers. They took $37 and his watch from him, he said, and as he started to go up an alley at their command, fired several shots, one of which struck him. They believe that he was shot in some sort of a gang fight.

TORNADO DAMAGES MINNESOTA, IOWA, NEBRASKA TOWNS

Three Persons Reported Killed at Reading, Minn.; Town of Rushmore Virtually Leveled.

BLIZZARD GRIPS THE TWO DAKOTAS

12 Inches of Snow in Three Hours at Points in South Dakota—Big Drops in Temperature Reported.

By the Associated Press.

WORTHINGTON, Minn., March 26.—A tornado, following an all day rain, swept west and northwest of here between 6:30 and 7 p. m. today, killing Dave Anderson, his son and another person at Reading, eight miles northwest of the Rock Island road, and virtually leveling Rushmore, eight miles west on the Omaha road, according to meager details received here. All wires are down.

12 Inches of Snow in Three Hours at Points in South Dakota.

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 26.—South Dakota is experiencing tonight one of the most severe blizzards in its history, according to reports received here. At Huron and Watertown 12 inches of snow descended in less than three hours and there were no signs of abatement late tonight.

A strong wind accompanied by snow, is raging here and the temperature, still dropping rapidly, had descended to ten degrees above zero at 11 o'clock tonight. The rapid and unexpected change in weather is expected to cause damage to cattle in the prairie district. Telephone and telegraphic service out of Sioux Falls is badly disrupted.

Three Reported Killed and Several Wounded in Tornado.

By the Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., March 26.—Three persons are reported to have been killed in a tornado which struck Rushmore, Minn., west of here, according to reports received here late tonight. Doctors and nurses were asked for.

Several persons also were injured and a number of buildings destroyed, according to meager reports.

Buildings Blown Down, Wire Communication Cut Off.

HASTINGS, Neb., March 26.—A windstorm that is reported to have reached the severity of a tornado, struck a short distance southeast of the village of Hansen shortly after noon today. A number of barns and other outbuildings were blown from their foundations and at least one house was damaged.

Wire communication at points north of here has been cut off since early today, and not much information has reached Hastings of the extent of the storm. Inquiry from the storm area through the telephone exchange at Prosser said there were no reports of loss of life or serious injuries.

Forty telephone poles were leveled between Hastings and Jansen. Considerable livestock was killed on two farms and barns on both places were destroyed. Damage to property is reported in and around the town of Kenesaw, this county.

Farm Buildings Wrecked and Telephone Lines Leveled.

LEXINGTON, Neb., March 26.—A tornado swept the country about one mile east of here today, leveling a windmill and outbuildings on one farm. The storm wrecked telephone lines here. No one was killed or injured and the damage done to property was not heavy.

FONDA, Ia., March 26.—Six persons were injured and considerable property damage was done here by a tornado which swept over Pocahontas County at 5 o'clock tonight. All buildings of the County Fair Grounds with the exception of the grandstand were destroyed.

POISON GIVEN IN PLAY AT DOCTOR

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Accused of feeding poison to 4-year-old Josephine Olsen when playing "doctor," two 7-year-old boys were held in $500 bail each today in Brooklyn Children's Court.

The boys, Roy Strom and Laffie Jurgenson, found two bottles yesterday in a vacant lot. They were alleged to have "prescribed" one tablet—a slow poison—for the girl. The case was adjourned pending the outcome of the child's illness.

WESTERN MINNESOTA AND THE DAKOTAS IN GRIP OF BLIZZARD

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 26.—Blizzards and heavy wind and rainstorms, accompanied by thunder and lightning, with dropping temperatures, late today and tonight gave the Northwest a variety of weather for Easter Sunday.

In South Dakota and North Dakota and Western Minnesota blizzards were reported from some sections. Grand Forks, S. D., was in the grip of a blizzard, which began at noon. A 30-mile wind prevailed and the temperature dropped from 30 to 14 this afternoon. Ortonville, Minn., tonight reported the worst blizzard of the year.

Sioux Falls, S. D., reported a drizzling rain, with a temperature of 63 degrees at 3 p. m. Tonight the rain ceased and the thermometer registered 30 above. A drop to 10 degrees, with snow before morning, was predicted.

While Western Minnesota was in the throes of a blizzard, the eastern section of the State was visited by a downpour of rain, some hail and lightning and thunder. Lower temperatures, with snow, were predicted for Sunday in the eastern part.

DETECTIVES SEIZE NEGRO WHEN HE STEALS PURSE FROM WOMAN

Prisoner Claims Frustrated Pocket-Picking Attempt in Store Was His First One.

Alphonse Wade, 21 years old, a negro, was arrested in the Famous-Barr department store yesterday afternoon after Detectives Vasey and Hoagland say they saw him take a purse from the cloak pocket of Miss Melvina Parker, 2937A Eads avenue. As the detectives grabbed him Wade dropped the purse on the floor and put his foot on it.

At Central Station Wade said it was his first attempt at pocket picking. He said he came here a short time ago from the South and had worked as a chauffeur for a real estate man whose regular chauffeur was ill until three weeks ago, since when he had not been regularly employed. He said he sought to steal the purse to get money to eat. There was $10 in the purse.

Wade has been living here with a sister at 4528 Garfield avenue.

HOLDUP MEN MISS $201 THROUGH RUSE OF VICTIM

Granite City Shoe Dealer Saves Money by Throwing Pocketbook Away.

Morris Crystal, after leaving his shoe store in Granite City for his home in St. Louis, was stopped last midnight by two masked men, who drove alongside his automobile and pointed revolvers at him and his two sons, and made them drive back to a dark corner, a block away. There they compelled Crystal to strip to his underclothing.

Crystal, however, immediately after being accosted, had thrown his pocketbook from the car. When the robbers had gone through his pockets, taking about $20, they handed his clothing back and drove away. Crystal went back and found his pocketbook, which contained $201, the day's receipts. The men were about 20 years old, he said.

59 SHIPS LOST IN JANUARY

United States Lost Three Steamers and Five Sailing Vessels.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 26.—The March bulletin of the Bureau Veritas, issued today, gives the January maritime losses and accidents. The total loss in steamers was 28, the United States being third in losses, with three steamers and England leading with seven. The sailing vessels lost numbered 31, England leading with 12 and the United States and Norway second with five each.

The accidents to steamers numbered 492 and to sailing vessels 132. The United States led in steamer tonnage lost with 8340 gross. England was last with 1065 gross tons. The loss in tonnage to all the countries listed totaled 41,288 gross. The sailing vessel loss to the United States was 2082 gross tons, to England 1483 and to Norway 5384. The total loss to the eight flags listed was 10,036.

Assailants Make Escape in Auto When Crowd Gathers.

John Piper of 1603 Knapp street and Vincent Melville of 4522 Pope avenue, employes of the Coca Cola Co., 1115 Clark avenue, were unloading a truck of beverage at Grand avenue and Dodier street at 2 p. m. yesterday, when five men jumped from an automobile and began beating them and calling them "scabs." When a crowd gathered the assailants jumped into the automobile and escaped. Piper and Knapp suffered cuts and bruises. They told the police that they did not recognize any of the men who had participated in the assault.

HARDING INVITED TO CENTENNIAL

President Takes Request to Visit St. Louis Under Advisement.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Senator Spencer called on President Harding this afternoon and invited him to attend the centennial celebration of Missouri Statehood in St. Louis during Veiled Prophet's week in October. Spencer also urged that Missouri be recognized in the pending appointments to the Shipping Board. The President said that he would take both matters under consideration.

Spencer departed tonight to spend a week in St. Louis aiding the campaign of Mayor Kiel for re-election.

DETECTIVES ACCUSED OF DESERTING COMRADE

Five Members of Chicago Bureau Suspended—They Are Said to Have Hidden at Shooting.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Five members of the detective force were suspended tonight after witnesses had accused them of hiding behind telephone poles and refusing to answer the dying cries of their comrade, Detective Sergeant Patrick O'Neill, who was fatally shot Wednesday night while trying to arrest "Tommy" O'Connor, an alleged gunman, who is charged with slaying at least three men.

While the search for O'Connor was being extended today to all parts of the country, Charles Fitzmorris, Chief of Police, concluded his inquiry into the events leading up to the death of O'Neill. According to witnesses, the six men from the detective bureau surrounded the house in which O'Connor was supposed to be hiding while being sought for murder.

Neighbors told of being aroused by several shots and of finding five of the detectives hiding behind telegraph poles. "Paddy (O'Neill) has been shot," one of them was quoted as saying, "and we are afraid to go into the back yard until reinforcements arrive."

No one went to the assistance of the wounded man, according to witnesses, until the arrival of a police wagon full of gray-haired patrolmen who had been held in reserve at the station. They led the way to the wounded man, who was then unconscious. He died on the way to the hospital.

According to the testimony, O'Neill lay for more than 15 minutes without any effort being made to aid him after he was shot and there was no attempt to pursue the slayer.

The order of Chief Fitzmorris suspending the five men read in part as follows:

"O'Neill, shot and wounded to death, lay in the yard struggling with his fast ebbing strength to lift himself and calling feebly until he became unconscious. Nobody went to his aid. It was not until the ambulance from the Englewood station, several miles away, arrived that anyone went to his side, and then it was the crew of the ambulance that went into the yard and picked him up.

"O'Connor, from the testimony of witnesses, escaped through the back yard and across the prairies on a course that must have taken him directly across O'Neill's body, and, although he fled across an open prairie, nobody pursued him.

"From the investigation I have made, the blame for the escape of Officer O'Neill's murderer rests definitely and squarely upon the other members of the squad that accompanied him."

The detectives suspended were Joseph Ronan, W. G. Fenn, Chas. L. McShane, W. J. Carter and Edwin M. Halpin.

TWO ST. LOUISANS NAMED AS ORGANIZERS OF BASEBALL PLOT

now are at work doing this, it was said.

Zork recently supplied evidence to Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, which resulted in Gene Paulette's being placed on the ineligible list.

The two Levi brothers were said at the first investigation to have had information that the series was to be thrown and to have placed large bets against the White Sox.

Men Who Lost Bets Named.

Charles K. Nims, a local sportsman, who was named in the first investigation indictments as having been defrauded of $250 through the alleged conspiracy, was renamed in today's indictments, and in addition Samuel Pass was named as having been defrauded of $500.

The investigation which brought today's indictments lasted little more than a week. Ban Johnson, president of the American League, was the only witness, although the records of the first grand jury were read to the present jurors. It is understood that Crowe now has finished his investigation and that there will be no more indictments.

The Levi brothers were said by witnesses before the first grand jury to have made about $80,000 on the series, according to officials in the State's Attorney's office. It also was made known that the new indictments charge the defendants with defrauding the White Sox players who were not in the plot out of approximately $2000 each—the difference between the winner's and loser's shares in the series receipts.

Those Mentioned as Involved in Scandal Barred From Parks.

A few minutes before dispatches from Chicago yesterday announced the indictment of two St. Louisans, Carl Zork and Ben Franklin, in connection with the world's series baseball scandal of 1919, Secretary J. A. R. Quinn of the Browns, told the Post-Dispatch that an agreement had been reached by the managements of the two local teams to bar from their games all those men whose names were mentioned as being involved. Persons connected with previous or subsequent scandals were also placed under the ban.

Zork, who is the president of a shirt waist manufacturing company, has been known in betting circles here for years. His operations were not confined to baseball, but extended to boxing and billiards as well. He resides at the Washington Hotel.

Franklin is known as a heavy bettor on baseball and horse racing. He lives at 740 Interdrive.

When asked for a statement yesterday, Zork said: "I cannot understand why I should have been indicted. I am absolutely innocent of complicity with the throwing of a ball game in the 1919 world series, or with the throwing of any ball game anywhere at any time."

At Franklin's home it was said he was in Tulsa, Ok.

Elmer Farrar, whose name was mentioned in First Baseman Paulette's confession to Judge Landis in connection with an incident prior to the world's series scandal, has not previously been identified strongly with the professional betting element.

BOMB ATTACK ON LORRIES IN DUBLIN

Two Men of Crown Forces Injured; Move Toward Putting Home Rule Into Effect.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 26.—Incendiary fires on numerous farms broke out this evening near Newcastle-Upon-Tyne. Lloyd's News attributes the fires to Sinn Feiners. The damage is estimated at several thousand pounds.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, March 26.—A bomb attack was made this afternoon upon two lorries belonging to the air forces. Two of the air force contingent and several civilians were wounded, the latter by bomb splinters.

The attack occurred at 3 p. m. The two lorries were drawn up on O'Connell street in the heart of Dublin. A number of soldiers had entered stores to make purchases. Those who remained in the lorries were suddenly surrounded by armed civilians, who threw two bombs and opened fire from their revolvers.

The two wounded air force men were Privates Brown and Hayhen.

WESTPORT, County Mayo, Ireland, March 26.—Pandemonium prevailed here early today when Crown forces engaged in reprisals for a recent ambush. There was continuous gunfire in various parts of the town for several hours. Houses and shops were wrecked with bombs and furniture and other effects were burned.

For several days past many persons have been sleeping outdoors in anticipation of reprisals.

Preparations for Putting Home Rule Act Into Effect.

Series of Attacks Made on Railway Stations in Antrim.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, March 26.—A series of attacks was made Friday on seven stations of the Northern counties railway in Antrim. All the stations were burned.

Gen. Allgood, commander of the military forces in Northwest Ulster, today issued a warning that owing to the number of "evily-disposed persons" in the Londonderry district, and the prevalence of revolver shooting, the military forces have orders to fire promptly at gunmen. A tightening of the curfew regulation also is hinted at.

Business Houses in Strokestown Are Ordered Closed.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, March 26.—All the business establishments in Strokestown, two miles from the scene of the ambush in which Capt. R. G. Peek was killed on Wednesday last, have been closed by the authorities. The house from which it was supposed the attack was made was destroyed today by crown forces.

GROCERY MANAGER SERIOUSLY INJURED BY BLOWS ON HEAD

Wife Says He Told Her of Being Robbed Before Losing Consciousness.

Police of the Newstead Avenue Station at 10:30 o'clock last night found Walter Vietz of 4060 McPherson avenue, manager of a Kroger grocery store at 1630 North Fourteenth street, at home unconscious and being attended by a physician for severe injuries to his head.

Mrs. Vietz said a short time before she heard her husband call for help and that she found him lying in the hallway. Before losing consciousness, she said, he told her he had been attacked by two men, who robbed him of about $100, receipts of the store, which he was bringing home. His condition was pronounced serious.

WOODROW WILSON RECOVERS FROM INDIGESTION ATTACK

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Former President Wilson was described today by his physician, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, as a little weak as a result of an acute attack of indigestion yesterday, but otherwise apparently recovered from the attack.

The former President was up and about the house as usual and had breakfast with Mrs. Wilson at the usual hour. He remained home all day.

HARDING NAMES IOWAN DIRECTOR OF RAILROADS

James C. Davis Succeeds John Barton Payne; President Thanks Latter for Service.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—James C. Davis of Iowa, a former general counsel of the Chicago Northwestern Railway, was appointed Director-General of the Railroad Administration by President Harding today to succeed John Barton Payne, who has held the post during the past year in addition to his duties as Secretary of the Interior.

Davis, who now is serving as the Railroad Administration's general counsel, will assume charge as director Monday. At the same time he will also succeed Payne as agent of the President in legal suits growing out of Government operation of the railways. The double designation is made necessary by a technicality.

In announcing appointment of Davis, the White House made public a letter written by President Harding to the retiring railroad director and Secretary of the Interior expressing appreciation for the latter's services.

"I cannot allow this action to pass," wrote Harding, "without conveying to you my gratitude for the signal service you have rendered the country, not only in the important work you have done in connection with the administration of the railways, but also your notable contributions to the Government service in one of the most difficult periods of all our history. I am quite sure the country shares gratitude which I so willingly express."

Dr. Carl A. Alsberg, chief of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Chemistry, today announced his intention of severing his connection with the Agricultural Department preparatory to taking up his duties as one of the directors of the new food research nutrition institute at Leland Stanford University.

Lieutenant-Colonel Jay J. Morrow, army engineer corps, is understood to have been selected by President Harding as Governor of the Panama Canal zone to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Col. Chester Harding. Col. Morrow is now acting Governor of the zone.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Passengers on American railroads in 1920 totaled 1,234,222,889 as compared with 1,174,721,842 in 1919, according to figures given out today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The increase in railroad fares apparently resulted in only small declines in travel, 99,181,982 persons paying fares in December, 1920, as compared to 100,805,201 in December, 1919, before the fares were increased.

The average passenger traveled 36.71 miles in December as compared with 37.73 miles in the same month the year previous.

Campaign Funds to Go to Charity.

TESTIMONY TAKEN IN STILLMAN CASE LAST DECEMBER

Banker and Neighbors to His Estate in Canada, Who Are Friendly to Him, Told of Wife's Association With Guide.

TOGETHER OFTEN AT ESTATE IN QUEBEC

Father of "Apollo Belvidere" an Indian, While His Wife Is White, Say Natives Who Have Long Known the Family.

From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 26.—There was made public today a report in part of the proceedings in the Stillman divorce case in the shape of testimony taken in the rooms of the Bar Association here, Dec. 22 last, from James A. Stillman and several witnesses on his behalf.

This report was seemingly garbled—and was so pronounced by the attorneys representing Mrs. Stillman. It was pointed out by them that the cross-examination of witnesses was omitted from the report, and also those portions of the witnesses' testimony which were ordered stricken out of the record.

Readers of the Post-Dispatch, therefore, should keep in mind that what is here printed is only one side of the case, and the completion of the matter might be changed were the full report including cross-examination, at hand.

Both sides in the celebrated case denied the issuance of the partial report. As stated, the session was held before Daniel J. Gleason, the Referee appointed by Justice Morschauser.

Mr. Stillman's examination by Outerbridge Horsey of the law firm of Nicoll, Arable, Fuller & Sullivan, which represents him, was quoted as follows:

Q. What is your name? A. James A. Stillman.

Q. Are you married? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is your wife? A. Anne Urquhart Stillman.

Q. When and where were you married? A. Grace Church, New York City, Jan. 3, 1901.

Acknowledges Only Three Children.

Q. Will you tell us the names of your children and how many you have? A. We have three children—Anne, James and Alexander.

Q. What are their ages? A. Nineteen, 17 and 10 years, respectively.

Q. Have you any children by your wife other than those that have been mentioned? A. No.

Objection by John E. Mack (guardian ad litem for Guy Stillman, the child whose legitimacy is in question): I object to this question, not only as to its form, but as to its being legal. I wish to call the referee's attention to the fact that it would bear on the legitimacy of a child, and the plaintiff is not qualified to offer evidence on that score here.

Referee Gleason: I sustain the objection, and the word "no" shall be stricken out.

There was no cross-examination of Mr. Stillman.

Following Mr. Stillman was Harry Brenon, carpenter and woodsman, whose home is at Grand Anse, Canada. He was interrogated as follows by Mr. Horsey:

Q. Do you know of a man by the name of Ferd K. Beauvais? A. I do.

Q. I show you a photograph. Do you recognize it? A. Yes, sir, that is Beauvais, the man I know as Mr. Beauvais.

Q. Do you know Mrs. James A. Stillman? A. Yes, sir; I do.

Q. I show you a photograph. Do you know who this lady is? A. Yes, that is the lady that I know as Mrs. Stillman.

Q. Can you tell us where you saw Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman the last time together? A. Well, I saw them a number of times in the winter of 1918, and the early winter of 1919.

Q. Where did you see them? A. Well, I did some work for the Stillmans at their camp and I saw them some distance from the camp.

Q. What else did you witness, and where did you see them? A. Well, they were always together and they spent a great deal of time in the bush.

Q. Did you see them often in the open? A. Yes, they did quite a little walking with snowshoes.

Q. Can you tell us of any particular time when you were at the Stillman camp, and what you saw? A. Well, I cannot tell you about dates, but I remember what I saw.

Looked Through Keyhole.

Q. Well, what did you see? A. Well, I went to the place and looked through the keyhole.

Q. Well, why did you look through the keyhole? A. Out of curiosity.

Q. Whose room was it you first looked into? A. It was Mrs. Stillman's.

Q. Did you see anything or anyone? A. No, I did not—not in that room.

Q. Well, go on, did you see anything at all? Did you note anything? A. Do you mean in Mrs. Stillman's room? No.

Q. Well, where did you go next? A. I went to look into the room of Ferd K. Beauvais.

Q. What did you see? A. I saw two persons.

Q. Do you know who those persons were? A. Yes, they were Ferd K. Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman.

Q. Could you look around the room and see things? A. Yes; I did.

Q. Well, what did you see? A. I saw wearing apparel for a lady. I also saw a pair of white boots.

Q. What else did you see? A. Well, I saw a kimono.

Q. What do you remember about these white boots? A. Well, I have often seen Mrs. Stillman wear those same boots.

Q. What did you do about the house? A. Well, I did lattice work and I did painting.

Q. How did you observe these things that you have noted. A. Well, I saw this mostly from a scaffold.

Q. How many times did you see Mrs. Stillman and Mr. Beauvais in the room? A. About eight or 10 times.

Q. Now, you say you went there; why did you go there? A. Well, I was curious.

Woman Is Questioned.

A French-Canadian woman, Mrs. Hectorine Nanault Lafontaine, was called to the stand (after the preceding witness had been cross-examined by George Coggill, representing Mrs. Stillman). Her testimony was:

Q. What do you do for a livelihood? A. Housewife.

Q. Do you know Mrs. James A. Stillman? A. Yes, I do.

Q. I show you a photograph. Can you tell me whether you recognize it? A. Yes, that is Mrs. Stillman.

Q. I show you this photograph; do you know who it is? A. Yes; that is Beauvais.

Q. I think I neglected to ask you where you live? A. My home is in Grand Piles, in the Province of Quebec.

Q. Can you tell us when you saw Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman together? A. Yes; it was late in 1917. It was dark and there was a heavy rainstorm.

Q. Was it at your home that Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman sought shelter? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Well, tell us what happened? A. Well, they asked to be accommodated with rooms for the night, as they were some distance from home.

Q. Well, can you tell us what you did? A. Mrs. Stillman wanted to take a bath and we gave her a room upstairs, right opposite the bath.

Q. Well, what happened, if you know? A. Well, Mr. Beauvais went upstairs with Mrs. Stillman. I remained in the corridor. Mrs. Stillman went into her room and then went into the bathroom.

Q. Well, what happened after that? A. Well, Beauvais went into Mrs. Stillman's room and began to carry things to her.

Q. How long did this last? A. Well, it was about 10 or 15 minutes that Beauvais went back and forth.

Q. Well, what happened after that? A. Mrs. Stillman went into the bedroom and Beauvais went in, too.

Q. What did you do? A. I remained in the corridor.

Q. What happened? A. Well, they closed the door of Mrs. Stillman's room—it was closed.

Q. What happened then? A. Beauvais came out, and the light in Mrs. Stillman's room was turned down.

Q. What happened after that? A. I fixed Beauvais up a couch in the hall.

Q. Why did you stay in the corridor. A. Well, I am a good woman and have six children—most of them are girls.

Q. But why did you stand in the corridor all that time? A. Well, I was anxious to see what happened.

Another Man Questioned.

Attorney Coggill, representing Mrs. Stillman, cross-examined this woman witness, and then another French Canadian, Ferdinand Page, was called to the stand. His testimony was quoted as follows:

Q. Where do you live? A. I live at La Papue, in the Province of Quebec.

Q. What is your business? A. I am a woodsman and a farmer.

Q. I show you a photograph and want to know whether you know who it is. A. Yes, that is Ferd K. Beauvais.

Q. Do you know Beauvais' father and mother? A. Yes. Beauvais' father is an Indian, a brown man. His mother is a white woman—very white.

Q. Well, you would not say that Beauvais is a full-blooded Indian? A. He is mixed.

Q. I show you another photograph—do you know who this is? A. Yes, that is Mrs. Stillman.

Q. Can you tell us when you saw them last? A. Well, it was late in the year 1916.

Q. Were they in the open when you saw them? A. Well, they had just come in with their snow shoes.

Q. Can you tell something about what happened at the Stillman home when Mr. Stillman was not there? A. Well, Beauvais took meals with Mrs. Stillman at her table.

Q. Well, go on; tell us what you know. A. When Beauvais' folks came there they had to sit at another table with the people that worked around the house.

Q. What did you see at the house? A. Well, I saw a lot of things.

Q. Did you climb a ladder one day? A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did you see? A. Well, I first looked into Mrs. Stillman's bedroom.

Q. What did you see? A. Nothing.

Q. What did you do next? A. Well, I went and looked into the bedroom of Ferd Beauvais.

Q. What did you see? A. Well, I saw Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman.

Woodsman's Testimony.

Ferdinand Page was cross-examined by Coggill and then Joseph Page of the same town, a woodsman, carpenter and joiner and a relative of the previous witness, was called. His testimony was quoted thus:

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Ferd K. Beauvais? A. Yes, he is an old friend.

Q. I show you a photograph. Is this the picture of the man you know as Ferd K. Beauvais? A. Yes.

Q. I show you another photograph. Do you know who this lady is? A. Yes, that is Mrs. James Stillman.

Q. Do you recall any of the times you saw Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman together? A. Yes, it was late in the winter of 1916.

Q. What were the circumstances under which you recall this meeting? A. They were 50 miles from Grand Anse and the roads were bad. They wanted to go to Little Lake. I told them that they could only go by sleigh.

Q. What did they say? A. They said they would spend the night at the Little Club.

Q. Is that some distance from where you met them? A. Yes, about a mile and a quarter.

Q. What happened then? A. They went on their way.

Q. Do you know anything about the parents of Beauvais? A. Very well.

Q. Tell us what you know, if you will. A. Well, his mother is a white woman and his father is an Indian. He is an Indian mixed.

Q. When did you see them again together? A. In March, 1919.

Q. What were the circumstances? A. I was working at the Stillman home.

Q. Well, what else do you recall? A Mrs. Stillman and Beauvais and an Italian came up from New York.

Q. Before the arrival of Mrs. Stillman and Beauvais you and some of the other men had been sleeping in the house, had you not? A. Yes, but when Beavais came, he said we could not sleep in the main house any longer.

Ladder Raised to Window.

Q. What did you see when you went up the ladder? (This question relates to the ladder Ferdinand Page had previously admitted climbing. The ladder was raised to the windows of Mrs. Stillman's room and then to the room of Beauvais.) A What room do you mean?

Q. Well, I mean what room did you look in first? A. I looked in Mrs. Stillman's bedroom.

Q. Well, what did you do or what did you see? A. Mrs. Stillman was not there.

Q. Did Beauvais' room adjoin Mrs. Stillman's? A. Yes.

Q. What did you see? A. I went in the room.

Q. Do you remember about what time in the morning this was? A. Yes; it was about 10 or 10:30.

Q. What did you find, if anything? A. I found some lady's garments and hairpins.

Q. Do you recall looking into Beavais' room on any other occasion? A. Yes, there was once in September, 1919.

Q. Well, what room did you look into on this occasion? A. I looked into Ferd Beauvais' room.

Q. What did you see? A. I saw Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman.

Statements as to Testimony.

On behalf of Mrs. Stillman's side of the case, after the printing of the question—answer testimony, the following statement was issued:

"Mrs. Stillman's attorneys consider the issue of the so-called testimony of witnesses as a gross breach of legal etiquette and a most unusual proceeding in a case of this character.

"It is not an accurate account of what occurred before the referee, and makes it evident that the witnesses were not spontaneous but were procured.

"There was no cross-examination shown and the cross-examination of several of the witnesses served to explode their whole stories, even to the point of striking out to a considerable extent the evidence they had already put in.

"Wherever anything was shown favorable to Mrs. Stillman it was left out. This is a garbled statement of a legal proceeding."

Upon hearing that Mrs. Stillman's attorneys had issued a statement criticising the published account of the examination of witnesses before the referee in the Stillman case, a representative of the other side (Mr. Stillman) said:

"It cannot be denied too emphatically that the question-and-answer testimony as printed did not come from us. We agree that the giving out of such testimony was a highly unethical thing. We did not give it out and have no knowledge of how it reached the public prints."

Legitimacy and Parentage of Two Boys Born Within a Few Weeks of Each Other Are Involved and "The Other Man" and "The Other Woman" Have Been Revealed Under Unusual Circumstances

NEW YORK, March 26.

DIVORCE is an ancient institution. For centuries men and women have sought to tear apart the marriage bonds they once so gladly entered. Rank, prominence, wealth, poverty, obscurity, lowliness—these have had nothing to do with divorces, except that in America (where divorce is easier than elsewhere) men and women of means have generally found methods of keeping secret the reasons for their severances.

On this account New York, and the whole country, indeed, has its interest intensely engaged at present by legal actions impulsed by a man and woman of the class whose intimate affairs seldom reach the rest of the world.

Therefore, an effort is made here to summarize this celebrated case, with its characters and settings, that so unexpectedly has been brought from behind the usual veil of secrecy.

The Husband and Wife.

JAMES A. STILLMAN, president of the National City Bank, one of the most powerful financial institutions of the world. Born to be master of millions. Accumulated many more millions. Is 45, in early middle age. Tall, straight built, smooth shaven, wears eyeglasses, rather an exquisite as to dress, rather offish as to manner toward men, distinctly courtly with women. Evidences a sense of "superiority." Was of Harvard; a fair oarsman and baseball pitcher. Stillman accuses his wife of infidelity and declares that her son, called Guy and born in 1918, is not his, but is the offspring of a French-Indian guide employed at the Stillman summer home at Three Rivers, Que., Canada.

ANNE URQUHART POTTER STILLMAN, the wife, famous in her youth as "Fifi" Potter. Daughter of James Brown Potter and Cora Urquhart Potter, the last named also famous as to beauty. Her paternal grandfather was the noted Bishop Potter of the New York Episcopal diocese. Auburn haired, hazel eyed, richly colored, still statuesque as to figure. Vivacious, witty, a linguist, a horsewoman, fond of outdoor life. Married 1901. Not quite 42 years old. Mrs. Stillman denies her husband's charges and says the son, Guy, is of his parentage.

Against her husband she brings the accusation that he maintained in luxury a former chorus girl, and that this woman's son, known as Jay Leeds, and born fairly close to the time little Guy Stillman was born, is Mr. Stillman's son, also.

She asks for $10,000 a month alimony and $25,000 counsel fees, declaring her husband is well able to pay this. Mr. Stillman's father, who bore the same name and was also president of the National City Bank, left him more than $8,000,000 when he died in 1918. Mrs. Stillman has been receiving a separation allowance of $5000 a month.

The Innocent Causes.

GUY STILLMAN, born in New York City in November, 1918, registered as the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stillman. Sturdy brown-haired little chap, now with his mother at Lakewood, N. J., prattling babyishly with visitors, posing calmly for photographs, all unaware of his position.

If he is pronounced illegitimate, he will automatically be cut off from sharing in the millions of James A. Stillman's estate.

"JAY LEEDS," born in New York City in September, 1918, registered as the son of Franklyn Harold Leeds and Florence Helena Leeds. Believed to be at present with his mother in Cuba. Was, until recently, with his mother at Miami, Fla. May, under certain conditions, have a claim to the millions of his father, known as "Leeds." Said to be a pretty, healthy, lovable child.

Other Man and Woman

FERD BEAUVAIS, accused of being the lover of Mrs. Stillman and the father of her child. Five feet 10 inches tall, weight 165 pounds, 26 years old, has dark hair, Canadian-born, of French and Indian parents. So handsome he was called "Apollo Belvidere." Master of woodcraft. Employed in 1916 by the Stillmans at the Canadian home near Three Rivers. Because of his education and mentality ranked as more than a servant. At the end of summer season he was brought by the Stillmans to their country home at Pocantico Hills to teach woodcraft to the eldest son. That winter demonstrated sporting goods at Abercrombie and Fitch's Shop. Was at Canadian and New York homes often during Mr. Stillman's absence.

Beauvais, found in Canada within past few days, denied any intimate association with Mrs. Stillman. Declared his willingness to come to New York to testify when needed.

FLORENCE HELENA LEEDS, mother of Little Jay Leeds and, it is charged, by Mrs. Stillman, mistress of Mr. Stillman, he living with her under the name of Leeds. Small, slender, titian haired (this color artificial, it is said), and about twenty-five years old. Said to be the daughter of an uptown plumber named Lawlor, although, in spite of much evidence, Lawlor family denies connection. In 1916 was in the "Chicken Chorus" of "The Century Girl." In the following year she began attending performances in limousine and fur clad. Next appeared in a luxurious apartment in East 86th street as "Mrs. Franklyn Harold Leeds." Had motor car, maids, everything she wanted. Lived in a Long Island mansion, lately in Florida; vanished from there within the past few days.

The Mysterious Personage.

"FRANKLYN HAROLD LEEDS?" JAMES A. STILLMAN? which? Mrs. Stillman declares—and there seems to be substantial evidence tending at least to lend credence to her belief—that "Leeds" is none other than her husband. Description—exactly identical with that of Stilman. Registered as father of little Jay Leeds. Shown to have possessed the same Marmon motor car in 1918 (according to the factory number in the license application) that James A. Stillman possessed in 1919 and 1920. Said to have been recognized by chauffeurs and others as James A. Stillman.

Scenes of the Drama.

No. 270 Park av., the Stillman town house. Their estate at Pocantico Hills, adjoining that of John D. Rockefeller (Mrs. William G. Rockefeller and Mrs. Percy Rockefeller are both sisters of Stillman). Their hunting lodge at Three Rivers, Quebec.

No. 64 East 86th street, the first home of the "Leeds." "Rest Court," betwen Crane Neck and Stony Brook, L. I., their summer place. "The Love Nest," Miami Fla. The yacht "Modesty," lately lying off Miami.

A new portrait of Mrs. James A. Stillman; also a recent photograph of the Canadian guide with whom she is said to have been infatuated.

husband's allegations, had written him a letter in March, 1918, setting forth what he calls a "confession" of her relations with the guide Beauvais. Mrs. Stillman denies that the letter can be in any way interpreted as a "confession." She absolutely denies that she was ever guilty of misconduct with Beauvais or any other man.

Stillman's father died in March, 1918, and for several months afterward his eldest son was kept very busy attending to the affairs of the bank and of the estate. But early in 1919, after he had taken an apartment at 270 Park avenue and sold the house at 9 East Seventy-second, which had been the city home, Mr. and Mrs. Stillman went their separate ways. She remained at Pocantico Hills in the beautiful country place known as "Mondanne" and he lived in the city. The two youngest children remained with her and Anne and James Jr. lived with the father.

Allowed Wife $50,000 a Year.

At this time Stillman allowed his wife, it is said, $50,000 a year for her separate maintenance, but she soon declared that this was not nearly enough and not at all in keeping with his income, which was estimated at about $800,000 a year. He replied that income taxes, Federal and State, had so depleted his income that after allowing her $50,000 he had barely enough to support comfortably himself and the older children.

About this time Mrs. Stillman made inquiries concerning her husband's relations with Mrs. Florence H. Leeds, formerly an actress in the "Century Girls" show, and one of the "chicken chorus." She became convinced that her husband was spending a very large amount of money on the maintenance of Mrs. Leeds in an apartment at 64 East Eighty-sixth street, and that he was the father of a boy christened Jay Ward Leeds, born to Mrs. Leeds in September, 1918, shortly before the birth of Guy Stillman.

Soon thereafter Mrs. Stillman insisted upon a larger allowance, it is said, and in default of it caused many of her bills to be sent to Stillman for payment. They were paid. Then she rented an apartment at 910 Fifth avenue at an annual rental of $25,000 a year, it is said, and her daughter Anne, who was ready to make her debut and began to sympathize with her mother, took an apartment in the same building.

This state of affairs irked Stillman so much that he decided upon a drastic measure. Convinced that a mere suit for divorce would be fruitless, and determined to prevent the child Guy from sharing in the millions left in trust for his grandchildren by the elder Stillman, the bank president, after consultation with his attorneys, began the action not merely for a divorce, but to have the child declared illegitimate. In the divorce papers he named the guide, Ferd Beauvais, as corespondent and intimated that Beauvais was the father of the boy Guy.

Through the intermediary who had handled the Beauvais letters, Stillman came into possession of some of them, it is believed, and the latest of them were dated May, 1920.

Amended Answer to Suit.

Served with the divorce papers as she was stepping on board the Olympic, Mrs. Stillman was obliged to use the wireless to reach her attorneys, Cardwalader, Wiskersham and Taft, who had so far represented her in the separation arrangements with Stillman. The firm of Stanchfield & Levy was then engaged and on Mrs. Stillman's return from Europe last fall an active campaign was begun to defend the action, and assert the legitimacy of the boy.

Mrs. Stillman's attorneys learned that Mrs. Leeds had been living in a suite at the Plaza, that she had gone south to a villa at Miami, said to have been purchased for her by Stillman, and that the Stillman yacht, "Modesty," was constantly at her disposal. It was also learned that she had acquired a tenth interest in a $2,500,000 apartment house at 270 Park avenue, where she purposed to reside on her return from Florida this spring.

Mrs. Stillman then decided to take a more positive action than merely defend her husband's suit. She prepared and interposed an amended answer which contained for a second and "affirmative" defense, the charge that her husband had been guilty of misconduct with Mrs. Leeds and was the father of Mrs. Leeds' young son. Mrs. Stillman does not directly ask for a decree of divorce. But she does present such a state of affairs that, if they are established as facts to the satisfaction of the court, must prevent Stillman from obtaining a divorce, as he does not come into court with a clean record.

The divorce litigation may therefore be said to have reached a position of stalemate. Witnesses before Referee Gleason have already testified to certain alleged incidents which they say they observed at the Canadian camp, when Mrs. Stillman and the guide Beauvais were there. Mrs. Stillman is prepared to prove that her husband has gone under the alias of "Franklin Harold Leeds," as the supposed husband of Mrs. Leeds, and it has been revealed that he took out an automobile license under that name. Under such circumstances it is expected that the referee will report that neither party is entitled to a divorce.

There are rumors that the whole litigation may yet be abandoned and that later on Mrs. Stillman, in Paris or elsewhere, will obtain a divorce in the conventional way.

Beauvais Declares He Was Only Employe in Stillman Case.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTREAL, March 26.—Ferd Beauvais, the French-Indian guide who is named by James A. Stillman, the New York banker, as co-respondent in his divorce action and as father of Mrs. Stillman's son, Guy, talked to a representative of the Post-Dispatch here today and reiterated his previous assertions that his relationship with the banker's wife was merely that of a trusted employe.

At the home of his friend, the Rev. J. A. DeTremblay, Beauvais declared the reason for his close association with Mrs. Stillman was that the banker neglected his wife and was so anxious to keep her at a distance that he isolated her in the Canadian camp and in country places in the United States.

Therefore, declared the French-Indian, Mrs. Stillman was frequently without necessary assistance and companionship so he (Beauvais) looked after her in the capacity of steward, attorney and even nurse, even to the extent, he said, that her children felt "they knew no other father."

On one of the frequent occasions when Mrs. Stillman was away from her husband, Beauvais said, one of her children came ill. He was called upon to use his knowledge of medicine (the plain remedies that woodcraft teaches), and he did so successfully, thereafter becoming such a favorite with the three children that they looked upon him as "the man of the house."

Beauvais intimated that the attorneys representing Mrs. Stillman would bring out all these facts when the divorce action comes to trial, if it ever does.

The French-Indian asserted—and so did Mr. De Tremblay—that he was the scion of a noble French family, with but a trace of Indian blood.

DOCTORS TO URGE HYDE TO VETO TWO BILLS

Hospital Directors Join Protest Against Medical Licensure and Education Measures.

About 30 St. Louis physicians, laysentatives of organizations interested in public health and others will go to Jefferson City Tuesday to join similar delegations from Kansas City, St. Joseph and other towns in the State in asking Gov. Hyde to veto two bills affecting medical licensure and education which were passed by the Legislature.

The Governor announced yesterday that he would receive the delegation after Dr. Nathaniel Allison, dean of the Washington University School of Medicine, and Dr. Hanau W. Loeb, dean of the St. Louis University School of Medicine, had informed him that they preferred to state their objections to the bills rather than submit them in writing, as the Governor had suggested.

One bill, introduced by Senator Ralph of St. Louis County, strikes the word "reputable" from the present law requiring candidates for medical licenses to be graduates of reputable medical schools. This bill, in the opinion of the profession, would foster the establishment of "diploma mills" and plunge Missouri to the bottom of the list of States in medical education.

The other bill, introduced by Senator Gray, compels hospitals to open their doors to any licensed practitioner of whatever school. Some hospital directors have said that would prefer to close their institutions rather than comply with such an act. They regard it as destroying all effort at standardization and subsequent improved service to the patient-public.

The Jackson County Medical Association, which last week approved a statement of the St. Louis Medical Society condemning the bills, notified the St. Louis organization yesterday that it also would send a delegation to the Governor on Tuesday. Several physicians from other cities in the State have been notified of the hearing and some had replied that they would be on hand.

The Chamber of Commerce has asked the Governor to veto the bills and individual citizens have been telegraphing and writing him of their similar desire.

BAKER DECLARES PRISONERS ARE FOUR WHO ROBBED HIM

Also Identifies Wife of One as Woman Who Waited in Front of Home.

August Kraft, a baker, of 4223 North Broadway, yesterday identified four men as the robbers who overpowered and robbed him of $33 and a jug of whisky, Friday night, and also identified the wife of one of them as the woman who waited in front of his house during the robbery, and afterward departed with the men.

The prisoners are Clarence Pustmueller, 25 years old, and his wife, Margaret, 26, of 1314 St. Louis avenue; Elmer Pustmueller, 28, of 2815 North Fourteenth street, brother of Clarence; James Gillon, 40, who rooms at Elmer's house, and Robert Kuyath, 28, of 3839 Nebraska avenue.

The four men knocked at Kraft's back door. When he opened it they said they were revenue inspectors, and seized him, disarming him, for he had a revolver in his hand. Then they ransacked the house. Kraft yesterday remembered that Mrs. Margaret Pustmueller was in his baker shop, next door, recently, when he remarked that he had some whisky. The Pustmueller brothers have been arrested numerous times. All four men are held for the Federal authorities, on a charge of representing themselves as Federal officers. Mrs. Pustmueller also is held.

CHILD HEALTH COUNCIL SEEKS TOWN TO CONDUCT EXPERIMENT

National Organization Would Aid in Raising Children in Small City.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Does any American city or town of between 20,000 and 30,000 population need help in raising its children? If so, the National Child Health Council, so it announced today, is willing to aid to the extent of $200,000.

The proposed aid will be administered over a period of five years in such a way as to obtain "as nearly as possible ideal conditions for the development of its children, from babyhood to adolescence, into sturdy, happy, useful citizens."

The town, the Town Health Council has decided, should be located in a county of between 50,000 and 60,000 population with the area outside of the city agricultural. The city itself should have a normal percentage of its population engaged in manufacturing.

The committee which will recommend the town to be chosen for the experiment is headed by Dr. Richard A. Bolt of Baltimore, general director of the American Child Hygiene Association.

GANZ IS SELECTED AS NEW DIRECTOR OF THE SYMPHONY

Appointment of Swiss Pianist to Succeed the Late Max Zach as Leader Formally Announced.

HE ACCEPTS PLACE FOR THREE YEARS

Subscribers Asked to Sign Guarantee Fund for That Period—Leader to Reside in St. Louis.

The selection of Rudolph Ganz, noted Swiss pianist, to succeed the late Max Zach as leader of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, was announced yesterday by the officers and Board of Managers of the Symphony Society. Ganz's appointment is for three years.

It was announced by the board that Ganz had indicated his willingness to accept the appointment.

The Symphony Society gave out this statement, signed by John Fowler, its president:

"At a meeting of the officers and Board of Management of the St. Louis Symphony Society, 21 members in attendance, it was voted to invite Rudolph Ganz to be the director of the orchestra for the next three years.

Tribute Paid to Ganz.

"Among the few piano soloists of international fame, Rudolph Ganz is notable for his breadth of culture, his deep comprehension of the beauties of music, and his power to bring understanding and enjoyment to the audience. He will be a trustworthy and inspiring leader for music in St. Louis. He is willing to step aside from a career of fame and profit as a piano soloist in order to 'play upon the noblest instrument of all—the living orchestra,' as he expresses it.

"He will make his home in St. Louis after his many years of travel and he plans to devote himself to the musical interests of our city.

"Mr. Ganz cannot leave the concert stage and settle down in St. Louis with our orchestra unless he can be assured of the continuance of the orchestra during his three-year contract. It is therefore necessary to sign up the guarantee fund for three years at once and we expect the public to co-operate.

"All citizens who are now contributing to the guarantee fund will be asked to sign up for three years and to increase their contributions, where possible. There must be many others who will wish to sustain the orchestra under Rudolph Ganz; we ask them to send in their names to the Symphony Club, University Club Building. Let each citizen appraise the value of the orchestra to this community, and act."

Piano School Is Planned.

It is known that Ganz plans the opening in St. Louis of a "master school" of pianism, to be operated in summer, between the regular concert seasons. He operated a school of this kind in Kansas City last year and now has a similar school for very advanced pupils in Chicago.

First Appearance as Conductor While Pupil of Prof. Urban.

Ganz was born in Zurich, Switzerland nearly 44 years ago, and is a Swiss citizen. He married an American, and his 17-year-old son was born in this country, where the pianist has lived for nearly 20 years. His family contained musicians for four or five generations back; two of his cousins were intimate friends of Wagner.

As a youth Ganz studied piano and violoncello, and made his public debut at the age of 10 as a performer on the latter instrument. In a scuffle with a boy friend, his violoncello, a valuable one, was smashed, and this accident, Ganz says, determined his career as a piano virtuoso. He studied at the conservatories of Zurich and Strassbourg, and afterward with Ferrucio Busoni in Berlin. His teacher in composition was Heinrich Urban of Berlin.

It was while he was a pupil of Prof. Urban that Ganz made his first appearance as a conductor. He had written his one and only symphony, in E Minor, of which he says that the first movement was reminiscent of Brahms and the andante of Franck; the scherzo he declares was original, while "the finale was inspired by the crash of hammers on steel rails as workmen toiled on the street railways of Berlin. The noise awoke the young composer at night; he rose, turned on the light, wrote down the theme of the hammers, in fourths, and went back to bed.

This realism proved too much for Urban, who threw down the baton at rehearsal. Ganz took it, although he had never directed an orchestra, went through the rehearsal, and conducted the public performance the next day. His work pleased one woman, at least, for she gave him a silver wreath. This was in April, 1900.

Ganz's experience as a conductor has been spasmodic. Some 12 years ago he directed three or four concerts of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra at the Chicago Musical College; at a Sunday "pop" concert in St. Paul he conducted his "Concertstueck," and a year ago, in New York, he directed the Philharmonic Orchestra while a player-piano reproduced his own interpretation of Liszt's pianoforte concerto in E-flat.

Noted Swiss Pianist Chosen to Direct Symphony Orchestra

RUDOLPH GANZ.

He has spent many years in teaching, and there are several St. Louisans who have been his pupils. He has made many tours of Europe and America, playing with the leading orchestras, and is regarded as a musician of sound scholarship. He has also been active as a composer, chiefly in the modern vein, and remarks that Leopold Godowsky told him he had a gift "for grotesque music." The work of which he is proudest is his Symphonic Variations on a theme by Brahms, taken from the song, "Der Schmied."

His tendencies as a composer are revealed in the titles of some of his "Musical Paintings," Op. 30, which include: "Serenade of an Anemic Person," "Cigarette Smoke," "The Three Rubes" and "Queer Parade." One of his piano pieces is called "Mosquito." He has written numbers for violin and piano, a song cycle, "On the Lake," for voice and piano, to poems by Elizabeth A. Reynolds, and settings for eight English poems by James T. Whedon.

HOPE STILL ENTERTAINED FOR SAFETY OF ARMY BALLOONISTS

Four Days Have Passed Since Five Men Left Pensacola Station.

By the Associated Press.

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 26.—Although four days have passed since Chief Quartermaster George K. Wilkenson and four companions, including Russell V. Elend of Belleville, Ill., left the naval air station here in a free balloon, officials at the station still were hopeful tonight of the safety of the five men.

Search of the entire area to which the wind might have blown the craft has been made by dirigibles, seaplanes and eagle boats without success. Failure to find any traces of the balloon was taken by station officials as indicating that the craft either drifted to some unfrequented spot or that the men were picked up by some fishing boats. As the duration of the average fishing cruise is three weeks, officials said they would not abandon hope until the end of such a period.

INDUSTRIAL FOREMEN CLASS VISITS POST-DISPATCH PLANT

Part of Instruction of Missouri University Conducted in St. Louis Twice a Week.

The class in industrial foremen training of Missouri State University was taken through the Post-Dispatch plant last night by Bernard W. Noel of 4874 Fountain avenue, extension instructor of industrial arts of the University, as part of the instruction in the course.

The class is composed of 19 foremen and men eligible for foremen, employed in St. Louis plants, and is instructed Monday and Wednesday nights by Noel at Central High School. The instruction was made possible by the Smith-Hughes act, passed by Congress in 1917, which provided federal aid for industrial, agricultural and home economics instruction for persons with education below college grades.

Couple Married in Hospital.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, March 26.—Miss Eva Maude Corthell, 19 years old, was married late last night in the presence of hospital doctors and nurses to John F. McCarthy, who is believed to be dying from a bullet wound received during a saloon quarrel last Thursday when John B. (Larry) McLean, a former major league baseball catcher, was killed.

COLLIE CLUB GIVES ANNUAL BENCH SHOW

Howgill Rival, Owned by Mrs. Nat Goldstein, Is Pronounced Best Dog in Show.

The twenty-first specialty bench show of the St. Louis Collie Club was given yesterday afternoon at 2201 Washington avenue. There were 76 entries, eight of which were absent. The club gave $50 in cash prizes and individuals gave $75.

Howgill Rival, a $1000 dog belonging to Mrs. Nat Goldstein, was pronounced the best dog in the show and won a $10 prize offered by Mrs. Goldstein, a $5 prize by P. M. Murphy of 4045 Cottage avenue for the best male in the open class, and the blue ribbon in that class and in the open class for sable or sable and white dogs. Piebald Perfecto, second in the male winner class, owned by Murphy, won $28 in prizes and blue ribbons for the male futurities, which were entered soon after birth.

Sterling Laund Lumiere, owned by Edwin L. Pickhardt of Pewaukee, Wis., won first in the female winners' class and was awarded blue ribbons in the open and open tri-color classes for females and a $15.15 cash prize. George D. Dodd's Kohlorca Betty was second in the female winners' class, and took firsts in the futurity, American-bred and limit classes for bitches and $15.50 in cash.

Other winners were as follows: Colhour Queen, belonging to Thomas Paterson of Chicago, blue ribbons in the female puppies, red ribbons in the female futurities and limits, and a $15.50 cash prize; Tazewell Trounce, belonging to Dr. O. P. Bennett of Washington, Ill., first in the male novices, second in the futurities, puppies, American-breds, and limits, and a cash prize of $15.50; Tazewell Trinity, of the same owner, first among the female novices, second among the puppies, third among the futurities, and a $6.50 cash prize. Buell Farm King, belonging to Mrs. L. R. Buell of Lake Geneva, Wis., second in the novice and the open for sable or sable and white dogs, third in the futurity, puppy, American-bred, and limit classes, and a $4 cash prize; Tazewell Theta, owned by Dr. Bennett, first in the open for sable or sable and white females and and fourth in the open for females.

RESCUERS FAIL TO GET MAN'S BODY FROM RIVER DES PERES

Police and Citizens Thwarted by Flood in Stream Following Early Morning Rain.

The body of a man was observed early yesterday at three different places in the River des Peres while that stream was bankful from one-half inch rain that fell between 1:30 and 3 a. m.

Police made two unsuccessful attempts to bring the body to shore, and two citizens failed also. It was last observed at Sulphur avenue. Police of the Carondelet district watched at the bank near the river's mouth for several hours, but did not see the body.

Insurance Bureau Issues Warning.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The War Risk Insurance Bureau sent out a warning tonight to all former service men that their wartime or term insurance must be converted into permanent policies before March 3, 1926.

MUSIC MEMORY TEST RULES ARE ADOPTED

Public School Committee Adopts Scale of Points for Deciding the Winners.

Instructions and rules governing the sectional and final tests of pupils who participate in the music memory test now being conducted in the public schools have been worked out by the Supervisory Committee in charge and were mailed to principals of all schools yesterday.

According to the schedule the following points will be considered in the determination of winners: Correct naming of the composition, four points; naming of composer, three points. Anything of interest the pupil may say regarding the composition, three points. The Supervisory Committee also reduced the number of compositions from 40 to 30, because of the difficulty experienced in some cases in getting the music and records.

The music memory test is a competition in which the children of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades will be required to identify from memory a selected list of classics by name and composer. More than 15,000 pupils in these grades will participate in the preliminary or sectional test which is scheduled to take place April 18. The intervening time will be spent in preparation by pupils. The winners of the sectional test will meet later in some large auditorium for the final test. Details of this final test are now being worked out by the Supervisory Committee.

The test is being conducted under the general direction of the Supervisory Committee of the music department of the Board of Education, assisted by principals and teachers.

The revised list of 30 selections with name of composer are as follows:

1. Minuet in G, Beethoven.
2. Humoresque, Dvorak.
3. Pilgrim's Chorus (Tannhauser), Wagner.
4. Hark! Hark! the Lark, Schubert.
5. Largo, Handel.
6. Spring Song, Mendelssohn.
7. Lullaby, Brahms.
8. Melody in F, Rubenstein.
9. Soldiers' Chorus (Faust), Gounod.
10. Marche Slave, Tschaikowski.
11. All Through the Night, Welsh Folk Song.
12. Swanee River, American Folk Song.
13. Barcarolle (Tales of Hoffman), Offenbach.
14. Sextette (Lucia de Lammermoor), Donizetti.
15. Miserere (Il Trovatore), Verdi.
16. Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms, Irish Folk Song.
17. Annie Laurie, Scotch Folk Song.
18. From the Land of the Sky Blue Water, Cadman.
19. Amaryllis (Rir Louis XIII), French.
20. The Swan, Saint-Saens.
21. To a Wild Rose, MacDowell.
22. Narcissus, Nevin.
23. Morning, Grieg.
24. The Death of Ase, Grieg.
25. Anitra's Dance, Grieg.
26. In the Hall of the Mountain King, Grieg.
27. William Tell—At Dawn, Rossini.
28. William Tell—The Storm, Rossini.
29. William Tell—The Calm, Rossini.
30. William Tell—Finale, Rossini.

H. MAX STEINDEL TO PLAY HIS OWN GAVOTTE TODAY

Symphony 'Cellist's Composition Said to Be Sprightly and Tuneful—Others on Program Today.

H. Max Steindel, first 'cellist of the Symphony Orchestra, will appear in a new role at the Odeon this afternoon—that of composer. A piece of his for the violoncello, a Gavotte, will have its first public performance. It is said to be sprightly and tuneful.

Michel Gusikoff, concertmaster of the Orchestra, and Mrs. David Kriegshaber, pianist, will take part in the program, which is a sort of extension of the Symphony "Pop" season. The two most pretentious numbers will be the Vivaldi-Nachez concerto in G minor, for violin, and the Andante and Scherzo from Mendelssohn's trio in D minor for violin, violoncello and piano. Steindel and Mrs. Kriegshaber are to offer a "Duo Brilliante," by Gregoir and Servais.

Gusikoff's solo number will include two of especial interest—"Air Triste," by Dirk Foch, recently guest conductor with the Symphony Orchestra; and "From the Cane Brake," a negro spiritual, by Samuel Gardner, who conducted his symphonic poem, "New Russia," at last Sunday's popular concert. Other numbers by Gusikoff will be Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Hymn to the Sun," the Porpora-Kreisler Menuett, and Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen."

Steindel's solo group consists of his own Gavotte, Bruch's "Kol Nidrei," and the second mazurka and "Tarantelle" of Popper. He will play upon the "Ruggieri" violoncello, which is dated Cremona, 1600, and which was loaned to him by John Hornsteiner of Chicago, a well-known collector of musical instruments.

Peggy Marsh's Claim Paid.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Final settlement of the $400,000 estate of Henry Field, grandson of Marshall Field and brother of Marshall Field III, was made in Probate Court today. The final accounting showed the $100,000 claim of Peggy Marsh, an actress by whom Henry Field had a son, Henry Anthony Marsh, had been paid. The claim had been withdrawn, but Marshall Field III assumed the contract and paid Miss Marsh the money.

$1,000,000,000 ERROR IN STATE TAX VALUES

Tax Commission Blunder in Adding Figures on Town Lots Announced by Auditor.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 26.—The $1,000,000,000 error in the Tax Commission's estimate of the value of town lots in the State, probably will result in an additional tax burden on the farmers of the State. The reason for this is that the State Board of Equalization had planned to scale down all of the items in the commission's estimate so as to reduce the grand total valuation from $6,416,880,737 to approximately $5,250,000,000. Had the board been able to follow this plan, the reduction being approximately 20 per cent, this would have afforded relief to taxpayers in rural counties, where valuations have been increased in some instances three and four times. Now, however, this will be virtually impossible in view of the assertion of Gov. Hyde that, even with a 10-cent levy for State purposes, there is some doubt as to the State being able to collect all the revenues that will be needed.

Board's Tax Rate Rejected.

The Board of Equalization, basing its action on the Tax Commission's original estimated total of $6,416,880,737, asked the Legislature to fix a State levy of 9 cents on the $100 valuation. The Legislature refused to do this, and fixed a levy of 10 cents. When this was done, State Treasurer Thompson announced that the board had virtually decided to fix the total valuation at $1,060,000,000 less than the Tax Commission's total.

Now, with the discovery of the error, cutting $1,000,000,000 from the total on one item alone, the Board of Equalization is faced with the task of readjusting the valuations so as to bring in the amount required for State purposes.

The error disorganizes the work already done by the State Board of Equalization, Gov. Hyde said to a Post-Dispatch correspondent. "It is extremely fortunate for the State," he said, "that the Legislature did not accept the board's recommendation that the tax levy be fixed at 9 cents on the $100 valuation, instead of 10 cents, as the Legislature decided. The levy last year was 15 cents on the $100 valuation.

Tax Rate Must Stand.

"It is impossible now to change the rate of taxation fixed by the Legislature, but it is my opinion that the revenue will be as large as it was last year. The State Board of Equalization has the authority to increase or decrease any estimates made by the Tax Commission."

The mistake was discovered by John T. Waddill, income tax supervisor and general revenue man in State Auditor Hackmann's office. He reported it to Hackmann, who notified Gov. Hyde, who convened the State Board of Equalization.

The total taxable wealth of the State under the assessment made in 1920 was $2,694,567,460.83. The Tax Commission's estimate this year based on actual property valuation, was $6,416,880,737. Of this sum the valuation of town lots was fixed at $2,803,618,655. The $1,000,000,000 error reduces the town lot valuation total to $1,803,618,655, and the grand total of all taxable wealth to $5,416,880,737. The State Board of Equalization has reduced this total to about $5,250,000,000.

SCIENTIST REPORTS OBTAINING AN ALMOST PERFECT VACUUM

Chamber So Completely Emptied That Electricity Cannot Pass Through It.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 26.—Prof. Orin Tugman of the Physics Department of the University of Utah announced last night that he had obtained the closest approach to a perfect vacuum that ever has been recorded.

This vacuum, he said, is too thin for even the passage of electricity. The American Association for the Advancement of Science furnished the funds for the experiment. Prof. Tugman claimed a vacuum in which there is a pressure of only .000,000,02 pound per square inch can be obtained by the apparatus which he used. The apparatus consists of two pumps. The first is an oil pump, and is capable of producing a vacuum of .000,002 pound per square inch. A tube is then connected with a mercury vapor pump or aspirator. The mercury in this is boiled and the vapor passes through a nozzle sucking out the molecules of air.

MAN REPORTS THAT HE SAW BOY FALL IN RIVER AND DROWN

Scene Was Foot of Branch Street—Victim Known as "Plymouth."

The police were informed yesterday that an unidentified boy had fallen off a pile in the Mississippi River at the foot of Branch street and had drowned.

George Grothmann of 2506 Hebert street said that at 2 o'clock he saw a number of boys playing on piles in the river which protruded 25 feet above the water when one of them fell into the river and failed to reappear. He reported that the drowned boy's companions knew him only as "Plymouth" and described him as being between 9 and 12 years old, weighing 80 pounds and being about 4 feet 2 inches in height. He wore a dark cap, black knee pants and black shoes and stockings. The body was not recovered.

41 Organizations Favor Daylight Saving Plan

Sixty-Five Thousand Petitions in Favor of the Pending Bill Received—Building Trades and Open-Air Theaters Oppose It.

Forty-one commercial, civic and labor organizations, with a membership of more than 100,000, and the employes of 187 industrial plants, retail stores and wholesale houses, have indorsed daylight saving for St. Louis, as provided for in a bill pending before the Board of Aldermen, as the result of the campaign of the past week, carried on by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Sixty-five thousand petitions were received during the week at the headquarters, 707 Locust street, from industrial plants, business houses and individuals. It is estimated that 20,000 signatures were received at the department store booths.

Among the organizations which have indorsed it are the Chamber of Commerce, with a membership of more than 5000; the Travelers' Protective League, with a membership of 2000 commercial travelers; the Teamsters' Joint Executive Council, which controls 14 locals, and has a membership of 7000; the Junior Chamber of Commerce, representing over 3000 young business men, and many others.

The petitions and indorsements are to be presented to the Board of Aldermen prior to the public hearing set for Wednesday. Representatives of the organizations indorsing the plan and large employers will appear at the hearing to advocate the plan.

250,000 Signatures Expected.

O. F. Richards, chairman of the Daylight Saving Committee, expects to have 250,000 signatures to the petitions before they are presented to the Aldermen.

"The large number of signatures which are being voluntarily given seems to show an overwhelming majority in favor of the movement," Richards said.

"The working people benefit from it more than anyone else, as there is an hour more of darkness in the morning for sleeping under the daylight saving plan, than under regular time. The time to get up is fixed by the clock, so if the sun rises at 4 a. m. by regular time, it will not rise until 5 a. m. by the daylight saving plan. Therefore one hour more of darkness will be available in the early morning hours for sleeping."

Richards has obtained figures on the question of temperature. They cover the last 11 years, and show that during July and August it averaged 1 degree cooler at 10 p. m. than it did at 9 p. m. and that it was 2.1 degrees cooler at 11 p. m. than it was at 9 p. m. In the last four years there was a change of only 4 degrees in temperature during the hottest days of the normal months, between the hours of 7 p. m. and 11 p. m.

Open Air Theaters Against Plan.

Richards said the only opposition to the plan now evident was that of the motion picture interests operating open air theaters.

The registration headquarters will remain open until Tuesday. The booths in the department stores closed yesterday.

The Building Trades Council, representing 85 unions with a membership of about 12,000, is opposed to daylight saving. It has sent the following letter to President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen:

"The subject of daylight saving was discussed at our regular meeting on Wednesday, March 23, 1921, and it was the consensus of opinion of the delegates representing our affiliated organizations that inasmuch as the employers are demanding increased efficiency from the workmen engaged in the building industry, it is important that those workmen are entitled to the rest that they now receive in the cool hours of the morning under the present observance of standard time, and which is more beneficial to them in the hot summer months, when it is impossible to obtain that rest by retiring an hour earlier during hot nights and arising an hour earlier in the cool mornings, this Building Trades Council representing 12,000 building trades workmen went on record by an overwhelming vote as being opposed to any bills to establish daylight saving by moving the clock ahead one hour, and we sincerely hope the members of the Board of Aldermen will not pass this bill."

CENTRAL HIGH FACULTY MEMBER TO CLEVELAND

Clarence Stratton Resigns to Become Director of English in Ohio City High Schools.

Clarence Stratton of 4477 Pershing avenue, for 17 years an instructor in the department of English at Central High School, has resigned that position and also has given up his place as lecturer on public speaking at the Washington University's extension school, to become director of English in the High Schools of Cleveland. His resignation, forwarded to the Superintendent of Instruction yesterday, becomes effective April 5.

He came to St. Louis in 1903 following his graduation from the University of Pennsylvania, where he had attained the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. He has written several books on public speaking, has edited a public school textbook of American speeches, has contributed numerous articles to magazines and has written several one-act plays for Little Theaters, one of which was produced by the Thyrsus Club of Washington University. In 1919 he wrote for the Post-Dispatch a series of criticisms on plays then running in New York and Chicago.

His salary as teacher at Central High School is $3200 a year. His salary in his new position has not been announced, but it is known that it will be about $5000, which is the salary of an assistant superintendent of schools here.

His resignation has again called the attention of the school authorities to the need for more adequate salaries to retain the most able members of the teaching force. It will be recalled that in the past months St. Louis has lost the services of several high ranking officials of the public schools, including an assistant superintendent of instruction, several high school principals and assistant principals, as well as a number of high school teachers because of the comparatively low rate of pay in the schools here.

FREE RAILROAD RIDES LOST TO BLIND OR CLERGYMEN

Conflict in Bills Passed by Legislature Discovered in Governor's Office.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 26.—A conflict in the provisions of two bills passed by the Legislature, one of which has been signed by Gov. Hyde, will deprive either ministers or blind and needy people of free transportation on the railroads in the State.

Senate bill 45, permitting railroads to issue reduced or free transportation to members of the clergy, passed both houses and was signed by the Governor, March 19. As the measure carried an emergency clause, it became effective on the date the Governor affixed his signature. It was discovered today that house bill 401, which also passed the two legislative branches, repeals the section of the statute which was amended by the Senate bill. The House bill is now before the Governor. If he signs it, he sets aside the law which gives ministers reduced or free transportation. If he vetoes it, the blind and indigent persons must continue to pay full rates to travel on railroads in Missouri. Gov. Hyde has not determined what he will do.

BYRNES AND KIEL TO SPEAK EVERY NIGHT THIS WEEK

William K. Bixby, Republican and Campaign Fund Contributor, Announces He Is for Byrnes for Mayor

OTHER REPUBLICANS PLEDGE SUPPORT

Women Supporters of Kiel Will Meet at Statler Thursday—Senator Spencer to Speak.

Mayor Kiel, Republican candidate for a third term, and James W. Byrnes, Democratic nominee for Mayor, running on a nonpartisan platform of business administration, will address nightly meetings this week, the final week of campaigning before the city election of April 5.

William K. Bixby of 4965 Lindell boulevard, a Republican, and one of the largest contributors to the Republican campaign fund in past campaigns, declared, in a letter received yesterday by Byrnes, that he would support Byrnes.

"I am for you for Mayor," he wrote, "and have so announced."

John F. Shepley, president of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., a Democrat, also wrote yesterday, assuring Byrnes of his support. Fred H. Swift, an Olive street druggist, and a Republican who was active in Robert Burkham's primary campaign, has sent Byrnes a pledge of support which covers "me and my family."

Bakewell Heads Finance Committee.

Paul Bakewell Jr., a Republican, who was active for Burkham in the primary, has accepted the chairmanship of the Finance Committee of the Byrnes-for-Mayor Nonpartisan Committee.

Other members of the Finance Committee are Harold Bixby, Joseph W. Bray, George Marion Brown, Robert H. Keiser, Claude Kennerly and Ley P. Rexford, Republicans; Harry L. Block, Murray Carleton, L. Wade Childress, Sam W. Fordyce, Henry C. Garneau, Arthur C. Garrison, Richard D. Hatton, John L. Johnston, W. W. Le Beaume, Joseph Lumaghi, S. B. McPheeters, George D. Markham, Dr. George H. Owen, Edward Papin, W. Julius Polk, George M. von Schrader and Frank O. Watts.

Thomas L. Anderson, former Circuit Judge, is chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Byrnes-for-Mayor organization. The meetings announced for this week, at all of which Byrnes will speak, are:

Tomorrow night—Kordenbrock Hall, Southwest avenue and Fifty-ninth street.

Tuesday night—Tower Grove Turner Hall, Grand avenue and Juniata street; Delvan Hall, Delmar boulevard and Vandeventer avenue; negro meeting, Kicker's Hall, North Market street and Newstead avenue.

Howard, 5501 Chamberlain nue, for women of precincts 8 to inclusive; Friday afternoon, tea Mrs. Nelson Cunliff's home, 5819 es avenue, for women of precincts 18 to 24, inclusive; Saturday rnoon, tea at home of Mrs. Chas. 26 Portland place, for women recincts 1 to 7, inclusive.

WOMAN WHO SUCCEEDS HUSBAND AS RECORDER

GERHARD SISTERS PORTRAIT

MRS. CHARLES F. JOY.

WIFE FILLS VACANCY CAUSED BY RECORDER JOY'S RESIGNATION

Mrs. Charles F. Joy Named by Governor, Will Hold Office Till End of 1922.

Mrs. Charles F. Joy, who has been appointed Recorder of Deeds of St. Louis, by Gov. Hyde, is the first woman to be placed in charge of an important public office in this city.

Mrs. Joy was appointed after the resignation of her husband, who has been one of the best known men in political life here. He was for five terms member of Congress from the Eleventh District, in North St. Louis. He is now in Mullanphy Hospital, suffering from cancer of the throat, and it was upon his request, backed by that of politicians of both factions of the local Republican party, that the Governor appointed Mrs. Joy after he had resigned. The term of the appointment is until after the election of November, 1922, and the salary is $4000 a year.

Mrs. Joy was Mrs. Washington M. Ryer, widow of a San Francisco physician, when she met and married Congressman Joy in Washington, during his first term in the House 26 years ago. She is now in her sixtieth year. She said yesterday that she intended to retain all the men who were employed in the Recorder's office under her husband, this being his wish. She has been employed in the Recorder's office since her husband's health began to fail, nearly a year ago.

CONTINUANCES IN 28 CASES, 40 CASES DISPOSED OF IN WEEK

Filing of 25 New Cases Means Decided Step Was Taken Toward Clearing of Dockets.

Continuances were granted in 28 cases in the three criminal divisions of the Circuit Court last week. On the other hand, 40 cases were disposed of, and only 25 new cases were assigned, the net result being a decided step toward such clearance of the dockets as will make possible more prompt trial hereafter.

Ten of the continuances were at the request of the State, six by consent, six at the request of defendants and six by the Court. Ten were in Division No. 10, four in No. 11 and 14 in No. 12. In nthe cases continued by the Court both sides were ready for trial, but the time was insufficient.

Five of the cases continued in No. 10 were against the same defendants, and the same situation was true of six cases continued in No. 12.

The courts disposed of cases as follows: Seven in No. 10, 19 in No. 11 and 14 in No. 12. There were two pleas of guilty in No. 10, six in No. 11 and 11 in No. 12. There were four jury trials in each of Nos. 10 and 11 and two in No. 12. One case was quashed, and 10 were nolle prossed. The majority of the cases nolle prossed were against defendants who had been convicted and sentenced on other charges.

ENGINEER'S BODY ON WAY HERE

Burial of A. F. Aubuchon, Killed in France, to Be at Chaffee, Mo.

The body of Andrew F. Aubuchon, private in F Company, Twelfth Engineers (Railway), who was killed in France Dec. 22, 1917, will be brought from New York to St. Louis en route to Chaffee, Mo., his home. Members of the Aubuchon-Dennison Post, No. 186, of the American Legion, and of his regiment will take charge of the body while it is here.

Aubuchon was killed while performing his duties as a fireman on a narrow-guage railway line near Lieramont, on the Somme front. He was 26 years old at the time of his death. He was formerly a fireman on the river and Cape division of the Frisco Railroad. Burial will be at Chaffee.

Robbers Get $15,000 Payroll.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Five men who shot Jaelmer Johnson, messenger for a city express company, escaped today after dropping a $5000 pay roll, which they had seized from Johnson. Earlier today four bandits held up the paymaster of an engineering firm and escaped in a taxicab with a $15,000 pay roll. Three other automobile robbers held up Harry Rubenstein, a broker, and took jewelry valued at $6500, and drove away in a large touring car.

URGES DEMOCRATS TO 'MAKE UP' WITH REED

A. L. McCawley Tells State Secretary Party Purged Self of Natural Democrats—the Irish.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 26.—In reply to a letter from Thomas H. Fisher of Marshall, secretary of the Democratic State Committee, asking for a contribution to help liquidate the party's $32,000 campaign deficit, A. L. McCawley, chairman of the Jasper County Democratic Committee and personal attorney for Gov. Hyde, today served notice on the Democrats that the party must rescind its repudiation of Senator Reed and win back the Irish.

McCawley also condemned the plans of Democratic State leaders to submit the Hyde administration measures to a vote of the people under the referendum. He said, "If the Democrats had come to the Legislature with an initiative punch the party would be in better shape today." He laments the fact that "the Democratic party at Joplin purged itself of Jim Reed and those natural-born Democrats—the Irish," and he expresses the hope that the "party does not now chase any referendum jack-o'-lanterns."

Bills Written by McCawley.

All the bills that the Democrats expect to submit under the referendum were written by McCawley for Gov. Hyde. McCawley admitted that he had approached a number of Democratic Senators during the session and asked them to support the Hyde measures in exchange for patronage.

McCawley's letter is in line with others that have gone out in the State from party leaders in an effort to consolidate the several factions for a drive on the Capital four years hence. The McCawley letter, in part, follows:

"Beyond a doubt the party debt should be paid. We can make no progress with unpaid bills outstanding and it is doubtful if the county committees can assume and pay the debt. * * *

Pleads for Harmony.

'As I see it, it is the first duty of a Democrat to acquiesce in the expressed will of the majority and quite a number of us painfully remember the result last November as something resembling a majority. Our hope lies not in blocking by the referendum the work of the General Assembly just adjourned, but in the possibility that its judgment may have been faulty, in which event we may reasonably expect reaction in our favor—otherwise we shall wait a time with patience before we again officially haunt the stately corridors and inhabit the spacious offices of the new State Capitol.

"It has been but a short while since at Joplin we with one stroke purged ourselves of Jim Reed, those natural-born Democrats, the Irish; and with them the control of the State House. Let's be done with hasty judgment. Let's pay the party debt, and set about the re-establishment of harmony within the party—the bringing together of men and women of all creeds, all races, and all walks of life, on the common platform of fundamental Democracy."

W. M. LEDBETTER APPOINTED SECRETARY BY LOUIS ALOE

Former Editorial Writer of Republic Selected by President of Board of Aldermen.

President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen has appointed William M. Ledbetter, former editor of the editorial page of the Republic, as his secretary, effective next Friday. Ledbetter, who lives at 5222 Waterman avenue, is secretary of the New Constitution Association of Missouri. He was engaged in newspaper work here more than 20 years, being managing editor of the Republic for several years prior to his position as chief editorial writer. He resigned Oct. 1, 1918, going to Arizona for his health.

Ledbetter is an independent in politics. He was formerly considered a Democrat. President Aloe said, "I appointed Mr. Ledbetter for his ability, and not considering what his politics may be." The position pays $181.50 a month, and the duties are not arduous. The president's secretary keeps his superior informed of the progress of legislation, watches measures before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and observes important legislation in other cities.

Ledbetter succeeds Edward Jutz, who has held the position more than a year, and will enter the real estate business next week.

PARLIAMENT MEMBER SOUGHT TO DEBATE IRISH QUESTION

Workers for Recognition of "Republic" Would Accept Recent Challenge of Pemberton Billing.

State officials of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic are seeking the whereabouts of Pemberton Billing, member of the English Parliament, who spoke at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday and the Rotary Club Thursday in support of England's attitude toward Ireland, a view to accepting the challenge of Billing to debate the Irish question.

Billing was registered at Hotel Statler early last week, but has since checked out, and Charles J. Dolan, secretary of the body working in behalf of Irish recognition said he desired to send the challenge after Billing through the newspapers. Dolan said Dr. R. Emmett Kane has been chosen to debate the question with Billing, and that friends of Irish freedom in St. Louis would eagerly embrace an opportunity to debate the Irish question at any time or place.

Facts About Nominees for Comptroller and Aldermen

RECORDS OF REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC SELECTIONS TO BE VOTED ON APRIL 5

Salary of Comptroller Is $8000 a Year for Four-Year Term and That for Members of Board of Aldermen Is $1800 a Year for a Like Term.

THE Post-Dispatch here presents facts concerning the Republican and Democratic candidates for Comptroller and members of the Board of Aldermen, from the 14 odd-numbered wards, in the election April 5.

The record of Mayor Kiel, Republican candidate for a third term, was presented in a full-page article in the Post-Dispatch Feb. 7. Facts regarding James W. Byrnes, Democratic candidate, who is making a nonpartisan campaign on a platform of business administration, have been printed, and the speeches and other utterances of both candidates have appeared from time to time. A statement of William M. Brandt, Socialist candidate, and his party platform, were printed Sunday, March 20.

The Comptroller is head of the Department of Finance, and receives a salary of $8000 a year. He serves, with the Mayor and President of the Board of Aldermen, on the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. He has a seat and a voice, but no vote, in the Board of Aldermen. He is chief accountant and auditor of the city, and has charge of all requisitions for supplies.

Members of the Board of Aldermen receive $1800 a year, and serve four-year terms, one-half the board being elected every two years. Voters of all wards vote for Aldermen for each ward, therefore the qualifications of all candidates for the Board of Aldermen are of interest to all voters. Eight of the 14 Republican candidates are now members of the board, seeking re-election.

Comptroller.

Republican.

Comptroller Louis Nolte, 1129 Penrose street. Is 49 years old; formerly in real estate business; elected Sheriff in 1907; elected Comptroller in 1917. Has given up private business interests since assuming office and has devoted his entire time to city's work, being usually at the city hall by 8:30 a. m. For several years one of the most active workers for the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival, as chairman of Food Purchasing Committee. Was renominated without opposition.

At the luncheon of the League of Women Voters, Feb. 8, Nolte recited a list of matters connected with his official term. He said he had reduced the expenses of his own department, in the first year of his incumbency, by $23,000, this being in part due to the abolition of the office of City Auditor under the new charter, and that he reduced the office force from 47 to 26 employes. Other matters which he mentioned were:

Reorganization of city automobile service, to stop joy-riding in city cars; purchase and cancellation of $4,562,000 of city bonds, of which more than one-half were purchased before maturity, effecting a saving estimated at $214,236; purchase from Sinking Fund of recent city bonds amounting to $3,793,000, with a saving in interest, during the life of the bonds, estimated at $1,000,000; purchase of Liberty Bonds to amount of $1,920,000 with sinking fund surplus; attempted to obtain higher interest rate from banks for city funds, and succeeded in getting rate raised from 2¼ to 2¾ per cent; tax rate so adjusted as to maintain $2.35 rate on the $100, until increase in school taxes and bonded debt.

Democratic.

Maj. James L. Barngrove, 6110 Waterman avenue, member of the firm of Barngrove & Specht, real estate dealers; member board of directors Real Estate Exchange. Is 47 years old; born in Indiana; has lived in St. Louis 34 years.

Was one of the organizers of the Fifth Missouri Regiment during the war and served with the Thirty-fifth Division overseas. Major of the Sixtieth Field Artillery Brigade, later placed in command of the 110th Ammunition Train. Was seriously wounded in the Argonne battle. Also fought in the Vosges Mountains and at St. Mihiel. He also served throughout the Spanish-American War with the First Missouri Regiment. First enlisted in the National Guard in 1896.

Barngrove says his policy will be, if elected, to handle the Comptroller's office on a business basis, and to eliminate politics. He believes in discharging all employes who are not 100 per cent efficient, and are holding their jobs through political influence. He has never held a public office or been a candidate before.

Board of Aldermen.

FIRST WARD.

Republican.

Alderman Edward L. Kuhs, 8538 Church road, real estate dealer, elected last November to fill unexpired term. Previously served for two years, by appointment of the Mayor, on City Board of Equalization, to review tax assessments. Since his election has attended all meetings of board and its Committees on Streets, Sewers and Wharves, and Engrossed and Enrolled Bills, of which he is a member. Was supported last summer by housecleaning element for membership in Republican State Committee from Tenth Congressional District, but was defeated.

Democratic.

Edward C. Mittrucker, 1024 Bittner street, Furniture dealer; 51 years old; born in St. Charles, and has lived in St. Louis 25 years and in the First Ward 15 years. Formerly foreman in upholstery department St. Louis Car Co.; has been in business for himself eight years. Member North St. Louis Business Men's Association. Placed on ticket by Democratic City Committee, after candidate named in primary, John M. Simons, had withdrawn.

THIRD WARD.

Republican.

Alderman William F. Niederluecke, 1901 Montgomery street, grocer; has served four years in board. Member Committees on Public Safety and Streets, Sewers and Wharves. Voted for passage of United Railways compromise ordinance of 1918, also for resolution approving Mayor Kiel's United Railways settlement in 1919. Voted for a bill permitting "Tony" Stuever's Highlands Fire Clay Co. to mine under a portion of Forest Park; later voted for its repeal.

Democratic.

John J. Brogan, 2904 North Twelfth street, wholesale candy jobber, 27 years old, and a native of St. Louis. Formerly a clerk in the State Automobile License Office. Attended St. Louis University. Served in Unit 309, Motor Transport Corps, for 15 months during the war.

FIFTH WARD.

Republican.

Alderman Edward W. Wiehe, 2033 Franklin avenue, furniture dealer. Has served six years in board; member Public Utilities Committee. Voted for United Railways compromise ordinance and for approval of Mayor Kiel's United Railways settlement. Has supported City Plan Commission's street opening and widening ordinances and other progressive legislation.

Democratic.

Edward J. O'Hare, 410 Morgan street, manager drayage company; 30 years old and a native of St. Louis. Attended St. Louis University School of Commerce and Finance. Has lived in the Fifth Ward 15 years.

SEVENTH WARD.

Republican.

Henry Wander, 1017 South Seventh street, sign painter, 59 years old; native of St. Louis, has lived in the ward 32 years; employed for past 18 years by J. W. O'Connell Sign Painting Co. Secretary of Mill Creek Valley Improvement Association, treasurer Madison School Patrons' Association. Member of the House of Delegates from 1897 to 1899. This was the House which passed the historic Central Traction bill in 1898 over Mayor Ziegenhein's veto, and Wander was one of the 25 members who voted for the bill, both before and after the Mayor vetoed it. The bill was then passed over the veto in the City Council by barely the number of votes needed for passage under the circumstances. The Post-Dispatch charged in its news columns, at the time, that bribe money had been used to pass the bill. Prosecuting officials then in office failed to take action, but in 1902, as part of the Folk boodle prosecutions, R. M. Snyder, chief promoter of the Central Traction bill, was tried for bribery, and F. G. Uthoff, one of the Councilmen who voted for the bill, testified that Snyder gave him a bribe. Wander has lately said, as to his vote on the Central Traction bill, that he was then inexperienced in matters of legislation, and that he did not receive any money or know of any money being used in connection with the bill. He said that, because of an earlier vote to sustain the Mayor in the veto of another franchise bill, he was thrown out of the ruling organization of the House, and that he then ceased to take an interest in legislation. "I don't even remember voting on the Central Traction bill," he said, "but I suppose I did if the record shows it. I do remember voting for the North and South bill, which came before the Central Traction bill, but when the Mayor vetoed it, I changed and voted to sustain him. For that, I was put out of the committees on which I had been serving, and the ruling combine ignored me from that time on. Whatever money may have been used by the Central Traction promoters, I didn't get any, and didn't know at the time that money was being used. Probably it was a mistake to vote for the bill after the Mayor vetoed it, but I think I would be less likely to make mistakes now, as I know more about public affairs than I did then." Wander was supported in the Republican primary by the Koeln faction, and defeated Alderman Weil, who had the Kiel support.

Democratic.

Edward H. Deffaa, 1208 Morrison avenue, president Southern Hay Exchange; 45 years old; born in the ward. Member of the last House of Delegates, from 1913 to 1915, from the Seventh Ward, and was one of the delegates who delayed the completion of the Free Bridge by holding out for the Alton & Mississippi proposal.

The Post-Dispatch of Feb. 6, 1914, said: "Deffaa, after announcing that he was in favor of the Reber approach to the Free Bridge, recently switched to the A. & M. approach. At the special election in August, 1912, the vote in the Seventh Ward was 1704 in favor of a bridge bond issue and 697 against it. The proposition as put to the voters at that time called for the Reber approach, which Delegate Deffaa now is opposing. The voters in the Seventh want to know: 'What's the matter with Deffaa?' Voters in the ward are at a loss to explain Deffaa's act in aligning himself with the obstructionists, as he was elected on a platform which called for the speedy completion of the bridge."

Deffaa was president of the Southern Feed Co., which went into bankruptcy in 1918, and was sent to jail for contempt of court, following his failure to heed a Federal Court order that he produce $1500, alleged to be assets of the company. After spending a night and day in jail, Deffaa turned over the money to the receiver for the company.

NINTH WARD.

Republican.

Alderman Martin D. Lohmann, 910 Lami street, teaming contractor. Has served six years. Voted for United Railways compromise ordinance and for approval of Mayor Kiel's United Railways settlement; also for passage and repeal of Stuever's Forest Park clay mining bill. Is a frequent visitor to Police Court in behalf of constituents.

Democratic.

Walter S. Ingram, 2317 South Broadway, owner of a restaurant. Born in Illinois; has lived in St. Louis and in the Ninth Ward for eight years. Is 37 years old. Member Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

ELEVENTH WARD.

Republican.

Alderman John A. Fett, 4416 South Broadway, retired blacksmith. Member of Committees on Streets, Sewers and Wharves and Public Safety. Voted for United Railways compromise ordinance and for approval of Mayor Kiel's United Railways settlement, also for passage and repeal of Stuever Forest Park clay mining bill. Actively opposed a bill increasing salaries of Aldermen from $1800 to $3600 a year, and declared that the pay of Aldermen as fixed by the charter was sufficient. The bill was killed after the Board of Estimate and Apportionment refused to approve it.

Democratic.

Louis J. Tichacek, 3616 South Grand avenue, retired master grainer, 64 years old; native of St. Louis. State Representative from the Second District, Forty-second General Assembly. Democratic candidate for Congress, Tenth District, in 1904. Unsuccessful candidate for Alderman in 1915. In 1913 sought Democratic nomination for City Register. The Tichacek family received much publicity several years ago through the fact that, while the father trained his nine sons in the painting business, Mrs. Tichacek trained girls working in her home to be wives for her sons. Three of the sons married girls trained in this manner.

THIRTEENTH WARD.

Republican.

Joseph R. Heckel, 4741 Alaska avenue, advertising solicitor St. Louis Times. Is 35 years old and a native of St. Louis. Member Real Estate Exchange and Carondelet Business Men's Association. Vice President Harding-Coolidge Republican Club of Thirteenth Ward. Won in primary over eight opponents, with support of Dr. A. H. Meyer, committeeman from the ward.

Democratic.

Travers A. Geisel, 3832 Flora boulevard; insurance broker; 44 years old; a native of St. Louis and has lived in the ward 22 years. Attended St. Louis University. Was an unsuccessful candidate for Justice of the Peace in the Ninth District in 1918.

FIFTEENTH WARD.

Republican.

Harry W. Uhlemeyer, 1848 Russell avenue, secretary and manager of a drayage company. Formerly shipping clerk for a roofing company. Is 28 years old and a native of St. Louis. President of South Broadway Athletic Club, which conducts boxing matches. Rented Welz's Garden and dance hall from Anheuser-Busch, Feb. 1 last, for a year, but says he has not taken an active part in its management.

Democratic.

James M. Ward, 2754 Chouteau avenue master plumber. Has been in business here 20 years. Is 39 years old; born in Illinois; has lived in St. Louis 33 years. Former vice president Chouteau Improvement Association.

SEVENTEENTH WARD.

Republican.

Alderman Thomas S. Watts, 3629 Laclede avenue, electrician. Elected last November to fill an unexpired term; received largest plurality among Republican city candidates, 58,518. Before his election, was employed by city lighting department as an inspector. Member of Public Welfare and Engrossed and Enrolled Bills Committee; has shown active interest in his duties.

Democratic.

John Keegan, 3028A Olive street, news agent; 36 years old; born in Ireland. Has lived in St. Louis 28 years and in the ward 12 years. Was unsuccessful candidate for State Representative from the Sixth District last November. Began his business career as a newsboy at Fourth and Pine streets.

NINETEENTH WARD.

Republican.

Alderman August H. Niederluecke, 2719 Glasgow avenue, oil salesman. Has served four years. As chairman of Public Welfare Committee he conducted recent investigation into sanitary conditions of St. Louis dairies and milk distributing agencies and into the fairness of prices. As a result of the inquiry, the permits of nine local dairies were revoked, compelling them to close pending compliance with Health Department regulations. Niederduecke voted for the United Railways compromise franchise ordinance, and for approval of Mayor Kiel's United Railways settlement, being one of the committee which investigated the latter; also for passage and repeal of Stuever's Forest Park clay mining bill. He is a close friend of Nat Goldstein, Republican committeeman of the Nineteenth Ward and head of the Courthouse ring. He is treasurer of Nineteenth Ward Republican Club.

Democratic.

George F. Osiek, 2618A Elliot avenue, attorney; 42 years old. Elected State Representative from the Fourth District in 1917. Born at St. Charles; lived in St. Louis 22 years. His father died when he was 12 years old, and he went to work to help his 16-year-old brother support his mother, three younger brothers and a younger sister. Attended night school; later attended Benton College of Law. Began practice of law in 1912.

TWENTY-FIRST WARD.

Republican.

William J. Studt, 3910 Sullivan avenue, insurance broker. Is 38 years old, a native of St. Louis and has lived in Twenty-first Ward 18 years. ROOM UNFIT FOR HUMANS IN OWN-YOUR-HOME SHOW

One in Which Occupant Would Get Full Benefit of Architectural Skill Also to Be Displayed.

A room which should not be occupied by a human being will be part of an exhibit to be shown at the Own Your Own Home exposition at the Coliseum, April 25. This exhibit will be that of the St. Louis Tuberculosis Society, and space for it has been donated by the Building Industries Association. In connection with the room unfit for human habitation will be shown a room so arranged that the occupant would have at all times full benefit of the best architectural skill with a view to promoting health and preventing disease.

There will be at least two other novel educational exhibits. The St. Louis Public Library will exhibit a rival library to Dr. Eliot's Five-foot Shelf, and the Board of Education will have an exhibit. Space for these exhibits has also been donated.

Some of the largest civic organizations have indorsed the exposition, and more than 80 spaces for exhibits by builders, architects, engineers and home-furnishing companies and equipment manufacturers have contracted for space. The purpose of the exposition is to promote modern ideas in building and furnishing homes and office buildings.

WORLD'S CHAMPION TYPIST TO DEMONSTRATE AT SCHOOLS

Miss Margaret Owen Has Won Speed Title Four Times.

Miss Margaret Owen, four-time world's champion typist, will arrive in St. Louis tomorrow and remain until April 9, during which time she will demonstrate at high schools and commercial colleges.

In October, 1910, Miss Owen won the novice contest at the Business Show in New York. In 1911 she advanced to the amateurs and won second place. In 1912 she won the amateur contest with a record of 116 words per minute, eclipsing the professional record of the previous year and winning the purse of $1000 offered by the Business Show Co. of New York.

The following year she made first place in the professional class, with a record of 125 words per minute. In 1914 she advanced her record to 127 words, winning second place, and in 1915, 1916 and 1917 she held first place, with the remarkable record of 136, 137 and 143 words per minute.

Picked Team From St. Louis Soccer League Trounces Eries of Kearny, N. J., 4 to 1

Mound City Eleven Plays Sound Football in Defeating A. F. A. Semi-Finalists in Exhibition Game — Easterners to to Appear Again Today.

PLAYING sound soccer from start to finish, and with as good team play as could be expected without any previous practice, the All-Stars of the St. Louis Soccer League defeated the Erie A. A. eleven of Kearney, N. J., in an exhibition game at Cardinal Field yesterday, 4 to 1. A crowd estimated at 1800 saw the attraction. The Eries are semi-finalists in the A. F. A. cup series.

The showing of the St. Louisans was a surprise to even the eleven's stanchest supporters. The locals did not make the mistake of running themselves out in the first half. They took their time and did not rush around as much as St. Louis soccerites usually do. Instead, every man played his own position, and this more than anything else brought about the victory.

The All-Stars' forward line worked together smoothly, Gerdes Kehrman, at outside right, playing an especially star game. The big fellow, time after time eluded the Easterners' back and crossed the ball into center. Corrigan, Fitzgerald, Bechtold and McCarthy also played good football.

Halfbacks Play Well.

Despite the fact that two of the St. Louisans' halfbacks were playing out of position, they made the best of their opportunities and few mistakes could be charged against them. Peterson stuck to Dave Brown, the star outside left of the Eries, all afternoon, and that player had few chances to show his real worth.

For the Erie team, however, it must be said that the eleven did not look as good yesterday as it did on the previous visit to this city in January. The athletes seemed a bit stale, and did not exhibit the same "pep."

With the start of the clash it looked as though the Easterners were out to make a runaway game of it. Immediately after the kick-off they charged down the field, and in less than a minute had taken a shot at goal, which went wide by inches. After that play was about even until nine minutes later, when Ward, in goal for Erie, cleared a hard shot from Bechtold.

Kehrman Scores First Goal.

During the next six minutes the St Louisans continued to rush matters and Ward had a busy time of it. When the 16-minute mark was reached, Kehrman scored the first goal of the game, when he shot from outside right, following a pass from Bechtold. Corrigan had previously handed the ball to Bechtold.

For the remainder of the half, the edge was with the St. Louis team, but Ward staved off all attempts to score.

Following the rest period Erie again opened with a rush and in the first five minutes of the second period had forced five corner kicks. Dave Bartnett, All-Stars' "goalie," made several sensational saves during this time. In fact, he did almost all of his work in the final period during these few moments.

The locals, however, did not allow the advantage to remain with the visitors. After 16 minutes the St. Louisans went two goals to the good when Corrigan shot after a pass from Bechtold. Halfback Peterson did some good work in tallying this point, as he took the ball from the center of the field to the penalty area, when he handed the sphere to his forwards.

Hemingsley Counts for Erie.

Some five minutes later, the Erie eleven scored its lone goal of the game, when during a scrimmage in front of the upright, "Rabbit" Hemingsley, the teams' center forward, booted the ball into the net.

After 25 minutes of the closing period had elapsed the St. Louis outfit forced four corner kicks in rapid succession. On the last one Kehrman shot the ball squarely in front of the upright. "Goalie" Ward, trying to clear, let the ball slip through his hands and into the net.

"Peewee" Fitzgerald headed in the final point, a few minutes later, when he leaped high into the air, for a cross from Yatz Corrigan. It was a sensational play. Fitzgerald's leg was injured in the play, but he remained in the game.

Referee Paul McSweeney was lenient with the athletes and only three fouls were called during the game, two against Erie and one against St. Louis. All of them were for handling the ball. Only one offside was called against the locals and three against the Eastern aggregation. Erie forced nine corner kicks, and the All-Stars three.

The "box score:"

	1st half. ST. L.	1st half. E.	2d half. ST. L.	2d half. E.
Goals	1	0	3	1
Shots	12	8	9	6
Stopped	2	6	3	3
Corner kicks	2	3	4	6
Offside	1	2	0	1
Fouls	0	1	1	1
Free kicks	3	1	2	1
Goal kicks	15	19	13	14
Throw ins	24	16	19	23

George Tintle, "goalie," was unable to make the trip West with the teom. He is a member of the Fire Department at Orange, N. J., and was unable to get leave.

Erie for the third time will play the Robins in the semifinal of the A. F. A. cup series at Philadelphia next Saturday. The previous two clashes have resulted in 1-1 draws.

Ward, the visitors' goalie, cleared nine shots during the clash, while Bartnett of the St. Louisans made six "saves."

The lineups:

All-Stars (4).	Position.	Erie (1).
Bartnett	Goal	Ward
Hack	Right back	Post
Zarchel	Center half	Cooper
Peterson	Right half	T. Stark
Fitzgerald	Inside left	Holt
Bechtold	Center	Hemingsley
Corrigan	Inside right	A. Stark
Kehrman	Outside right	Ford

Goals—Kehrman (2), Corrigan, Fitzgerald, Hemingsley. Time of halves, 45m. Referee—Paul McSweeney.

Erie Eleven Opposes Another Picked Team In Game Here Today

ANOTHER All-Star eleven, picked from the four St. Louis Soccer League teams, will be sent against the Erie A. A. aggregation at Cardinal Field this afternoon. Play at 3 o'clock, with Phil Kavanaugh as referee. Five of the kickers on today's team are members of the Ben Millers, four of them being forwards. Erie also will make several changes.

The probable lineups:

All-Stars.	Positions.	Erie.
Vaughan	Right back	Post
Quinn	Center half	Cooper
Fink	Right half	T. Stark
Dunn	Center	Hemingsley
McCaffery	Inside right	A. Stark
McHenry	Outside right	Ford

Time of halves—45m. Referee—Phil Kavanaugh.

ZBYSZKO NOW IN LINE FOR TITLE MAT MATCH WITH STRANGLER LEWIS

NEW YORK.—Stanislaus Zbyszko's victory over Joe Stecher of Nebraska places him in direct line for a match with "Strangler" Lewis and a chance for the title. It was his first real test since his comeback to activity on the mat. He weighed 225 pounds, appeared a trifle obese, but he had a sackful of tricks that he spread all over the premises. Against Lewis, or any other of the current wrestling crop, he should make a creditable showing.

Stecher, too, appeared in excellent condition. His recent illness did not seem to impair his strength or his wind. His skin was clear, his eye keen—he had the look of a man in perfect health. He weighed 280 pounds.

Yet there need be no alibi for Stecher. He gave his best and lost. He had his veteran adversary all but out. He wrestled magnificently when required to extend himself. More than once he had Zbyszko in a tight predicament, but each time the aged gladiator worned his way to freedom.

The defeat, however, places Stecher temporarily in the rear rank. Whether he will come back again with sufficient stuff to rewin the title is a question only the future can answer. He'll need plenty of it to hurdle the elder Zbyszko.

KANSAS TO BOX WARD AT ST. PAUL APRIL 4.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 26.—Bobby Ward, of St. Paul, lightweight, and Rocky Kansas, of Buffalo, N. Y., have been matched to meet here April 4 in a ten round no-decision boxing contest, it was announced tonight.

FAVORITES TRIUMPH IN NORTH AND SOUTH GOLF TOURNEY FOR WOMEN

PINEHURST, N. C., March 26.—Mrs. F. C. Letts Jr. of Onwentsia Club, Chicago, former Western champion, defeated Mrs. Eleanor Harwood of the Olympic Fields Club, Chicago, 1 up, in 19 holes, today, in the first round of the North and South golf tournament.

Other favorites in the play won their matches, Mrs. J. V. Hurd of Westmoreland Club, Pittsburg runnerup for the national championship, defeating Miss Glenna Collet of the Rhode Island Country Club, 3 and 1. Miss Collet outdrove Mrs. Hurd, but was outclassed in putting.

Miss Sara Fownes of Oakmont Club, Pittsburg, defeated Miss Edith Cummings of Onwentsia, 2 up.

Mrs. Hurd at the end of the day's play seemed certain of reaching the final round as Mrs. Letts and Miss Fownes, the only golfers remaining in the field who are considered competent to give her a contest, were in the lower half of the draw.

The contestants scored much better today than in the qualifying round, a number in the first division breaking 90. Mrs. Hurd had an 85 in her match against Miss Collet.

In the other first round matches Mrs. Hope Gibson, Canada, beat Mrs. C. B. Hollingsworth, Greensburg, 3 and 2. Miss Dobrothy Richards, Mayfield, beat Mrs. W. Marr, Woodland, 7 and 6. Mrs. J. S. Pritchard, Battle Creek, beat Mrs. Alex Printz, Cleveland, 7 and 6. Mrs. J. D. Chapman, Greenwich, beat Miss Kate Bowman, Plainfield, 3 up. Miss Louise Elkins, Pittsburg, beat Mrs. G. M. Howard, Halifax, 2 and 1.

UNNATURAL HISTORY.

A WONDERFUL beast is the Gnu.
I saw one today in the gru;
Though he looked very old,
By a man I was told,
That he wasn't, because he was gnu.

TOO TRUE.

Johnny Wilson received $42,500 for his bout with Mike O'Dowd. Indicating that it pays to be a champion, even though of the cheese variety.

Only 17 more days till Billy Evans starts to working on his next winter's stuff.

According to a New York exchange the Browns will train in Vogalusa next year. Sad news for the good people of Bogalusa.

"Clarendon Will Shine."—Head Line. 'Smatter? Couldn't they find a Greek for the job?

Frank Frisch, the mainstay of the Giants' infield, wrenched his ankle during practice. Nothing to it, this spring training is great stuff.

"Cardinals Release Trio."—Head Line. What is this, another Cuban gone wrong?

HOW COME?

Everett Scott of the Red Sox pulled a Chas. horse during a practice game down South. How is it the rookies never do foolish things like that?

Second Municipal Title Game Today

Keen Kutter Soccer Eleven Defeated Prendergasts Last Sunday, 1 to 0.

The Keen Kutters and Prendergasts will play the second game of the series of three to decide the Municipal Soccer League championship at Fairground this afternoon. A preliminary clash between the St. Leos, eleminated in the first round, and the Young Men's Institute, Memphis title winners, also will be played. The first tilt will start at 1:30 o'clock.

In the first clash of the local title series last Sunday, the Keen Kutters were the winners, 1—0, Drew scoring the lone goal of the clash.

Four St. Louis boys are members of the Memphis aggregation which will tackle the St. Leos. They are O'Brien, Ackerman, Eagan and O'Reilly. Outside left forward Jouce is captain of the visitors.

George Humpert, fullback of the Keen Kutters, was suspended for his fistic clash with McTernan last week. It was proven that Humpert was the aggressor and as a result McTernan will be allowed to play today.

An admission of 25 cents will be charged to today's doubleheader in order to raise funds to send the local champions to Memphis for games, April 2 and 3.

The probable lineups:

PRENDERGAST		KEEN KUTTERS
Beggan	Goal	Diel
Giese	Fullback	Hitchcock
Kavanaugh	Fullback	G. Rich
McSkimming	Halfback	Sprinz

REGATTA WILL BE HELD AT OSTEND IN AUGUST

NEW YORK, March 26.—A regatta will be held off Ostend, Belgium, next summer shortly after the finish of the international transatlantic yacht race sponsored by King Albert, it was announced here today by Baron de Cartier, Belgian Ambassador.

The transatlantic race, beginning July 4 from Sandy Hook, is expected to end before Aug 1, at Ostend, when the summer season at that Belgian resort would be at its height.

Bresnahan Releases Pair.

TOLEDO, O., March 26.—Outright release of Charley Moore, catcher obtained from Louisville, and Harry Mason, outfield from Eauclaire, Wis., was announced today in a message from Roger Bresnahan, president of the Toledo baseball club of the American Association in training at Augusta, Ga. Mason has suffered from a twisted muscle and Moore has not shown sufficient ambition to warrant his retention, the message said.

Larsen Sets Record.

SALT LAKE CITY, March 26.—Clinton Larsen of Provo, Utah, at an A. A. U. indoor track and field meet, here tonight set what is believed to be a world's record for the indoor running high jump event. Larsen cleared the bar when set at 6 feet 4¾ inches. The previous indoor record was held by S. C. Lawrence of Boston, made Feb. 9, 1912.

Brownie Seconds Are Shut Out by Memphis Club, 4-0

Palmero Blanks Southern Leaguers, But Youngster Root is Pounded in Eighth.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 26.—Jimmy Austin's Brownie Yannigans were treated to a whitewashing here this afternoon in the opener of a three-game exhibition series with the Memphis (Southern League) club. The Memphians won, 4—0. The Browns left their batting eyes in Bogalusa with the regular squad, judging from the way they took to the offerings of two of Chief Abbott's young right-handers, Zohneiser and Boyd.

Emilio Palmero, Cuban left-hander, pitched the first six rounds for the Browns, and held the Chicks to five scattered hits and no runs. He fanned the side in the second. He was succeeded in the seventh by Root, a right-hander, who got by the seventh frame, but who blew up with a loud report in the eighth, when the Chicks counted all their markers.

The teams went along without a score until the eighth. After the Browns had been retired, Hungling, Chick catcher, opened with a double. Boyd went out. Foreman sent a two-bagger to center, Hungling scoring. McMillan hit to Payton, who fumbled, allowing Foreman to reach third and McMillan first. Camps' long drive to center was held momentarily by Boehler, who then fell, dropping the ball, Foreman and McMillan scoring and Camp reaching third. McLarry's sacrifice fly scored Camp.

Jimmy Austin pulled a great play in the fourth. With McLarry on second and Webb up, the batter hit to Palmero, who caught McLarry in a chase between second and third. The ball was relayed back and forth between Austin and Payton, with McLarry trying to give Webb time to reach second. Austin had the ball and just as Webb headed for second Jimmy rushed McLarry and tagged him, then dived head first into Webb, completing the double play.

BROWNIE REGULARS SEE CRIPPLED GIANT TEAM DEFEAT NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 26.—Lee Fohl and his squad of Brown regulars went out to Heinemann Park this afternoon to see the New York Giants play the New Orleans Pelicans. McGraw and his Broadway gang had little trouble winning, 9 to 0. McGraw was compelled to send in a patched-up team owing to injuries and sickness.

"Goldie" Rapp, the sensational third sacker with the Giants, is in a hospital here, having been brought down from Lake Charles. He is threatened with pneumonia. Ross Young played third base in this afternoon's game. Second Baseman Frisch was unable to play because of a sprained ankle. Frisch did go in and bat for a teammate, and after sending a single to right field, he was compelled to hop down to first base on one foot.

McGraw was on the bench in uniform, while his two assistants, Hughey Jennings and Cozy Dolan, performed as coachers. Jennings pulled all of his old familiar stuff. Cozy Dolan has grown exceedingly stout.

The Browns to a man are very sorry that the Giants will not be able to present their strongest lineup in the game scheduled for Sunday afternoon. Fohl and his men are living in hopes that they will win every game on the spring training trip, but they do not wish it to be said that they hopped on any cripples.

Urban Shocker and Dixie Davis looked over the swatters in the Giants' lineup. Particular attention was paid to First Baseman Kelly, who seems to be the real slugging demon of the New York crowd. Kelly poled a pair of triples today.

PETERS SETS MARK IN ROLLER SKATING RACE

Rodney Peters set another new record in last night's roller skating races at the Palladium when he won the final heat of a mile race in 2m. 54 4-5s, beating the standard he established last night by 2 2-5 seconds. Hoggie Colston was second, Eddie Krahn third and Jackie Clark fourth.

Peters won the first heat in 2:57 2-5, with Clark second. Eddie Krahn won his heat in 2:57 4-5, with Colston second.

Belgian Averages 50, Winning Over Cochran at 18.2

Horemans Sets New Competitive Mark Gaining Victory 4800 to 4616.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Edouard Horemans established a new world's competitive record for grand average at 18.2 balkline billiards when he completed his 4800-point match with Welker Cochran at Daly's Academy tonight with the grand average of 50 50-95. Horemans won the final block by a score of 400 to 377, making the final total for the week 4800 to 4616 in his favor. The old record was established by Jake Schaefer only a few weeks ago in his sensational victory over the man who now holds the honor.

Despite the record established, neither player's exhibition tonight was anything to write home about. Both played perhaps the weakest billiards of the entire match. Horemans faltering in the stretch to such an extent that he required five innings to run his final 46 points. These included three scoreless innings in succession in which Horemans failed on as many ordinary cushion drive shots.

Cochran in the meantime had been fortune's football, as in the afternoon block he could not get the balls to roll, numerous untoward breaks in position play causing his scoring to mount up slowly. In the sixth inning he had a run of 101, but as he reached the century he lost the balls and although he scored his following shot, his subsequent position was so bad that he missed.

Again in the final inning Cochran had a chance, but as in the afternoon carelessness brought about his downfall. As he started this inning he needed 354 points to Horemans 13 and seemingly, he was hopelessly beaten. He, however, played remarkably close billiards in running 170, but elected to play left-handed on a simple draw shot and his touch was too light. Horemans then came to the table and managed to run his final 13 points.

The high spot of the evening was touched by Horemans in running 198 in the eighth inning. There was nothing particularly brilliant about the performance except that his close nursing and masse work during the run was uncommonly good.

Brittons Total 2738 in A. B. C.

Missouri Pacifics With 2707 Second Among Six Teams Rolling at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 26.—Hitting the pins for a count of 2738 that was highest on the squad of 16 teams, a majority of which were from the West, the Frank A. Britton five of St. Louis is lined up as one of the eligibles for a portion of the American Bowling Congress tournament prize fund. Three other St. Louis teams are also likely to receive financial reward for their labors.

They are Missouri Pacific with a score of 2707, Wooster Lamberts with 2691 and Dutch American Syndicate with 2670. The other St. Louis entries—Stein Jr. and Sunshine Specials—rolled 2626 and 2499, respectively.

A hard luck second game was all that kept the Brittons from running well up into the money. They opened with a 925 and in the second game bumped into 10 splits and one error.

WRAY'S COLUMN

This Is Rubbing It In.

A NEW chapter in the famous mystery, "Who struck Otto Fink?" will be written in municipal athletic history this afternoon at Fairground Park, where the Leos and the Memphis municipal champions play an intercity soccer match.

To Fink and his teammates on the Schumacher soccer team, victors over the St. Leos, in the game that resulted in Mr. Fink's battered optics and in a riot call to the Page Avenue Station, the selection of their erstwhile defeated opponents and assailants for the honor of playing Memphis seemed inexcusable. To them it was like running down a pedestrian and then backing the machine over him.

The selection of the Leos so offended the team and its manager, William Schumacher, that the latter has informed Superintendent of Public Recreation Abeken that unless the Schumachers are vindicated he will withdraw all his teams from municipal activity.

"It was bad enough to be attacked, not to mention disgraced by the Leos in their Sherman Park riot," Schumacher declared, "but to have the instigators of the trouble and a beaten team chosen for honors over us is a direct slap. Also it smacks of favoritism and prejudice."

Tangled Skeins.

SUPERINTENDENT ABEKEN explained that the choice of the Leos was made over his protest by the Executive Committee of the Municipal council. Abeken stated that it was the sense of the committee that the Leos, last year's champions, were still title holders and would be until the title final for the present season had been played. (This is scheduled as the second game of a double-header today in which the Leos and Memphis teams play the curtain raiser). It was therefore decided that it was proper to play the Memphis team against the technical title holders, Abeken stated.

Schumacher, however, urged that the St. Leos were completely eliminated by their defeat in the Schumacher game and therefore were entitled to no consideration.

The fact of the matter is the Executive Council acted unwisely in honoring a club that brought disgrace and a riot call on the municipal soccer season.

Charges in Detail Filed.

THE committee which decided this point or members of it, expressed the view that the riot and Sunday fight at Sherman Park should not have been given publicity by the Post-Dispatch, at a hearing of the case following the disturbance.

The committee is composed of Father Dooley, George Klosterman (manager of the Leos), Thomas Lister, F. Marion Parker, Sports Editor of the Globe-Democrat and Rodowe Abeken. The Globe-Democrat did not touch upon the riot story in its account of the game the day after it occurred, nor has any punitive action been taken by the committee since, although one hearing has been held.

Manager Schumacher stated yesterday that he had filed specific charges mentioning names and witnesses, and intended to force the case to an issue.

"If they get away with that sort of stuff, we might as well abandon all municipal athletic efforts," was his opinion.

Give Them the "Gate."

THERE will be several empty chairs in "gamblers' row" at local and other baseball parks this year. Local club officials have announced that offenders known to park managements will be met with a stony face at the box office and the bars be put up against them.

It was stated that the speculators who figured in the world's series and other baseball smells would be barred from all baseball stands if legal means could be found to make the disbarment stick.

The prevailing thought is that the men involved will not court publicity or resort to legal means to establish their right to enter the parks.

Baseball clubs for years have fallen down on the job of ridding grandstands and bleachers of the professional bettor. In all cases the club officials have known the names of the offenders and could probably have walked blindfolded to the exact positions they occupied daily, when on the job of accepting wagers.

Yet year after year the nuisance abides.

If they want to clean the organized baseball machine as a whole, they surely will have to begin by cleaning the separate cogs.

What's the Bait?

NOW that the boxing bill is in the hands of the Governor, with a reasonable chance that it will be signed, would-be boxing commissioners are arising from nowhere like gnats in the summer time. The thought is expressed that one commissioner from Kansas City and one from St. Louis will be appointed by Gov. Hyde to co-operate with the Attorney-General in the matter of regulating boxing.

At least 10 local names are already in the hat, some of them good, several not qualified and one or two disbarred by the fact that they hold office under the State or Government.

Most of these casual nominations are by request of the men themselves, which causes some wonder, as there is nothing in the job for the holder, except $1000 annually and a fine chance to make some grave mistakes and cause wide dissatisfaction.

Novices Would Prove Handicap.

WITH the Attorney-General automatically a member of the commission, and probably very scantily equipped by limited experience to cope with boxing conditions, it would seem imperative that the other two commissioners be men who know something more than surface facts about pugilism and the devious ways in which bouts are conducted.

St. Louis has a number of good men, capable men and disinterested ones who could fill this berth. Among them are Walter and Max Orthwein, John Q. Day, Ike Olian, Dr. C. M. Westermann and others without strings on them.

Too bad Harry Sharpe is not available. He would make the ideal man because of his experience in the game as fighter, referee, writer, and because of his constant battle to uplift the game during his local career.

One type of commissioner who is not wanted is the man who has been connected with fight promotion from the money angle. His view is sure to be biased.

VOSHELL AND RICHARDS STAR IN FIRST MATCHES OF INDOOR NET TOURNEY

NEW YORK, March 26.—Two former holders of the national indoor tennis championship, S. Howard Voshell and Vincent Richards, monopolized the attention of the spectators at the opening of the national tournament at the Seventh Regiment Armory today. Voshell's volleying was severe and he was deadly overhead, easily defeating M. E. Cavalli, 6—0, 6—3.

Richards, who was eliminated in the New York City championship recently, appeared more careful and certain of stroke. His service was strong and his half-volleys so accurate as to account for the defeat of E. F. Backe of Glen Cove, 6—1, 6—2.

Other important winners were J. L. Werner of Princeton, E. T. Appleby of Columbia, Frank T. Anderson, George C. Shafer, veteran collegian of Philadelphia, and R. N. Dana, former Rhode Island champion.

Other scores were:

National indoor singles: First round—Frank T. Anderson defeated E. H. Merle, 6—1, 6—2; Samuel R. McAllester defeated William H. Ardelott, 6—1, 6—1; Arthur S. Craigin defeated H. W. Shaffer, 6—4, 6—2; J. C. Keyes defeated F. D. Powers, 6—3, 6—3; Frank L. Macwatty defeated R. K. Berry, 6—3, 6—3; W. H. Buxton defeated Walcott Warner, 9—7, 6—3; George S. Groesbeck defeated H. Vail, 8—6, 6—1; Russell N. Dana defeated F. Damrau, 6—1, 6—0; Ralph D. Somer defeated J. Nikomow, 6—1, 6—1; Frederick C. Anderson defeated Paul S. McHugh, 6—1, 6—0; J. W. C. Hering defeated Michael E. Macksoud, 2—6, 6—3, 10—8; G. C. Heafer defeated Leonard W. Knox, 6—3, 6—0; J. L. Werner defeated Morris S. Clark, 3—6, 10—8, 6—3; Percy L. Kynaston defeated A. L. Bruneau, 6—4, 6—3; James D. Ewing defeated R. S. Ross, 6—2, 2—6, 6—3.

Second round—Edward T. Appleby defeated G. H. Caster, 8—6, 2—6, 6—2; Frank T. Anderson defeated R. K. Roberts, 6—2, 6—2; W. H. Buxton defeated Frank L. Macwatty, 6—1, 6—2.

Schupp and May Defeat Houston With 6 Hits, 6-1

Lone Run for Buffs Comes When Austin McHenry Misjudges a Fly Ball.

PECULIAR PLAY TURNED

Liner From Lavan Hits Buscha in Head and Bounds to Catcher for Putout.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 26.—Ferdie Schupp and Jakie May uncorked a brand of southpaw pitching that was well night unbeatable and the Cardinals won from the Houston Buffalos today, 6 to 1. The lone tally for the Texas Leaguers was something of a fluke and would not have been scored had Austin McHenry made a catch of a fly ball instead of misjudging the drive and turning it into a two-base hit. This happened in the eighth inning when May was on the hill and at a time when the Cardinals were breezing along with a six-run lead.

The Cardinals made fairly good use of their 12 base knocks off Donalds and Buscha, two of the regular Buff hurlers, and Nichols, a recruit. There was considerable wasted ammunition, as the first three men, who hit safely in the first two innings were either caught off base or nipped trying to steal. Had they been glued to the bases the run total probably would have been much greater.

Schupp, who with Doak, has been the only reason for concern in Camp Cardinal so far as condition of players is concerned, dispelled the belief that he might not be ready by next Saturday by hurling six innings of shut-out ball.

Three Hits Off Schupp.

Off Schupp the Buffs collected only three hits. The pleasing part of his performance, however, was the fact that he dished out only one base on balls. This control, over a six-round period, at this stage of the season for Schupp, speaks well.

May likewise was found for three hits, including the one tainted double spoken of above. In the three frames he worked he issued one pass. That for May is something of a record, even if he did work only three innings.

The Cards got six hits off the veteran Donalds in the first five innings, but were unable to score. However, Buscha proved easier. Starting the sixth, Fournier, who has been on a batting rampage since he struck camp, tripled over Whiteman's head. Toporcer coaxed a walk and then Hornsby pounded a single to center, which tallied Fournier. As McHenry struck out, Torporcer and Hornsby put on a double steal, but were left stranded when Lavan lifted a short fly to Baggan and Clemons grounded to Wimer.

Peculiar Play on Lavan.

Three runs came off Buscha in the seventh. Heathcote singled and May laid down a perfect bunt. They moved up a base on Buscha's wide throw, trying to pick Heathcote off second. Another pass to Mueller filled the bases. This time Fournier was hit, forcing Heathcote over. Toporcer followed with a single, scoring May and Mueller. Hornsby popped to Ezzell and McHenry again struck out. Then followed a peculiar play. Lavan hit Buscha in the head with a line drive and the ball bounded into Catcher Wright's mitt, retiring the side.

With Nichols pitching in the eighth, the Cards added two more. Dilhoefer opened with a single and Heathcote walked. May tried to bunt and popped to Nichols. Mueller walked, filling the sacks. Fournier grounded out, but not only Dilhoefer, but Heathcote scored on the putout.

The Buffs' run came in the eighth. Nichols coaxed a pass and Baggan's fly was misjudged by McHenry, netting him a double on which Nichols scored.

Hyde Is Expected To Act on Boxing Bill This Week

Prevailing View Is That Governor Will Sign Measure Recently Passed.

THREE SHOWS ARRANGED

Bill Burns Meets Harvey Thorpe, Billy Cole Tackles Lawler and Kaiser Boxes Donley.

By John E. Wray.

Local fistic fans will focus attention on four features this week, one of which, and not the least, will be the fate of the boxing bill now in the hands of the Governor. The other attractions concern the testing of Bill Burns of Duluth in an ordeal against Harvey Thorpe; the reappearance of Billy Cole against Jack Lawler at the Coliseum and the bout between Pewee Kaiser and Joe Donley.

It is the prevailing view that the Governor will sign the Legion boxing bill which recently was passed by both Missouri houses and that he will name one Kansas City and one St. Louis boxing commissioner to serve with the State Adjutant-General on the commission provided for in the measure.

If an effective commission is established fans and promoters all believe that some of the evils that have caused dissatisfaction in the past will disappear. Generally speaking these touch upon the welfare of a public that has been paying high prices to view performances not commensurate with the amount charged and sometimes without getting the seat paid for.

Promoters see approaching an era under which the man who plans fight exhibitions can control the fighters and force them to live up to their obligations. The enormous amount of "free transportation" necessary under present conditions, will also be a thing of the past, they believe. No smoking, strict physical examination of boxers, compulsory forfeits for weight and appearance in condition, and other features are esteemed as certain to result from commission government.

The Case of John Reisler Jr.

Another feature that it is expected will be brought into the game will be observance of suspensions and penalties inflicted on offenders in other cities.

There is a prospect of an immediate ruling on this matter. Young John Reisler of New York, a capable fighter, is being sought by a local club for a bout here, although he is still under suspension in New York. In order to make the suspension effective all other commissions would have to co-operate, otherwise the culprit would merely change his venue and continue fighting elsewhere, laughing at his "punishment." The Missouri commission, if appointed soon, would have to consider the Reisler case.

The promoter who contemplates such a match is acting against his own interest and that of the game; and it is practically certain that if the right kind of commissioners are in the Missouri body, they will refuse to sanction bouts in which one or both principals are under suspension elsewhere.

Thorpe Is Dangerous.

Harvey Thorpe, if in good condition, will test Bill Burns, the rugged near-poet, to the limit. Thorpe is experienced, can hit hard and is dangerous. Burns is a tough bit of timber, however, and has been coming steadily forward since he first arrived here. He does not look for a repetition of his Charley Stapp finish—a knockout.

Cole at the Peak.

Billy Cole will probably be at his physical best, next Friday night, when he fights Jack Lawler at the Coliseum. He has had so few fights this campaign that there may be some doubt whether he has "found" himself after his long sickness. If he has the rushing Jack will have all hands occupied for eight rounds. Cole is a much prettier boxer than Lawler, is cool and can hit with knockout force as well.

Many fans think Lawler is a great fighter and like his rough and rugged tactics and his wild rushing and swinging. He surely is aggressive and he makes for a lot of action. Cole is a more polished boxer, tricky, clever and with a punch. Lawler is about as tough a man as he has faced, however, and the issue will be interesting. If Cole is able to subdue Lawler, he will have accomplished more than several fighters of much higher standing nationally have been able to accomplish.

Remolded Peewee to Show.

Peewee Kaiser, the most promising bit of timber in the city, will be on the other end of the double-windup at the Coliseum Friday. Peewee's sprained hand is well again and his appearance against Joe Donley of Newark will be his first one at home since he went under the management of Joe Levy.

Lack of information concerning Donley's ability prohibits any comment on this bout other than that the Newark boy will probably face harder game than he expects to. Peewee can box, hit a kayo wallop and think—a combination that ought to lead somewhere out the byways of obscurity.

The complete card for Friday follows:

Jack Lawler vs. Red Cole, 8 rounds, 128 pounds at 3 p. m.

Pewee Kaiser vs. Joe Donley, 8 rounds, 117 pounds.

Chick Saunders vs. George Butch, 8 rounds, 127 pounds.

Battling Dugan vs. Norman Hoke, 4 rounds, 128 pounds.

The National Sporting Club's card for Monday night is as follows:

Harvey Thorpe vs. Bill Burns, 8 rounds, 145 pounds.

Harry Ritzer vs. Grub Whalen, 4 rounds, 149 pounds.

Charley Smith vs. Curley Robinson, 4 rounds, heavyweights; Sailor Schuette vs. Al Nenninger, 4 rounds, 135 pounds; Kid Scat vs. K. O. Eckom, 4 rounds, 105 pounds.

Rickard, Master Fight Promoter, Plays High Cards for Big Stakes

Man Who Has Made the Fight Game an El Dorado for Champions, Has Undertaken Many and Varied Ventures, but All of Them on a Man's Size Scale.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1921.)

TEX RICKARD, who recently relieved his partners in the $500,000 Dempsey-Carpentier match of all responsibility by taking over their interests and posting the entire $100,000 forfeit himself, has had about as adventurous a life as any man who ever came from the Panhandle.

Tex started as a cowboy down in Texas in the days when every puncher had to be a good shot and quick on the trigger. When Texas became too tame for him, he worked his way toward the great Northwest, punching cattle up through the big ranges until he reached Montana. There Tex was branching out as an independent cattle man when the country again became too tame for him, and he struck out for the Alaskan wilderness.

Tex was in the Northwest when gold was discovered and he at once got together an outfit and started for Nome. He was in one of the first parties to go up the Yukon into the northern wilderness that took its toll of thousands of lives during the gold rush. Rickard not only survived, but came out with a fortune, in excellent health and as expert driving a dog team as he used to be riding broncos.

Rickard is a natural-born adventurer. If he'd been hanging around Genoa in Chris Columbus' time nothing would have kept him off the Pinta. Having a lot of money grew irksome, so he tried his luck at faro bank, roulette and everything else from keno to double high-five, back in Nome

He lost his fortune, picked up another, went up and down four or five times and enjoyed living.

Nothing ever worries Rickard. He's the most even-tempered, nonchalant party in the world when trouble tries to come his way. Nothing unmoral about gambling in those days. Gambling is a natural part of frontier life anywhere in the world. Money comes and goes easily, and the best it can buy, after the beans and bacon have been laid in, is a little excitement.

More Fields to Conquer.

Tex happened to be at high tide in his fortunes when news came of the big gold strikes down in the Nevada deserts. A new gold field was as alluring to Tex Rickard as an unconquered country to Alexander. He hiked down from the land of snows and glaciers to the sunbaked desert where Goldfield was beginning its mushroom growth, and in a few days owned shares in mines, "city lots" where the town was to be, and a large tent where pre-Volstead refreshments could be had for a price and where a gent with a sack of dust could get action for it at any game he favored.

Rickard sent down to the coast for a mahogany bar, great French mirrors, ankle-deep Persian rugs, fine furniture, and art. In the matter of art, Tex was not discriminating at that time. He didn't insist upon Titian, Raphael, Van Dyke, Meissonier, Velasquez or Franz Hals. He just told the art dealer to shoot along a score or so of paintings and see that they were A1 in quality and the subjects pleasing to any tired, lonesome and thirsty gent who might wander in from the mines. Oh, Tex had a great place in Goldfield. It was famous all through the West. And it made Tex so much money that he grew tired of it and began looking around for a change.

This was when Rickard thought of tinkering with the fighting game. You could "put 'em on to a finish" in Nevada. Tex looked the country over for a good match and secured the services of Battling Nelson and Joe Gans, offering, in purse and bonuses, the unheard-of price of $34,000 for this amusement.

Goldfield hopped right onto the map. The $34,000 was put on exhibition, in gold $20 pieces, in a bank window. Looked very pretty.

As a side line on Rickard's decisive way of handling things, let me mention a little incident of those days in Goldfield.

"Iron-jawed Bill" Nolan, Bat Nelson's manager, grew worried when he found Gans looking in good shape and possibly fit to lick his meal ticket. First Bill insisted that Gans must make the lightweight limit, 133 pounds, with his fighting togs on, tights, cup, socks, shoes and gloves. Gans expetced to make 133 ringside, stripped, but he gave in to Nolan's demand. Then Nolan said Gans must make weight the day before the fight, too, to show he could do it.

"If not," said Iron-jawed Bill, "I'll take my man out of here and back to Frisco and it's all off."

Rickard didn't argue.

Nelson Stayed.

Rickard didn't argue. He gently led Nolan to the outskirts of the town—which wasn't very far off—and pointed down across the blistering expanse of desert, where the sun-dried sage brush and sweep of yellow sand stretched away as far as eye could see.

"Bill," said Tex, "it's 200 miles to the railroad. No stage driver would dare to carry you out. If you walk me may find your bones out there if the sand doesn't drive over 'em. And if you disappoint the boys now I'd be afraid somebody'll feel peevish and use you and your fighter to start a graveyard with. You'd better stay."

Nolan stayed. Nelson fought and lost on a foul, and the $34,000 was paid over. Nelson got $23,000, Gans $11,000.

Rickard broke out again to bid for the Jeffries-Johnson match. He came to New York, unknown, and quietly located in a small hotel. The day of the bidding Rickard offered $101,000 for the fight. Pop McCarey, Jim Coffroth and other famous promoters who had traveled to get the match threw up their hands.

"Rickard is crazy," said McCarey. "There isn't that much money in the world."

"Let him have it," said Coffroth. "I'll sit at the ringside this time and look on."

Tex had offered $24,000 more than the gate receipts of any championship fight ever held in America!

In California the fight would have drawn $600,000, but the Governor ducked at the last moment and issued orders to prevent the contest. Tex ran the bout on scheduled date at Reno, July 4, 1910, paid purses and all bills and made a fair profit from a gate of $270,775, which was more than double the gate drawn by Burns and Johnson in Australia—then the world's record.

Always Breaking Records.

Tex broke the world's record for a no-decision fight gate when he took in over $150,000 with Willard and Moran in New York. He paid the greatest purse ever paid to fighters when he paid Willard $100,000 and Dempsey $35,000 at Toledo.

And Rickard smashed all ring records again when he assumed entire responsibility for the Carpentier-Dempsey match, with its $500,000 purse, and posted $100,000 himself as a forfeit to the fighters if he fails to run the match under the conditions of the contract.

We have had promoters and promoters, but the cool nerve and keen calculation of Tex Rickard has never been equaled by any other ring impresario. Tex is a "go-getter." He always brings home the bacon—delivers the goods.

And the best thing that I know about him is what every fighter who ever fought a championship fight for Rickard has told me:

"His word is better than a gilt-edged bond."

Philadelphians Want To Hold Title Fight At Atlantic City

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 26.

IT was announced definitely today that Herman Taylor and James F. Dougherty were the promoters representing a Philadelphia syndicate in the field for the Dempsey-Carpentier heavyweight battle which may be staged at Atlantic City this summer.

"We can put our hands on that $400,000 at a moment's notice," said Dougherty today as Taylor nodded, "and we expect to have an impoftant statement to issue in a few days." Dougherty is to spend the week end in New York City, where he says he will go into conference with Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager. Dougherty is a close friend to Kearns. Taylor said:

"Commissioner John Smith already has informed me that he would sanction a Dempsey-Carpentier bout at the shore."

Trolley League to Meet.

Pitchers Themselves Are to Blame For Ban on All Freak Deliveries

Spitball Had Been Used for 20 Years and Was Not Objected to Until Flingers Started Using Emery and Other Substances on Ball.

By Billy Evans,

Premier American League Umpire.

WILL you explain why the ban was placed on the spitball? Was it because of the danger to batters or because of its effectiveness? would you classify the spitball as a trick delivery?

That was the substance of a query I received the other day. I will try to answer it. Perhaps there are any number of fans interested in the question.

The pitchers are responsible for the ban on the spitball. That particular style of delivery has been in use close to 20 years. The origin of the spitball is a bit in doubt, although George Hildebrand, now an American League umpire, is generally regarded as the first player to realize that by moistening a spot on the ball it was possible to get a deceptive break on it.

For perhaps a dozen years the spitball thrived without particular objection. Every now and then some agitation would be started for its abolition on the ground that it was unsanitary and that it was curtailing batting, one of the most interesting features of the game. Such agitation never got far, usually merely affording some writer a chance to turn out a story.

Resorted to Unfair Methods.

The spitball probably would still be considered proper, had not any number of pitchers resorted to methods that were unfair. First, it was the emery ball, made possible by roughening the ball with emery paper. Then came the loaded seams, made possible by forcing a base of paraffin or oil between the seams, and then rubbing dirt into the base, thereby weighting the ball at a certain spot. This enabled the pitcher to get an unusual break, as was possible in bowling when a load of lead was used in the bowling balls. Some pitchers went so far as to secretly cut the cover in such a manner that it would escape detection unless carefully examined, yet by rubbing the ball opposite to cuts, it was possible to get a wingy surface.

Doctoring balls was carried to such an extent that most pitchers were forgetting there was such a thing as a curve ball or a fast one. It was always some kind of a trick delivery. As a result, batting suffered. Because the pitchers didn't always have the best of control of these trick deliveries, the batters were in constant danger of being hit. The falling off in batting was due perhaps to intimidation as much as effectiveness of trick deliveries. Likewise fielding suffered, because of the difficulty in accurately throwing the ball.

The spitball has always been regarded as a trick delivery. It is made possible because of application of a foreign substance. The only solution to the pitching abuse was the elimination of all trick deliveries. That ultimatum carried with it the spitball. Had the pitchers not discovered it was possible to get deceptive breaks through many new-fangled stunts, the spitball would probably still be in vogue. As it was, it had to go with the rest. I am sure its final elimination will work for the good of not only pitching but also hitting and fielding.

Amendment Protects Spitters.

Recently the two major leagues rescinded the action that eliminated the spitball pitchers after the 1920 campaign. The amendment protects the pitchers now in the majors using the spitball. That is, such pitchers who now include the spitball in their repertoire will be permitted to use it during the remainder of their stay in the majors. However, no new pitchers will have the right to use the damp delivery. That means the passing of the spitball will not come until the present crop using it have outlived their usefulness. It may be 10 years before the spitball is a thing of the past, although six years will probably come closer.

There are in the two major leagues perhaps 15 pitchers who depend almost exclusively on the spitball. Most of them are veterans. Using the spitball is hard on the arm. How long these veterans will survive the ordeal is a question. Some throw the spitter with an easy, natural motion, while others have a jerky style to get a break on the ball. The pitcher with the jerky delivery will suffer most. Coveleskie of the Cleveland club has an easy natural delivery that seems to place no great strain on the arm. If not overworked, he may outlast most of the other spitballers, despite the fact that he has been using the spitball almost exclusively for 10 years.

As I said, the pitchers are to blame for the ban on the spitball. I refer to pitchers who went to the extreme in freak deliveries. The spitball for years had weathered constant opposition successfully. However, when so many freak deliveries crept into the game, action was necessary to preserve hitting, and the spitball was forced to go with the rest.

MURCHISON EQUALS 2 WORLD'S RECORDS IN CENTRAL A. A. U .MEET

CHICAGO, March 26.—Chicago Athletic Association athletes won the Central Amateur Athletic Union indoor track meet tonight, scoring 68 points. The Illinois Athletic Club men were second with 35 points and Northwestern University entrants were third with six points.

Two world's indoor records were tied, Loren Murchison of the I. A. C. equalling the record of :07 1-5 in the 70-yard dash, and Waldo Ames of the C. A. A. tieing the high hurdles record of :08 4-5.

Murchison's performance bettered the Central A. A. U. mark on the 70-yard dash by one-fifth of a second.

FRANK BAKER APPLIES FOR REINSTATEMENT

CHICAGO, March 26.—Franklin "Home Run" Baker has filed application with Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball commissioner, to be reinstated, it was announced today. Judge Landis said he probably would render a decision within a few days. Baker retired from organized baseball some time ago while a member of the New York American League club, but has played independent ball meantime.

105 Colleges Entered.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 26.—One hundred and five colleges and 280 schools have sent word that they will be represented in the annual relay races of the University of Pennsylvania here on April 29 and 30. The entry list does not close until next Friday. Never before has such a number of institutions been brought together for an intercollegiate meet. The keenest interest will center about the events in which French athletes will compete.

Racing Schooner Launched.

LUENBURG, N. S., March 26.—Gaily decorated with flags and bunting, the schooner Blue Nose, a possible continder in the international fishermen's races off Halifax next fall, was launched here today. Virtually the entire populace of the town attended the ceremony. Capt. Angus Walters, former skipper of the Gilbert B. Waters, which sailed a close second in the Nova Scotia elimination races last year, will command the Blue Nose. She is expected to enter the race against the Mayflower, the pride of Boston.

Paddock Sets World Record for 220-Yard Dash in Coast Meet

BERKELEY, Cal., March 26.

CHARLES PADDOCK, University of Southern California, clipped two-fifths of a second off the world's record for the 220-yard dash here today, covering the distance in 20 4-5 seconds. Three watches caught him at this speed, and two at 20 3-5 seconds. His record was made in a meet with the University of California.

Paddock was a member of the American team at the Olympic games last year. The former record, 21 1-5, was made first by Bernard J. Welfers at New York in 1896, but since has been equaled by several professional and amateur runners.

Paddock's mark was set in a regular meet between University of Southern California and University of California. Paddock earlier in the day won the 100-yard dash, his time in that event equaling the world's record, 9 3-5 seconds, made first by Dan K. Kelly at Spokane, Wash., in 1906, and since equaled by H. P. Drew and Robert Cloughen.

Today's marks were made on a straight away track which has local reputation for being fast. Paddock last year ran the hundred on it in the unofficial time of 9 3-5 seconds.

California won the meet, 105 to 26.

Officials of the meet said an effort would be made to have the Amateur Athletic Union recognize the mark as a record, but that because there was a slight breeze at times during the afternoon, they believed there might be some difficulty about this. The breeze would have favored the runners, they said, but the started had been instructed to hold the men until there was a lull and had done so.

State Golf Event To Start June 22

Finals in Five Classes Will Be Played in 36-Hole Matches June 25.

KANSAS CITY, March 26.—The Missouri State golf tournament will be held over the Hillcrest course from June 22 to 25 inclusive. The date was fixed at a meeting of representatives of the various clubs last night.

The first day will be given over to the qualifying rounds and the finals in the five classes championship, consolation, A, B and C will be played in 36-hole matches on June 25.

Thirty-two players will qualify for the championship flight and 16 in each of the remaining divisions. It was decided that the number of entrants from the local clubs would not be limited, the purpose being to gain as impressive a list as possible.

A new $500 trophy will be placed in competition in the championship class while the team trophy which was put up by the Sunset Hill Club of St. Louis last season, also will be fought for. The Milburn Club of Kansas City won the first leg at St. Louis last year.

During the week all of the club courses will open for members of the Hillcrest Club and visiting players. There will be no limit placed on the number of practice rounds a visiting player may engage in after June 12, but a local player may test his game over the Hillcrest course only twice after June 13.

The tournament committee will comprise five members from each club here. The rules that will apply to the tournament will be determined by the board of directors of the State association.

PIKERS BEAT TRIPLE A IN PRACTICE CONTEST

The Washington University baseball team defeated Triple A, 6 to 3, in a practice game at Francis Field yesterday afternoon. The feature of the contest was the work of "Poge" Lewis for the Triple A aggregtion.

Debolt, who has been trying for the shortstop berth, pitched the first five innings for the Pikers, and yielded only two runs. Capt. Lyon hurled the last four.

The lineups were as follows: Washington, Linnemeyer 3b, Schewe 2b, Wyman ss, Shanley 1b, Hurd rf, T. Thompson lf, Haeffner cf, G. Thompson c, Debolt p and Lyon p. Triple A—Dalrymple 2b, F. Ailsworth c, Menges cf, Devoy lf, Walsh ss, B. Ailsworth 3b, Gruner 1b, Lewis p c, Kamp rf, Ziegler p, Wolfram p.

The score:

Washington......0 1 0 0 0 4 0 1 *—6—8

MISS WOODBRIDGE WINS 500-YARD SWIM TITLE

DETROIT, Mich., March 26.—Margaret Woodbridge, Detroit Athletic Club, won the A. A. U. 500-yard free-style swimming championship for women here tonight in a close contest with Charlotte Boyle of Brooklyn. The two raced side by side until the fourteenth lap, when the Detroit girl gained a slight lead, which Miss Boyle was unable to overcome. The time was 7m. 33 4-5s.

In a special match race at 220 yards Norman Ross, Chicago, won from George Vernot, Montreal, Ross' time was 2m. 27s. By agreement, he continued to 300 yards in an effort to break one of his own records, but failed.

New Haven Buys Woodward.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 26.—Frank Woodward, a pitcher, was bought outright from the St. Louis Nationals by the New Haven Eastern League team today. Woodward played with New Haven last season.

Michigan Beats Cornell.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 26.—Michigan defeated Cornell in an indoor track meet here tonight by 50½ points to 35½. The Wolverines took seven firsts, including the dashes, the 440 and the shot put.

No Short Prices On English Derby, In Future Books

Leighton and Monarch, at 10 to 1, Favorites in Big Betting Establishments.

LONDON, England.—Future betting on the English Derby, which is to be run over the historic Epsom Downs course on June 8, has been lively in the last few days and is much more general than it was last season, when Tetratema, who finished unplaced in the actual running, was an overwhelming favorite at 5 to 2 at this same time of the year.

This season Leighton and Monarch are equal choices at 10 to 1 in the larger books, while a fair volume of play on Leighton has sent his price down to 8 to 1 in some of the smaller establishments. So he may be considered winter favorite for the race.

Next in favor is Milesius at 12 to 1, while Polemarch at 15 to 1 is also being well played.

As was the case last year, most of the horses favored are those by French sires, which have made such a remarkable showing in England since 1914. Leighton is a bay colt by Roi Herode, out of Queen of the Earth, and he was not beaten in his four starts of last year. His color is a fatal defect in the eyes of many, however, as it is pointed out that every really great son of Roi Herode or The Tetrarch has invariably followed the colors of those sires, both of whom are gray.

Sarchedon's Queer Performance.

Last year Tetratema and Sarchedon, both sons of The Tetrarch and both grays, were the best backed horses in the race. Tetratema was pulled up at the end of a mile and Sarchedon, whose erratic disposition made him develop into one of the most notoriously inconsistent horses of the year, stopped to try and savage another horse, when in a commanding position and three-sixteenths of a mile from home.

Failing in this, he swerved abruptly across the track, despite the efforts of his jockey, and bumped violently into Abbot's Trace, knocking down that colt. Sarchedon then started after the leaders, was overhauling them at every stride and was a close fourth. So close was he to the leaders, after losing much ground, that he was generally considered the best colt in the race and he was heavily played in future starts.

His inconsistent running completely spoiled his reputation as a turf performer; yet, in spite of his record, an Irish syndicate offered $100,000 for him for breeding purposes. His owner refused, but recent reports indicate that the colt is just as uncertain a proposition this year as he was last season.

Monarch is a chestnut colt by Tracery (August Belmont's former horse owned in South America) out of Tenfani. Pharmacie, a chestnut filly by Charles O'Malley, was also unbeaten last year, is the most favored for the Oaks and is well played in the Derby.

Other Grays Entered.

Milesius is a gray colt by Roi Herode and he is being well played. So is Trash, a gray by The Tetrarch—Allash. Syrian Prince, another gray, also by The Tetrarch, is held at 25 to 1. Doctor's Call, a gray by Roi Herode out of Night Bell, is 30 to 1.

Polemarch is a son of The Tetrarch who is receiving some play in the race, but his color is against him, as he is a chestnut. Other horses of various pedigrees, ranging in price around 25 and 20 to 1, are Humorist, Lemonora, Thunderer, Alen Breck, Black Gown, Blue Lady, Oxenden, Silver Image, Coeur-de-Lion (a bay son of Roi Herode), Felkington and Poiret.

Alan Breck was played down from 30 to 1 to about 20 to 1 in the last few days and may be one of the post favorites.

One unknown quantity in the Derby of this season is Westward Ho, the yearling for which Lord Glanely paid the highest price recorded up to that time for a yearling, when he bought the youngster for $58,000 in 1919. Westward Ho was a big rangy colt who developed so rapidly that he was not trained as a 2-year-old. He has been carefully prepared for the Derby, but reports of his work are unfavorable. However, the bookmakers are careful about accepting wagers on an unknown quantity and he is held at rather short odds. American turfmen here recall that a horse that had never started before, The Picket, won the American Derby at Chicago in 1903 and some of them have played Westward Ho on the strength of what they have heard.

Pays $76,000 for Yearling.

Last year Lord Glanely, who branched out rapidly in a turf way after winning the Derby of 1919 with Grand Parade, paid $76,000 for a yearling by The Tetrarch out of Blue Tit. This colt, a half brother to Westward Ho, is now a 2-year-old and is being watched with interest. He is registered as a chestnut, but is really a sort of roan, the gray coat of his sire having left its mark in his coloring.

Singularly enough, although The Tetrarch started his career by siring a large majority of his offspring as grays, last season saw but three out of 28 of his weanlings of that color. Two are registered as roans and the rest follow the color of their respective dams.

Tetrach Declining?

This makes the English turfmen wonder whether The Tetrarch is losing his wonderful ability to transmit his own qualities, including his color, to his offspring. This property, shared by his own sire, Roi Herode, has successively brought the pair from the position of untried stallions into leaders in the sire list.

The showing of Tetratema last year was a disappointment, however, although he did well at distances of a mile and under. Caligula, who won the St. Leger, was the only son of The Tetrarch that seemed able to stay over a route. This fact, and the added consideration that the French sires are not leaving their impress on their offspring as they formerly did, is making many turfmen steer clear of the family in their betting.

BYRNES AND KIEL QUESTIONED AS TO ISOLATION HOSPITAL

Candidates Asked for Opinion on Improvement Measures Submitted by Committees of Three Societies.

CONDITIONS SAID TO BE DEPLORABLE

Request Also Sent to Candidates for Office of Comptroller, Who Is Member of Board of Estimate.

Five measures for improving the "deplorable" conditions existing at the Isolation Hospital, 5600 Arsenal street, the city institution for the care of persons afflicted with contagious diseases, have been submitted to the Republican and Democratic candidates for Mayor and Comptroller by committees of the St. Louis Medical Society, the St. Louis Pediatric Society and the Central Council of Social Agencies, which recently have separately investigated the institution. Each committee strongly condemned the conditions found to exist.

The committees ask, in a communication to the candidates mailed yesterday, for an expression of their attitude, "so that the committees in turn can inform their organizations." The Mayor and Comptroller form a majority of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment which controls appropriations made for city institutions.

From time to time grand juries and welfare and medical organizations have called attention to the inadequacy and danger to patients at the institution. The most recent report was that of the St. Louis Pediatric Society, printed in the Post-Dispatch March 9.

Findings in Report.

The principal findings were:

1. The present municipal accommodations for contagious diseases are absolutely inadquate.

2. Patients with different contagious diseases are being kept without suitable segregation and isolation as a result of defective physical equipment, so that they are a menace to one another. In this connection it was stated that a survey disclosed that during the first five months of 1920 20 cases of cross-infection developed, and that because of limited quarters diphtheria carriers had been discharged.

The committee declared that the city by dilatory tactics had wasted several thousands of dollars of the hospital fund.

The communication suggesting remedies sent to the candidates is signed by Mrs. Harry January, president of the Central Council of Social Agencies; Dr. Borden S. Veeder, chairman of the Pediatric Society's Committee, and Dr. Hanau W. Loeb, representative of the St. Louis Medical Society for the purposes of the investigation.

Remedies Suggested.

It follows:

"Committees of the St. Louis Medical Society, the St. Louis Pediatric Society and the Central Council of Social Agencies have investigated the Isolation Hospital and have under consideration the deplorable conditions which exist at this institution and the effects upon the health and mortality among children resulting therefrom.

"The conditions are really urgent and unless some remedial measures are instituted at once the same conditions will prevail another year. Inasmuch as repeated efforts by the municipal authorities have failed to prevail upon the Federal Government to return to the city the building in the group which was leased to them as a war-time measure, the following suggested recommendations have been adopted by these organizations to relieve the situation."

The committee here set forth the recommendations of the Pediatric Society as published in the Post-Dispatch, March 9. In chief, they were that temporary portable buildings be utilized until permanent buildings could be erected, and that no expenditures be made from the hospital fund until the buildings are completed. It also was stated that no considerations of economy due to insufficient revenue should be permitted to interfere with the work of cleaning up the situation.

Candidates Asked for Opinions.

Continuing, the committee states: "The undersigned committee, which has been directed by these organizations to continue every effort to bring about a change in the unfortunate and serious situation which now exists, is sending these recommendations to the candidates for Mayor and Comptroller with the request that they express their attitude toward the recommendations so that the committee, in turn, may inform their organizations."

Mayor Kiel could not be reached last night for a statement on the committee's demand. James W. Byrnes, Democratic candidate for Mayor, received a separate communication in the name of the Consumers' League, signed by Mrs. January.

Response From Byrnes.

To this, he made the following response:

"I understand the hospital conditions generally in St. Louis are not what they should be. They are in serious need of immediate attention, and should have extensions and improvements necessary to human decency; that the City Sanitarium is so overcrowded that many of its inmates cannot be provided with a comfortable bed, and are consequently forced to sleep on the floors; that the Koch Hospital and its grounds are in need of improvements to insure proper care of tubercular patients there, and facilities for the care of small pox cases, all of which are sent there for treatment under the quarantine law, and the conditions generally are a disgrace to an enlightened community.

"Personally, I believe on humanitarian grounds alone that these conditions should be remedied immediately, and in addition it is the part of economy and good business, for the reason that the greatest asset to any community is good health, and I am unreservedly in favor of not only good hospitals, but larger hospitals and the best hospitals obtainable.

"I have not seen the recommendations of your committee, but I do not know that any more can be said by your committee than what I am now saying to you, and indeed when I am elected this will be one of the first proposals that I will investigate and endeavor to remedy promptly."

Oklahoman Slain by Robbers.

By the Associated Press.

LAWTON, Ok., March 26.—Edward Young and Gregario Lopez are in jail here today in connection with the killing last night of Charles Harrold of Tipton, Ok., said to be a large landowner. Harrold was slain on the street here when he resisted an attempt by three men to rob him, according to reports of witnesses to the police.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS TO OPEN VOTING SCHOOL TOMORROW

Booths for Instruction on Ballot Marking to Be Open All Week in Department Stores.

The St. Louis League of Women Voters tomorrow will start a week's campaign of education in voting through the establishment of booths in the four large department stores, where officials and members of the league will be on duty daily from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. to answer inquiries of persons who may be in doubt as to how a ballot should be marked or cast.

Mrs. Virgil Loeb, assisted by Mrs. T. Rubenstein, Mrs. I. H. Schoen, Mrs. A. Langsdorf and Mrs. Ralph Kalisch, will have charge of the booth at Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney store; Mrs. W. A. Layman, Mrs. T. A. Van Scholack, Mrs. James McCluney and Miss Clara McCluney will be at the booth at the Grand-Leader and Nugents, and Mrs. Albert Stix, Mrs. Louis Wertheimer and Mrs. D. R. Nielsen will be at Famous-Barr store.

The league this week will have a registration at its headquarters, 701 Century building, for members who wish to vote in the election of officers of the league, to be held May 1. The league has about 12,000 enrolled members, and only those now on the membership lists will be eligible to register and vote. The officers to be elected are three presidents—Democrat, Republican and Independent; six vice presidents, secretary, treasurer and auditor.

'BUY ONLY AS NEEDED' POLICY BLAMED FOR SLOW COAL TRADE

Attitude of Consumers Declared in Geological Survey Statement to Be Dangerous One.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Consumers, and not the railroads, the operators or the miners, are responsible for present depression in the bituminous coal industry, Dr. George Otis Smith, director, and F. G. Tryon, coal statistician, of the Geological Survey, declared in a statement issued here tonight.

A policy of "buy only as needed" is being pursued dangerously by bituminous consumers, the statement said. Empty coal bins will be the result, it was said, should a sudden industrial upturn develop, as in such an event the mines would be unable to produce and the railroads unable to carry sufficient coal.

Reports of the bituminous production this month, the statement said, show constant declines, 6,525,000 tons being the production for the week ending March 19, as contrasted with a weekly production of around 12,000,000 tons several months ago.

The depression in the bituminous industry, the statement said, has resulted in "a veritable army of unemployed." Many thousands of railroad employes also are out of work, it was declared, because 204,000 coal cars are reported idle on sidings.

Foreign Minister Simons Resting.

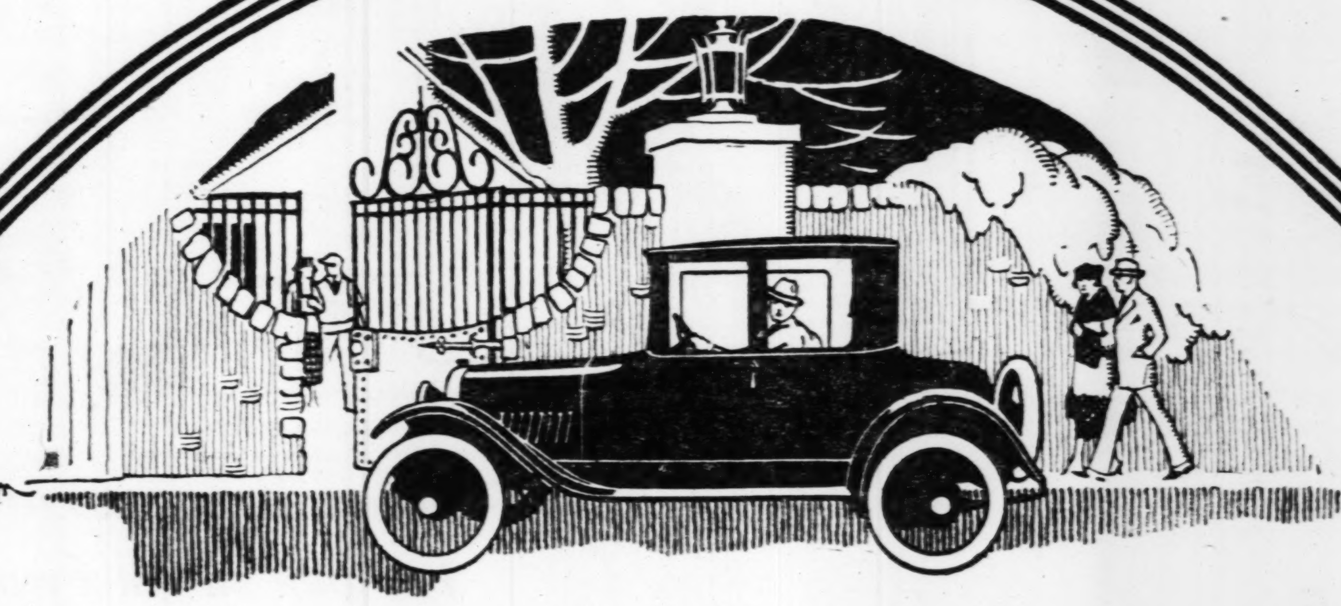
BERNE, Switzerland, March 26.—Dr. Walter Simons, German Foreign Minister, who is suffering from an attack of grip, arrived here today on the way to Lugano for ten days' rest.

PLEA TO AID MAN IN LONDON

St. Louis Bank Is Asked to Help Him "Regain His Memory."

A request for aid to help Frank Percival Fritzpatrick "regain his memory" has come to the First National Bank from its London correspondent, the London-Joint City and Midland Bank.

The letter states that Fitzpatrick once banked in "the National Bank in St. Louis" and was the associate of "Judge Taylor" in the real estate business here. It also names as an acquaintance, Col. I. R. Lawton of Savannah. The local bank has determined that former Judge Daniel G. Taylor is not the "Taylor" referred to. The London letter states also that Fitzpatrick, formerly served with a United States mission in India.



The Economy of Owning an Oakland Sensible Six

A few of the reasons why this well-designed and sturdily-built car delivers its owner the utmost in utility at consistently low cost

ECONOMY, as exemplified in the Oakland Sensible Six, primarily means competent and reliable performance at the lowest possible cost.

It means also that degree of dependability which enables the Oakland owner to use his car day in and day out, with the minimum necessity for repair.

It includes likewise that roominess and comfort which make the Oakland delightful as well as profitable to the man or the family that possesses it.

And it involves that stability of design, that soundness of construction, which are responsible for the Oakland's relatively high re-sale value.

Factors in Oakland Economy

Chiefly important in Oakland operating economy is the six-cylinder Oakland engine of overhead-valve design, the type used in all airplane and racing car engines.

Because its overhead-valve cylinder is the nearest commercial approach to the ideal combustion chamber, this engine delivers more power than others of similar size.

Aiding its efficiency are very light but strong reciprocating parts which minimize vibration, a superior method of vaporizing fuel, and the best lubricating system yet devised.

In no other motor car in the world at Oakland's price can you get these important features, and the able, flexible and economical performance consequent upon them.

Benefits to the Oakland Owner

Supplementing the Oakland engine as a factor in operating economy is the simple, strong and lightweight Oakland chassis.

This chassis embodies the best principles of accepted engineering practice, and does so without burdening the car with a single pound of unnecessary weight.

It plays an essential part in delivering the Oakland owner a measure of combined efficiency and low cost from his car which we believe is without rival in any other automobile.

It helps the Oakland owner realize more miles from the gallon of gasoline, more power per pound of car weight, quicker getaway, easier hill-climbing and greater flexibility, than are available in any other car at anywhere near the Oakland price.

The Source of Oakland Value

These and other phases of Oakland economy are based, fundamentally, upon the policies, methods and manufacturing resources of the Oakland Company.

The very low purchase price of the car is a direct result of the concentration of Oakland's whole energies upon the production of a single chassis type of proved capacity.

The remarkable serviceability of the present Oakland is directly due likewise to six years spent by its builders in the development and refinement of this type of car.

The Company behind the Oakland is today the world's seventh largest manufacturer of automobiles, and an important unit of the General Motors Corporation, the largest automobile producing organization on earth.

The Record Behind the Oakland

Whether the Oakland you buy be an Open Car, Roadster, Coupe or Sedan model, the high character of service it will deliver you already is vouched for.

For every new Oakland has behind it as an endorsement, the record of more than 200,000 other Oaklands of similar type, already serving satisfactorily in the hands of owners.

These owners report returns from their cars of from 18 to 25 miles to the gallon of gasoline, and from 8,000 to 12,000 miles on tires.

If you intend buying a new car, and wish one that is economical from the moment of purchase to its last day of usefulness, arrange now for your Oakland demonstration.

"His Legs Tremble, Fainting Spells and Giddiness Overcome Him; Gnashes His Teeth Convulsively and Every Minute Causes Him Torment," but Hindenburg "Consoles Him Like a Child."

Talks Steadily to Keep His Courage Up, but His Moods Change Quickly From Elation to Despair—"Wide Awake, He Sees Ghosts of Cousin Nicky and Uncle Bertie"—Curses His Young Ally.

KARL ROSNER, who is one of the most brilliant writers in journalism in Berlin, flashed upon the horizon of the war early in 1918, when Germany began to prepare for the supreme effort to break the allied line before the Americans could arrive in sufficient force to change the tide of battle.

The Kaiser felt the need of an official press agent during this critical stage of his destiny and Rosner was selected for this heroic role. Everywhere the Kaiser went on the front line to exhort and mingle with the troops, Rosner went, too, and the Berlin newspapers were filled with the glowing accounts he sent of the royal doings. During the earlier years of the war, Wilhelm had shunned publicity, but now he was courting it, and until the disaster to the German forces on the Marne, it was, indeed, a dull day that did not bring some impressive story about Germany's All Highest War Lord.

WHEN a demigod stumbles and comes down, what pen shall more poignantly depict the anticlimax than the pen which most faithfully painted the same demigod in all its glorious might?

Karl Rosner, the same who was "the Kaiser's favorite correspondent" in the spring and summer of 1918 and for months made the outside world smile even through its anxiety as he touched the stale, flat chronicles of the war with poesy and unconscious and unmeant humor, is in print again on the same subject.

Though his book, "The King," was published in December, at which time brief extracts were cabled to some American newspapers, the complete volume has just reached the United States. It is interesting to compare and contrast it with utterances made in the days when the author, besides being "the Kaiser's Boswell," was still the chief press agent for a going concern, the "barker" for the imperial and royal all-highest Hohenzollern sideshow.

Rosner is still Rosner. He is still the poet, ecstatic, fuming with language. He is still Boswell, minutely observant and painstaking. He is still the complete interpreter, gifted with such psychological penetration that he merges his own mind with the mind of his subject till it is sometimes difficult to distingush just where the tottering War Lord leaves off and the anguished Johnny-on-the-spot historian begins.

Rosner is Rosner still. But the Kaiser is a very different Kaiser, one much less resplendent and, the probabilities are, one much truer to life.

Still Loyal to Fallen Master

One thing must in fairness be set down to Rosner's credit. He does not, now that it is safe, bite the hand toward which he formerly fawned for caresses. In this respect he is honorably unlike the great number of his countrymen—statesmen, politicians, Generals and Admirals—who as soon as the armistice was signed and the collapse of imperial Germany an assured fact, rushed into print to defend themselves and lay all the blame at the door of their former master.

Having believed in the Kaiser once, he believes in him always, and depicts him as a sorely stricken man, moved by high ideals. He even goes so far as to compare his sufferings in the face of impending disaster with the ordeal of Jesus in Gethsemane.

The name of the book, "The King," refers to the fact that William's underlying title was that of King of Prussia. Rosner's narrative covers only a comparatively few days, from the German attack which opened the second battle of the Marne (May 27, 1918) to the time in June and July, when the offensive met its first decided reverses and the south bank of the Marne was evacuated by the Germans.

The book begins with William's arrival at Bosmont, some distance back of the front lines. It ends with his hasty flight to Spa, near the German frontier, when it became evident that the battle could not be won by Germany.

At that time Hindenburg and Ludendorff were at Avesnes, and before giving up William rushed to them for consolation. Receiving their assurance that new plans were being made and that disaster would be averted, William at first decided to lead his army in person in an attack on the grand scale, then vetoed his own plan when he remembered how often on former occasions he had been told that "the life of your majesty must not be exposed." Then, suddenly, without the approval or knowledge of the Great General Staff, he gave orders that his personal headquarters be moved to Spa. Twenty minutes later the imperial train was speeding northward from Bosmont.

Hindenburg Comforts Him Like a Child

To get back to the beginning. On May 26 he had arrived at Bosmont and from there ridden to the headquarters of the Great General Staff, reaching Avesnes in such condition that Hindenburg did his best "to comfort him like a child."

Thus restored to happiness and confidence, he went from Avesnes to a specially constructed observation tower at Menil, far behind the danger zone. How he felt and acted there is thus described by Rosner in the book:

"He hears the heartbeat in his breast, he feels the throbbing of his pulse in his hand."

(This three hours before the beginning of the battle. Then, at midnight, the attack begins.)

"His legs are trembling; fainting spells and giddiness overcome the King. His quickened pulse causes him to confound facts and illusions. With both hands he clings to the thin railing of the observation platform. 'Just as if I stood on the bridge of an armored ship—as if the sea beneath me was rolling,' thinks the King in a dizzy, fumbling mood."

A few hours after the beginning of the battle the Crown Prince came to see his father and mentioned that the Third German Army was halted in front of the second line of the allied defense.

"The King feels how his hands tremble and tries to conceal his excitement. He is thoroughly dumfounded. The helmet presses his forehead like a hoop, and he has a feeling as if his throat was choked."

He cannot conceal his feverish unrest, which manifests itself by continuous, unsteady gestures of his hands; mystic fear and the torments of doubt glimmer from his eyes.

"Like a hammer beats his throbbing heart and he gnashes his teeth convulsively. He feels chilly up to his shoulders. Every minute causes him pain and torment. His nerves are intolerably strained."

Nodded as if Shaken by Cramps

To get more complete reports than were telephoned to him from Avesnes, the Kaiser sent a Captain to the headquarters of the Great General Staff. The officer returned and reported that Hindenburg and Ludendorff had decided to stop the attacks of the First and Third German armies.

"The King nodded as if he was shaken by cramps. The muscles of his temples and cheeks moved in quick succession. His lips were ajar—he spoke in a hoarse voice."

When a Captain of the General Staff reported that "the gentlemen (Hindenburg and Ludendorff) assumed that your majesty would return to the Menil observation tower," the Captain made it a point to add: "That observation tower is the point from which one has the best view within the area and is safe from the fire."

On the third day (May 28) the Kaiser was directed to a still safer place of observation, north of Rheims. While there "fear and horror took possession of him." He returned to his special train at Bosmont, where he received the news that "the enemy has attacked this morning between the Marne and Aisne rivers, southwest of Soissons, and gained successes along the whole front. The situation is considered serious by the High Command."

"The King does not utter one word—his wide-open, dull eyes gaze fixedly. He drops his head and, without observing anything, stares at the dark-green leather of his desk."

In a Daze for Three Days

"So he acts for three days," Rosner narrates, "while the army fights and bleeds, while the air is rent without interruption by the almost intolerable thunder of cannon. Three days and three nights of fear, hope, anxiety and doubts. Endless trains with red crosses, with white-covered stretchers behind the windows, crept back over the rails—mud-covered autos spit out bloody loads of wounded that are carried away from that hell of fire. And during all that time the cruel, merciless waiting."

Recklessly the German troops were hurled against the strongly fortified positions of the allies during the first two days of the battle. The Generals heard already rumblings of revolt against such a mass slaughter for the sake of the Hohenzollerns. But William, kept carefully away from any danger, himself issued an order of the day, as follows:

"By order of his majesty, the troops are informed that his majesty has arrived behind the line of attack and will observe the battle from the Menil observation post. All good wishes of his majesty are with the troops. His majesty greets the troops 'with God, for King and fatherland!'"

Then William complains that Hindenburg and Ludendorff keep him away from the Avesnes headquarters, where far-reaching military decisions are made. He feels offended.

"And the King attempts to simulate calmness and confidence, while anxiety, sorrow and mystic fear cause him to remain quiet."

He lacks firmness. His impulsive temper switches from one extreme to another, from jubilation to despair and vice versa. When he receives at the Menil observation tower a report that the Germans have made some progress, his mood changes from utter dejection:

Our Men Will Beat the Americans

"Victory is on the march. Drowned are all doubts—wiped away all despondency. Fate's wheel overruns the allies. The officer in the steel helmet who is attached to the Kaiser for that day coldly considers the situation; he cannot understand why that emotion. The King, in a happy mood, and with an air of superiority refuting all other opinions, says: 'Well, if the French have indeed expected the attack for three days, and were unable to hold their positions, it exposes their want of power of resistance and reserves. What the Americans are able to achieve remains to be seen. I figure our men will beat them.'"

He turns from the tragedy which is enacting on a hundred-kilometers-wide stage in front of him and revels in the memory of the March (1918) victory of the Germans over the British:

"The flames of his faith and confidence are kindled by the exciting memory of that victorious advance. His chest is an overflowing vessel of high spirits. And his thoughts and hopes climb into the future."

"Paris! A wave of a desiring, longing," creating joy in advance arises within him. At the same time there is in his breast a mystic, subconscious aversion to revel in these phantasmagorias."

Just as if he thought he might awaken and arouse against himself dormant hostile forces by such utterances, thoughts and wishes.

"Paris! If Paris was achieved, after this war that had been perfidiously forced on him by a world of enemies and the responsibility for which has been placed at his door by liars—that would be victory with a historical symbol of the utter defeat that often conquered a revengeful enemy. It would be an ordeal for all the wretches and criminals who brought such terrible misery to the world. It would be providence's verdict of 'not guilty' at the trial of his immaculately pure intentions and actions."

"The King did not take notice of the words of his son, who wanted to leave. He feared to be alone. The subconscious impulse to bridge the time of waiting with words to calm himself regarding the difficult situation, drives his searching brain.

Draws Courage From Day Dreams

"Then, to console himself, he dreams while wide awake that they (the German troops) force the Vesle, and, together with the divisions of the army of Boehn, advancing along the Marne, take Chalons, the immense fortress, in German possession."

He draws courage and high spirits from that imaginary victory. "Nothing is lost, nothing wasted."

An officer of the General Staff submits a report not in accordance with such visions, and the Kaiser's nerves are shattered again.

"His eyelids jerk, he bites his lips. The situation unchanged and nowhere progress."

When the Kaiser waited on May 26, the day before the battle, for Hindenburg to explain the situation:

"He had a feeling of lightness in his throat and his boiling blood flowed to his temples. He moved his head, turned suddenly around. His voice was rough, quaking and hoarse; he forced short sentences out of his mouth. Like hard, conjuring strokes, he sputtered the following into the silence:

"'Marshal, we must finish the war this time. Dear Marshal, we must! Think of Sofia and Vienna! The gentlemen of the Foreign Office whisper every day in my ear—fear, breakdown and revolution—and God knows what more.'

"'We must rely on our good cause, our strength and loyalty,' replied Hindenburg, and the King regains composure, thanks to the encouraging words.

"While walking with Hindenburg to Ludendorff's office, the Kaiser mentions the losses caused to the allies by the U-boat war. Thus talking, he fortifies himself with his colorful words.

"He talks more vividly than usual, he gets drunk from his own words. Mere hopes are guarantees to him—possibilities he treats as facts. Under the influence of his own eloquence his faith grows strong, while his hands are moving in energetic gestures:

"'The gentlemen of Avesnes (Hindenburg and Ludendorff) have not doubt at all, even the least detail has been prepared. And the enemy does not know of our impending attack.'"

(Here it may be said that no such statement had been made by Hindenburg or Ludendorff.)

William, who had been angry a few hours before with Ludendorff, "suddenly flies from brooding into a rage of sentimental loyalty."

"In case he gains a decisive victory—he and the others (Hindenburg and Ludendorff)—how I shall reward them, how far above others I shall place them, and how I shall shower favors on them."

The Departure Is Flight

"His thoughts lead him away—busy themselves with matters of rank and titles and orders, with the display of splendor at the entry of the victorious army at the annual Ordensfest (when the Prussian Kings distributed orders amid great pomp) and the solemn accolade. But suddenly all these bright delusions are wiped away, and every bit of light disappears."

Sometimes the Kaiser longs for encouragement from others.

"In his breast there is a longing for a human being, a human being who could understand him without so many words."

"Like a somnambulist through a bad dream, so he staggered through the remainder of the day. 'Away, away from here!' The departure is flight. In the direction of Rethel whizz the cars through the gray dust. Suddenly he makes a decision. He needs a man, a man to whom he may talk, to whom he may listen. Not the two at Avesnes (Hindenburg and Ludendorff), who are satisfied to leave him lonesome at this hour, but one to whom he may speak his heart and who understands him."

He returns to his train at Bosmont. The situation is unfavorable from the German point of view. News comes that the French have brought up reserves to the firing line against the army of Below.

Then "his hands tremble on the table. His eyes twinkle—he feels disturbed by the presence of the men around him; suddenly his features look distorted, out of shape and changed. He has a

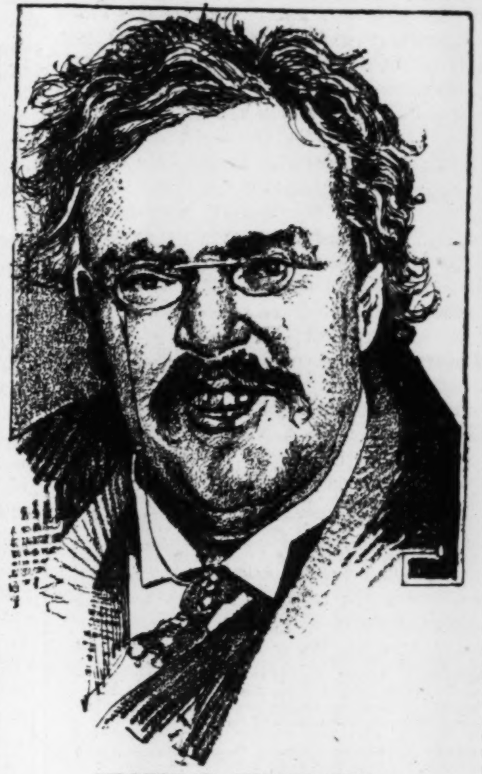
Chesterton Tells How He Has Found Irish Question Upsetting America on His Tour

Warns His Countrymen That It Is a Menace to Peace Between Britain and This Country and That the Tory Point of View Amazes Us.

"The English Have Not the Shadow of a Notion of What They Are Up Against in the United States" in This Matter and It Behooves Them to Settle It Without Delay.

Even Finds That Those Who Are Not Particularly Interested in the Irish Despise John Bull Because He Is Not Manfully Attacking the Problem.

The Post-Dispatch herewith presents the first of a series of articles Gilbert K. Chesterton, the English philosopher, poet and journalist, will write, setting forth his observations while on his present lecture tour of this country. The second article will be printed next Sunday



GILBERT K. CHESTERTON.

IT IS often asked what should be the first thing that a man sees when he lands in a foreign country; but I think it should be the vision of his own country. At least when I came into New York Harbor a sort of gray and green cloud came between me and the towers with multitudinous windows, white in the winter sunlight; and I saw an old brown house standing back among the beech trees at home, the house of only one among many friends and neighbors, but one somehow so sunken in the very heart of England as to be unconscious of her imperial or international position, and out of the sound of her perilous seas.

But what made most clear the vision that revisited me was something else. Before we touched land the men of my own guild, the journalists and reporters, had already boarded the ship like pirates. And one of them spoke to me in an accent that I knew; and thanked me for all I had done for Ireland. And it was at that moment that I knew most vividly that what I wanted was to do something for England.

Then, as it chanced, I looked across at the Statue of Liberty and saw that the great bronze was gleaming green in the morning light. I had made all the obvious jokes about the Statue of Liberty. I found it had a soothing effect on earnest prohibitionists on the boat to urge, as a point of dignity and delicacy, that it ought to be given back to the French, a vicious race abandoned to the culture of the vine. I proposed that the last liquors on board should be poured out in a pagan libation before it.

Stupidity of England Known

And then I suddenly remembered that this liberty was still in some sense enlightening the world, or one part of the world; was a lamp for one sort of wanderer, a star of one sort of seafarer. To one persecuted people at least this land had really been an asylum; even if recent legislation had made them think it a lunatic asylum. They had made it so much their home that the very color of the country seemed to change with the infusion; as the bronze of the great statue took on a semblance of the wearing of the green.

It is a commonplace that the Englishman has been stupid in his relations with the Irish; but he has been far more stupid in his relations with the Americans on the subject of the Irish. His propaganda has been worse than his practice; and his defense more ill-considered than the most indefensible things that it was intended to defend. There is in this matter a curious tangle of cross-purposes, which only a parallel example can make at all clear. I will take an imaginary instance from another controversy; in order to show how the apology can be worse than the action. The best we can say for ourselves is worse than the worst that we can do.

There was a time when English poets and other publicists could always be inspired with instantaneous indignation about the persecuted Jews in Russia. We have heard less about them since we heard more about the persecuting Jews in Russia. I fear there are a great many middle-class Englishmen, already, who wish that Trotzky had been persecuted a little more. But even in those days Englishmen divided their minds in a curious fashion; and unconsciously distinguished between the Jews whom they had never seen, in Warsaw, and the Jew whom they had often seen in Whitechapel. It seemed to be assumed that, by a curious coincidence, Russia possessed not only the very worst anti-Semites but the very best Semites. A money-lender in London might be like Judas Iscariot; but a money-lender in Moscow must be like Judas Maccabaeus.

Nevertheless there remained in our common sense an unconscious but fundamental comprehension of the unity of Israel; a sense that some things could be said, and some could not be said about the Jews as a whole. That is exactly the impression we produce on the people of the United States when we say, as we do in substance something like this: "We mean no harm to the poor dear Irish, so dreamy, so irresponsible, so incapable of order or organization. If we were to withdraw from their country they would only fight among themselves; they have no notion of how to rule themselves. There is something charming about their unpracticality; about their very incapacity for the coarse business of politics. But for their own sakes it is impossible to leave these emotional visionaries to ruin themselves in the attempt to rule themselves. They are like children; but they are our own children, and we understand them. We accept full responsibility for acting as their parents and guardians."

False View of the Irish

Now the point is not only that this view of the Irish is false, but that it is the particular view that the Americans know to be false. While we are saying that the Irish could not organize, the Americans are complaining, often very bitterly, of the power of Irish organization. While we say that the Irishman could not rule himself, the Americans are saying, more or less humorously, that the Irishman rules them.

A highly intelligent Englishman said to me in Boston: "We have solved the Irish problem here; we have an entirely independent Irish Government." While we are complaining, in an almost passionate manner, of the impotence of mere cliques of idealists and dreamers, they are complaining, often in a very indignant manner, of the power of great gangs of bosses and bullies.

There are a great many Americans who pity the Irish, very naturally and very rightly, for the historic martyrdom which their patriotism has endured. But there are a great many Americans who do not pity the Irish in the least. They would be much more likely to pity the English; only this particular way of talking tends rather to make them despise the English. Thus both the friends of Ireland and the foes of Ireland tend to be the foes of England. We make one set of enemies by our action and another by our apology.

It is a thing that can from time to time be found in history; a misunderstanding that really has a moral. The English excuse would carry much more weight if it had more sincerity and more humility. There are a considerable number of people in the United States who could sympathize with us, if we would say frankly that we fear the Irish. Those who thus despise our pity might possibly even respect our fear. The argument I have often used comes back with prodigious and redoubled force, after hearing anything of American opinion; the argument that the only reasonable or reputable excuse for the English is the excuse of a patriotic sense of peril; and that the Unionist, if he must be a Unionist, should use that and no other.

Catholic Issue Mere Cant

When the Unionist has said that he dare not let loose against himself a captive he has so cruelly wronged, he has said all that he has to say; all that he has ever had to say; all that he will ever have to say. He is like a man who has sent a virile and rather vindictive rival unjustly to penal servitude; and who connives at the continuance of the sentence, not because he himself is particularly vindictive, but because he is afraid of what the convict will do when he comes out of prison. This is not exactly a moral strength, but it is a very human weakness; and that is the most that can be said for it.

All other talk, about Celtic frenzy or Catholic superstition, is cant, invented to deceive himself or to deceive the world. But the vital point to realize is that it is cant that cannot possibly deceive the American world. In the matter of the Irishman the American is not to be deceived. It is not merely true to say that he knows better. It is equally true to say that he knows worse. He knows vices and evils in the Irishman that are entirely hidden in the hazy vision of the Englishman. He knows that our unreal slanders are inconsistent even with the real sins. To us Ireland is a shadowy Isle of Sunset, like Atlantis, about which we make up legends. To him it is a positive ward or parish in the heart of his huge cities, like Whitechapel; about which even we cannot make legends but only lies. And, as I have said, there are some lies we do not tell even about Whitechapel.

The first thing for any honest Englishman to send across the sea is this: that the English have not the shadow of a notion of what they are up against in America. They have never even heard of the batteries of almost brutal energy, of which I had thus touched a live wire even before I landed. People talk about the hypocrisy of England in dealing with a small nationality. What strikes me is the stupidity of England in supposing that she is dealing with a small nationality, when she is really dealing with a very large nationality. She is dealing with a nationality that often threatens, even numerically, to dominate all the other nationalities of the United States. The Irish are not decaying; they are not unpractical; they are scarcely even scattered; they are not even poor. They are the most powerful and practical world combination with whom we can decide to be friends or foes; and that is why I thought first of that still and solid brown house in Buckinghamshire standing back in the shadow of the trees.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

To Kill the County Unit Plan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have read in the newspapers that there will be a meeting of the Democratic State Committee at St. Louis on Monday March 28, to discuss the question of the calling of referendums on certain of the measures passed by the Fifty-first General Assembly of Missouri.

Since there was a very active minority of the members of the Legislature opposed to the enactment of the county unit law, it is probable that effort will be made to induce the Democrats to refer this law to the people. Its opponents would resort to anything to defeat that measure. They have clearly shown that they have no interest in the educational welfare of the State.

There is no reason why the county unit law should be made a partisan measure. The fact that Gov. Hyde strongly indorsed the measure is no argument in favor of Democratic opposition to it. The county unit plan was indorsed by Gov. Gardner two years ago, although, of course, he never pressed the matter vigorously as did Gov. Hyde. The county unit plan was indorsed by Uel W. Lampkin, Democratic State Superintendent of Public Schools, preceding Mr. Baker, the present incumbent. The county unit plan has been strongly indorsed by P. P. Claxton, who is a Democrat, and who is the United States Commissioner of Education. The school people of Missouri in their various conventions and organizations have indorsed the county unit plan for the past six or seven years. They have never thought of a political or partisan issue connected with it.

In the General Assembly there were 38 Democrats in the House, 20 of whom voted for the county unit; there were 104 Republicans in the House, 67 of them voted for the county unit. In the Senate the line-up was more nearly on party lines on one ballot. However, eight of the 15 Democratic Senators voted for the measure, and 17 of the 19 Republican Senators voted for it.

During the campaign last fall a questionnaire was sent to all of the State candidates on both the Republican and Democratic tickets, and all of them pledged themselves to the support of the county unit law. Therefore, it seems that there is no reason why a referendum on the county unit law should be considered by the Democratic State Committee. The opponents of this law will desire to use the Democratic party as a tool to accomplish its defeat, but such a course would be suicidal for the party. The Democratic party cannot afford to oppose progressive school legislation.

Disabled Men's Plea.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I noticed an article in your paper in which it was stated that all disabled men in training under the Federal Board of Vocational Education should include in their tax report all supplies furnished to the men. Supplies, to my sense of understanding, include all books we receive that are necessary for our courses.

I cannot understand why we should include our supplies, as they are marked "Property of the United States, Federal Board for Vocational Education."

We have been informed on numerous occasions that at the expiration of our courses we should turn over all supplies to the Federal Board. We would like to keep our books and make a return on them, but since they don't belong to us, I think we are justified in waiting for more information regarding them.

A DISABLED MAN.

The Foxy Gardener.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

notice in your paper a letter from Gardener headed, "Sell by Weight," and in answer to "Smooth Farmer." Mr. Gardener is the very last man to sell by weight. I am a dealer and am heartily in favor of selling by weight, but am unable to buy by weight, as the wholesaler and farmer have never been forced to obey the ordinance.

But Gardener got off the question. What Consumer objected to was the quality of his purchase, and Mr. Gardener would like for us to forget this.

I have been in the retail produce business for several years and will say that the farmers and gardeners in the vicinity of St. Louis resort to every trick to fool the purchaser, whether consumer or dealer.

The housewife is the real sufferer. As I buy the produce in this manner I must dispose of it or I will soon be out of business.

Why can't our city authorities put a stop to this practice? I am surprised that the women have not taken this up long ago and insist that Mr. Gardener does not misrepresent his produce.

POOR HUCKSTER.

Dry Parks.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Has the Park Department joined hands with the Prohibitionists, or have water meters been installed on the fountains in the parks? If neither is the case, I would suggest that the park guards be instructed to turn on the water, at least on these warm Sunday afternoons.

Mayor Kiel can assure himself more votes in the Eleventh Ward if he would promise the voters of this ward a comfort station for Laclede Park. This has been lacking for the last 15 years.

AN ELEVENTH WARD RESIDENT.

GETTING AROUND THE CHARTER.

It was the aim of the makers of the present City Charter to set up a workable civil service system, not so rigid as to exclude from consideration those qualifications of an officer or employe which cannot be set down in black and white, but to insure appointment on the basis of merit rather than of political preferment so far as rules can be applied to that effect.

If it was a mistake of the charter to place the power of appointment of the Efficiency Board, which determines qualifications for appointment in the classified service, in the Mayor, the fault was not with the intention. Had it been intended that the Efficiency Board were to become merely a vehicle of the Mayor's private wishes and political purposes there would have been no object in providing such a board. But what, under the Kiel administration, has the Efficiency Board become?

The Mayor fired, by failure to reappoint at the end of a two-year term, the first chairman of his Efficiency Board. Tom Rogers took the efficiency system seriously. He had his first clash with the Mayor after he had been in office only a week, dating from Sept. 5, 1914. Rogers' account of this first difference was given by him before the Business Men's League at a luncheon of the Mercantile Club on Aug. 22, 1916, a fortnight before the expiration of his term.

"Do you want me to violate the provisions of the City Charter and the oath I have sworn?" Rogers said he asked the Mayor. The Mayor's reply, said Rogers, was: "There's not a provision in the City Charter that can't be gotten around, Tom."

In that same address Mr. Rogers asserted that among the city's 7000 employes were 500 inspectors appointed "to inspect one thing or another," whereas "the number could be cut down to 150, and then they would be falling over each other, and with not enough to do." "By practicing only reasonable efficiency," said Mr. Rogers, "the city could save $1,000,000 a year on its payroll."

The Municipal Voters' League, having made an investigation, in 1917, of the first Kiel administration, reported, among other things:

> From the very beginning, the Mayor sought to retain a controlling influence over the Efficiency Board. He attempted to influence the board in the choice of its own office force. He urged the exemption of different positions from the classified service, so that particular persons might be appointed without taking examinations.

After confirming the truth of the charges of Mr. Rogers as quoted above, the report continued:

> On the other hand, Mayor Kiel was concerned that Mr. Henry L. Weeke, committeeman from the Eighteenth Ward, should have a city position, and a place was found for him under temporary appointment as superintendent of excavation in the Street Department, a position which he still holds (March, 1917), notwithstanding the fact that he failed to pass in an examination which he later took for that position.

"Hank" Weeke continued to hold his position into the succeeding term of the Mayor and then was appointed Commissioner of Weights and Measures, a berth which he continued to hold until disqualified after the opening of the war by his status of enemy alien.

According to the testimony of Col. Burkham, Mayor Kiel's late rival for the Republican nomination and now his supporter for election, there are now in the telford macadam section, 43 foremen to 73 laborers, more than one foreman to watch every two men at work. Seven members of the Republican City Committee now hold appointments from the Mayor or his subordinates. The salaries and perquisites drawn by members of the Mayor's family have become notorious.

Such are a few of the citable facts which indicate the use the Mayor has made of the machinery provided by the City Charter for the elimination of spoils and the establishment of the merit system. Out of an army of 7000 employes which, in accordance with the spirit of the charter, should concern themselves with nothing but the quality of their services to the city, the Mayor has built up an enormous vote-getting machine, good for probably not less than 40,000 votes, without a thought as to the city's welfare. And though the charter makes it a misdemeanor to solicit campaign funds, either directly or indirectly, janitors and scrubwomen have "voluntarily" poured of their bounty into the coffers of the Republican City Committee.

It has taken the Mayor to prove his own statement that "there's not a provision in the City Charter that can't be gotten around."

THE CONSTITUTION AND COAL.

Matewan, W. Va., gathered at the station in holiday spirit to welcome home the 16 mountaineers who have been acquitted of a charge of murder in the riot of last May, in which six detectives were killed. Other charges remain to which those men must answer, but for the present their families and neighbors are celebrating the victory.

How the future trials may result cannot be forecast, but it can be asserted that conditions in the West Virginia coal regions will never be rectified by punishment or acquittal of crimes committed. That situation requires prophylactic treatment, not punitive. The industrial order that prevails there, as revealed in the studious series of articles printed in the Post-Dispatch, is fundamentally wrong. The very concepts of our American civilization have been suspended. The limitations and compulsions are at variance with our bill of rights.

Let it be acknowledged that neither side is wholly at fault. Regardless, too, of where the greater measure of blame rests, the fact is plain that the turbulence and squalor and terrorism, punctuated by murderous outbursts, must cease. There is something inherently vicious and intolerable in a system where security of property rights is maintained by spies and mercenaries and where the ordinary privileges of everyday life, though theoretically vouchsafed, are practically denied. The reports from that troubled mountainside carry an odor of peasantry, of serfdom, that has no place in the United States.

The Federal Government should see to it that the American Constitution, with its guarantees and requirements, is set up and made to function in the West Virginia coal regions.

THE MOVIES' SUICIDE?

The Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, superintendent of the International Reform Bureau, has drafted a bill, he announces, creating an "interstate commerce motion picture commission," or, in other words, a Federal censorship of the movies. Should such a commission be created and clothed with the powers desired by its sponsors, the film drama as we now know it would be bureaued out of existence. In its place would come a vehicle by which reformers like Dr. Crafts could agitate and promote everything which they happen to pronounce good and suppress everything which they regard as evil or undesirable.

There can be no doubt that the movie, great though it be both as an art and an industry, is seriously menaced. It is not the only art or industry that is imperiled. What victim is next in order can only be surmised. Will it be the newspaper, the studio of the sculptor or painter, the show windows of the department stores, the classroom textbook, the preacher's sermon? Is every activity, enterprise and endeavor to be purged and purified until there are no more worlds to conquer?

The producers and purveyors of the picture drama, whether they know it or not, are challenged to mortal combat. Now, if ever, they should strive to win public opinion, and not by hypocritical pretense and pietistic promises, but by sheer, virile decency. The opportunity for a display of that decency is at hand. According to newspaper reports, a new star is soon to blaze in the film firmament, a woman without established talent, of no distinction, no celebrity—with no claim upon public attention except the wretched revelation of eight or nine unsavory years, a killing, a trial and an acquittal.

If the movies can exploit a career like that, if producers and owners or lessees of picture houses don't care what the show is, so long as it gets the money, they are hurrying their own demise with suicidal avarice.

EGYPTIAN INDEPENDENCE.

Lord Milner, who has never been overprone to liberal sentiments, after months of study in Egypt, as the official representative of the Government, charged with the duty of formulating a new policy, reported unequivocally in favor of independence. He declared that whereas Great Britain had constantly renewed its promise of self-government to Egypt, the fulfillment of that promise "cannot be postponed;" that "the spirit of Egyptian nationalism cannot be extinguished;" that the British policy must be to restore the "government of Egypt by Egyptians," which can be done "with a good prospect of success." To safeguard British interests the report urges that a treaty of alliance with an independent Egypt would offer all needed protection.

Shortly after the report was made public Lord Milner resigned from the commission, with no explanation as to the cause of his retirement. It now develops that the Lloyd George government was not in sympathy with his recommendations, and the Prime Minister recently said as much in the House of Commons when he declared the Government was not prepared to say how far it would go toward accepting the recommendations; that the Cabinet must consult the Egyptian Ministers, the dominions and the Indian Government. Apparently he feared the effect of Egyptian independence in India, where liberal sentiments have had some violent manifestations recently.

But if the Lloyd George government does not intend to carry out the Milner recommendations it has committed a momentous error in permitting their publication. The effect of rejection not only in Egypt, but in India as well, will be to raise far more difficult problems than in the application of the recommendations to both. It will carry conviction to these peoples that the British Government is a tyranny according to the admissions of its own officials.

On the other hand, a whole-hearted acceptance would prove the sincerity of the expressed British attitude toward Egypt; it would allay agitation forthwith, while its effect upon India would go far toward repairing the damage to British prestige in that quarter inflicted by Lloyd George's policy of blood and iron during the last few years.

THE WAR OF COMPLEXIONS.

It cannot be possible that Justice William Morris of the First District Municipal Court of the Bronx, New York, realizes the gravity of his act in barring blonde women forever from jury service in his court on the count of inherent and incorrigible fickleness. Humankind since its beginning has been rent asunder by national wars, race wars, religious wars and wars of principle. Are we now to have a war of complexions?

To convict blondeism as wholly inconstant, moreover, is to place a tag of constancy on the entire brunette order. But what will the Justice say of Cleopatra and Helen of Troy? Does Justice Morris recall that the entire civilized world once was brunette? Was inconstancy born since the Roman era?

When all is said and done, one insuperable barrier stands in the way of any practical application of the Morris ruling and incidentally betrays the astonishing unsophistication of a Judge sitting on a metropolitan bench. This is the utter helplessness of any Judge or jury when put to it to determine whether the complexion at issue is a work of nature or a work of art.

JUST A MINUTE . . .

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
by Clark McAdams

TO THE VIOLET.

UNDER the snow thro' your winter's sleep;
Hidden your leaves from our longing view,
Now once again how your flowers peep,
Rich with the wealth of your springtime blue.

What were your dreams thro' the winter's night?
Bleak blew the winds where your dead leaves lie.
Warmth of the Spring brings again to sight
Flowers like those that did droop and die.

Verdured the woods where your colors gleam;
Roam we the fields where your flowers are;
What would a Spring without violets seem?
What were a night with no beaming star?

Over some mounds where the loved have slept,
Richly bedecked with your beautiful hue;
Silent the hearts that the graves have kept—
Hearts that in life were the friends of you.

Tell us, we pray, of the things you know!
Speak, gentle flower, if you only can!
What is the power that has made you so?
Is it the love that you have for man?

Then be our hearts like your springtime flower;
Ever our lives be as guileless and true;
Greetings to you in this springtime hour!
Would that the world were as pure as you!

SIN-ICISM.

Love leaps like a Jack-in-the-box and falls like a punctured tire.

A magazine: The means of easing the eyes while waiting in the oculist's office to have the vision tested.

Wives are of two kinds: those who call attention to their husbands' faults in public and those who believe their husbands have no faults.

Love is not a matter of association; it's a matter of disassociation.

The arch-enemy of humankind is he who likes his fellow-man personally, but dislikes him socially.

The man who loves to live because he lives to love is a great man, indeed.

PAUL ARTHUR YAWITZ.

There always comes a time when the public turns upon a political machine, but we cannot tell whether that time has come in St. Louis. It came in Peoria the other day, after 14 years, and Chicago has not yet turned upon Big Bill Thompson, now a power in the State as well as the city. A modern city is greater than most ancient kingdoms. Its bounty is tremendous. The number of those attached to the court in one way or another constitute the greatest community of interest in the city. It is a bloc against which the rest of us hurl ourselves only to be dissolved into spray. Thus Kiel is a greater king than we find in the Old Testament. His largess is greater—his favors more. He makes King Canute seem by comparison as the Mayor of Webster, just as Bill Thompson is a greater King than Cyrus. None of those old Kings was beaten by simply calling a spring election.

In Ellis County, Tex., is the town of Ennis, which figures in the following: A suit for debt was progressing in Dallas, which is in the adjoining county. The attorney, for the defendant made an impassioned plea for his client.

"Like Shylock in 'The Merchant of Venice' this grasping creditor demands his pound of flesh!" he cried, in conclusion.

Attorney for the plaintiff rose.

"Who is this merchant of Ennis—some little country storekeeper who don't know any more about law than a hog knows about sidepockets"? he asked.

The court gasped and dismissed the suit.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS.

A Kansas editor once said: "The autobiography of Mark Twain, which has been running in the North American Review, is to be made public." The following, found in the Boston Transcript, ought to be made public:

> Shoe men doing business in the Mississippi Valley are much disturbed at the rumors of wars against the French heels on women's footwear. They are afraid to countenance the "military" heel. A speaker before the recent convention of retail dealers, held at St. Louis, argued as follows:
> A woman with a pair of flat heel brown shoes and perhaps a pair of white shoes will slip through the whole year in them, he declared. They will serve for nearly every occasion except evening. Make 'em think the flat heels are out of fashion. I tell my clerks to sell them French heels. I tell customers myself: "You're a live wire and don't want to ruin the apparent shape of your foot."
> Why, I took home a pair of those flat heel shoes to my wife more than a year ago and she is still wearing them, so, you see, I know. We will have to sell three pairs of shoes this year where we sold two last year if we are to get by. And we will never do it selling shoes that last forever. Push the fancy stuff, even if the Christian associations, the osteopaths and the manufacturers talk in favor of the so-called sensible models.

We apologize to the Transcript. We usually keep secrets, but we couldn't keep this one.

FIRST EASTER MORN.

O STRANGE return! Celestial odors filled
The air as bent the flowers before His tread,
Kissed by the robe that flowed about His feet.
He moved in majesty divine of light,
In calm repose across the vales redeemed
And solaced in that Joy so long delayed.
The multitudes then sang or laughed, some wept
Before that tender, all-inspiring smile
In whose sweet light were sorrows lost, and pain
Forgotten in the radiance of its peace;
The holy brow showed neither age, nor marks
Of earthly time. Each feature shone divine
Beneath a circling ring of mystic light.
The very winds blew harplike chords from heaven
Along the keys of Harmony sublime.
Upon the trees there seemed no single bough
Nor leaf but stirred and moved in reverence.
So Nature bowed to her Divinity
As verdure spreads an altar for the Rose.

CHARLES V. H. ROBERTS.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

THE NEW PALESTINE.

From the London Chronicle.

SIR ALFRED MOND has returned from a visit to Palestine, evidently profoundly impressed with the progress that has been made under the new administration. The most striking fact to which he bears testimony is that a good class of Jews from all parts of the world is already flocking into Palestine and is adapting itself readily to the conditions of the country. Young Jews from the Ukraine and Galicia, anti-Bolshevik Jews from the Russian intelligentsia, Jews from Canada and the United States, are addressing themselves with energy to a variety of occupations—work on the railways and roads, agricultural work on small holdings and medical work through the Zionist Medical Union. But the interests of the other races and the other religions are not to be prejudiced in favor of those who, it must be remembered, will for some time to come be in a minority in Palestine. The Government has opened 120 Arab schools, and insists on strict impartiality in the treatment of Arabs and Zionists, and the police force is recruited from both races. To the English taxpayer it is satisfactory to know that the civil administration is being paid for out of the country's funds, and only the military garrison is paid for by this country.

FRANCO-BELGIAN FRICTION.

From the Living Age.

AN irritating incident has disturbed the good relations between France and Belgium, due to the rather officious advice which the French Ambassador ventured to give to the latter country during a recent public address. Last year the two Governments concluded a military convention, the terms of which, it may be recalled, they refused to communicate to the League of Nations, as their obligation under the league covenant was supposed to require them to do. The agreement itself was a very natural precaution on Belgium's part, because that country, unlike Switzerland, had surrendered the neutrality which was supposed to have been guaranteed it before the war. Belgium signed this convention, however, with the tacit understanding that a commercial convention should accompany it. France has neglected to conclude the latter, and has enacted laws which the Belgian Government believes discriminates against its commerce. For instance, France levies a surtax on imports reaching France via foreign countries, in order apparently to favor Strasbourg against Antwerp. This question and other subjects of friction were alluded to during a reception at the French Embassy in Brussels. The Ambassador made an impromptu speech, in which he ventured to give Belgium advice regarding its domestic affairs, and especially regarding the size of its army, which he considered too small. This has been much resented in that country.

INJUSTICE TO THE PRESS.

From Harvey's Weekly.

THE suit of the New York Call against the ex-Postmaster-General for heavy damages for the exclusion of that paper from the mails must not be misinterpreted as involving the question whether the Call did or did not violate the law by printing seditious matter. The question at issue is—or, rather, was—whether for a single unlawful utterance a paper may be permanently excluded from the mails. We say that that was the issue, because in fact it has already been passed upon by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, which rightly held that the Postmaster-General had no right to order such permanent exclusion, since fraud or wrongdoing was never presumed, and therefore merely because one issue of a paper was found to be unmailable it must not be assumed that all subsequent issues would be of the same character, but each day's issue must be judged according to its own quality. The present suit is for indemnity for the losses which the paper suffered because of that exclusion from the mails which the Court thus declared to have been unwarranted and unlawful.

Events in the Social World

Entertaining for Girls Who Are at Home From School Will Be Feature of Week's Festivities—Last Fortnightly Club Dance for Younger Set Will Be Given Friday Evening.

WHILE the outstanding event of Easter week will be the weddings and attendant festivities, another important feature in the social world will be the entertaining for the college and school girls who are at home for the holidays.

Miss Carolyn Bailey and her guest, Miss Catherine Bixby of Long Beach, Cal., who are classmates at Vassar College, will be the guests of honor at a luncheon bridge Wednesday, with which Mrs. Herbert S. Gardner of 13 Kingsbury place will entertain. Tomorrow afternoon Miss Bailey's mother, Mrs. Warren Bailey, will entertain with a tea at her home, 4556 West Pine boulevard, in honor of Miss Bixby.

An informal tea will be given this afternoon by Mrs. Henry S. Butler of 5544 Chamberlain avenue, complimenting her daughter, Miss Lucy Butler, who arrived home yesterday from Vassar College.

Miss Elizabeth Nulsen, who is a senior at Vassar, will be the honoree Thursday at a luncheon at which Miss Emma Petring of 4548 West Pine boulevard will be hostess.

The last Fortnightly Club dance, which is for the younger school set, will be given Friday evening, and guests will include last year's members, who are at home from boarding schools for Easter. Another affair for the younger set will be the tea dance tomorrow afternoon with which Mr. and Mrs. Parker H. Woods of 6248 Washington boulevard will entertain for their younger daughter, Miss Helen Martha Woods.

Miss Ada Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Johnson of 25 Portland place, will entertain with a dinner dance at the Country Club tomorrow evening in honor of Miss Mary Randolph Gordon and Gates Williams, whose wedding Thursday will be one of the important spring nuptials. On Wednesday evening Miss Gordon and Mr. Williams will be the guests of honor at a dinner dance at the Country Club, at which the hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Dozier and Frederick Gardner.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goddard of Brentmoor entertained Tuesday evening with a dinner at which announcement was made of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Goddard, to S. Watts Smyth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Smyth of Brentmoor. The wedding will take place June 1.

Dr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Woodruff have taken possession of their new home, 4 Kingsbury place. Their daughter, Miss Mary Louise Woodruff, is at home for the Easter holidays from Vassar College, where she is a member of the junior class.

One of the interesting events of the Easter week will be the bridge party April 1 at the Woman's Club to be given by the Central Board of the Visitation Academy Alumnae Association. The committee in charge of the affair includes Mmes. Volney Turner, John R. Scott, Ned Link, Paul Bakewell, Malcolm Macdonald, J. F. Schlafly, Alfred Baker, Arthur Francis, J. J. O'Donnell, Ashley D. Scott, J. J. Prendergast, M. Sickles and Edward D. Scott.

Mrs. Margie Knaffl Jones of 5401 Cabanne avenue and her son, Beverly Jones Jr., have as their guests for Easter the former's sisters, Miss Josephine Knaffl and Mrs. Edward Harrison Hurst Jr., of Knoxville, Tenn.

The Board of Directors of the Central Institute for the Deaf will give a charity bridge party Tuesday afternoon at the Woman's Club. The expenses of the affair have been paid by contribution, it is said, so that the entire proceeds of the party will be devoted to the free tuition fund for poor deaf children of St. Louis. Reservations for the bridge may be made with Mrs. W. W. Boyd Jr., president of the board. Among those who have reserved tables are: Mmes. Henry Elliot Jr., M. A. Goldstein, Cornelius Tompkins Jr., Robert McKittrick Jones, Eugene Cuendet, Guido Pantaleoni, George Warren Brown, Kate Howard, M. L. Wilkinson, Elias Michael, C. A. Stix, Benjamin Harris, Victor Erling, E. H. Angert, Lizzie H. Drey, Dwight Dana, F. D. Gardner, Sam Plant, A. Waldheim, Morton May, Tom May, J. C. Jones, Horace Rumsey, William Compton, William H. Donovan, Daniel Catlin, Henry Butler and Nelson Cunliff.

Announcement was made Wednesday of the engagement of Miss Mildred Myers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Myers of 5653 Cates avenue, to Myron Reed Hammill of Pueblo, Colo. The wedding will take place in June. The news was told at a buffet supper with which the prospective bride entertained at her home in honor of Mrs. J. E. Weedin of St. Joseph, Mo., formerly Miss Pauline Britton of St. Louis.

The annual junior "prom" at Washington University will take place April 1. Only freshmen and those students who may continue delinquent in their class dues are barred from attending the "prom," which also is open to alumni. At midnight the ceremony of crowning the queen of love and beauty will take place. Selection of the girl to whom this honor will go, is in progress, votes being given on the basis of subscriptions to and advertisements for the Hatchet, the annual publication issued by students. Misses Lina Newman, Lilian Greensfelder, Isabella Runk and Mary Jones were placed in nomination.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Stanton of De Funiak Springs, Fla., are rejoicing over the arrival n March 15 of a daughter. Mrs. Stanton was Miss Mereo Andrews of St. Louis.

Mrs. R. C. Seifert of 5774 De Giverville avenue and her daughter, Mrs. John J. Gasparotti, of Collinsville, Ill., who is visiting her, entertained Saturday afternoon with a shower complimenting Miss Marguerite Morrill, whose engagement to Frank R. Yeager was announced recently. Miss Morrill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Morrill of Webster Groves. Those present were: Mmes. C. H. Morrill, W. B. Adams, Scott Seddon; Misses Mildred Morrill, Hazel Morrill, Shirley L. Seifert, Adele Seifert, Katherine Starbuck, Helen Eckert, Vera Dauernheim, Helen Kropp, Dorothy Kremer, Marion Keene and Merle Neville.

Mrs. Mary Joyce of Memphis, Tenn., and her daughter, Miss Agnes Joyce, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bacon of 4301 West Pine boulevard.

One of the interesting events of Easter day will be the concert at the Odeon this afternoon given by Michel Gusikoff and H. Max Steindel, members of the Symphony Orchestra. Mrs. David Kriegshaber will be accompanist. Among the box holders are Mr. and Mrs. George D. Markham, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lionberger Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Plant, Benjamin Gratz, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Renard, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Wilkinson, Charles R. Scudder, Dr. and Mrs. Max Goldstein, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mallinckrodt, Mrs. Charles A. Stix and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Gaines.

The St. Louis Club announces a dinner dance for members and their guests April 9.

Mmes. M. L. Wilkinson, D. R. Francis, Clarence Howard, Paul Brown, W. Frank Carter, Carl Sommer, B. F. Bush, John S. Payne, Robert Adreon, W. Palmer Clarkson, George L. Dyer, Jackson Johnson, N. A. McMillan, George Gellhorn, Fannie Bonner Price, R. F. McNally, John G. Lonsdale, R. S. Hawes and Frank Hale will be the official chaperones at the ball and carnival to be given by the Junior Chamber of Commerce April 2 at Moolah Temple.

The marriage of Miss Emma Dunsford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Dunsford of 4026 Russell avenue, to Louis A. Anderson took place March 12 at the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church. The couple will reside with the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Anderson, 4061 Cleveland avenue.

Miss Teddy Murphy of 5889 Maple avenue, who is a student at the Immaculate Seminary at Washington, arrived home Friday for the Easter holidays. Her sister, Miss Peggy Murphy, will be hostess tomorrow at a bridge party at her home in honor of Miss June Clark, whose engagement to A. S. Voss has been announced.

An Easter dance will be given at the Century Boat Club this evening from 7 to 12 o'clock.

Miss Mildred Versen of 3821 Virginia avenue will depart April 1 for New York to attend, as maid of honor, the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Griot and Harry Versen.

The Kirkwood Fortnightly Club held a meeting last week at the home of Mrs. W. C. Kiskadden, the following officers being elected: President, Mrs. J. B. Clayton; recording secretary, Mrs. J. E. McGinnis; correspondent secretary, Mrs. R. M. Warner; treasurer, Mrs. H. Schroeder; auditor, Mrs. Hines; historian, Mrs. Armstrong.

Miss Merla Goldsmith of 5500 Pershing avenue, who is at home for the holidays from Lindenwood College, has as her guest Miss Iva Smith of Oklahoma, who is also a student at Lindenwood.

The twenty-second anniversary of the Ladies' Society of the St. Louis Altenheim will be celebrated Monday by a reception from 3 to 8 o'clock.

The St. Louis Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society will hold an opening meeting Monday afternoon at Harburger Hall, King's highway and Enright

Announcing

The After-Easter Sales of Apparel

THIS occasion presents Suits and Dresses of the high standards for which our apparel sections have become widely recognized. Garments from our own stock, supplemented by special purchases, make up the offerings. In every instance the price is so low that this selling reaches a supremely high point of value-giving in spring apparel.

After-Easter Sale of Misses' Suits

$45 and $55

BUYING a Suit in the Misses' Store is a most satisfactory accomplishment at any time, but a much greater zest is added when such splendid savings are available as this sale makes possible.

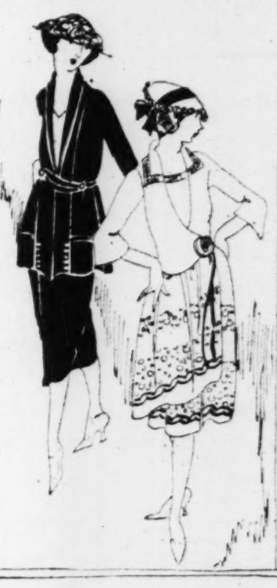
Tricotines and the ever-popular velour checks are the materials used. A complete range is found in sizes 14 to 20 years.

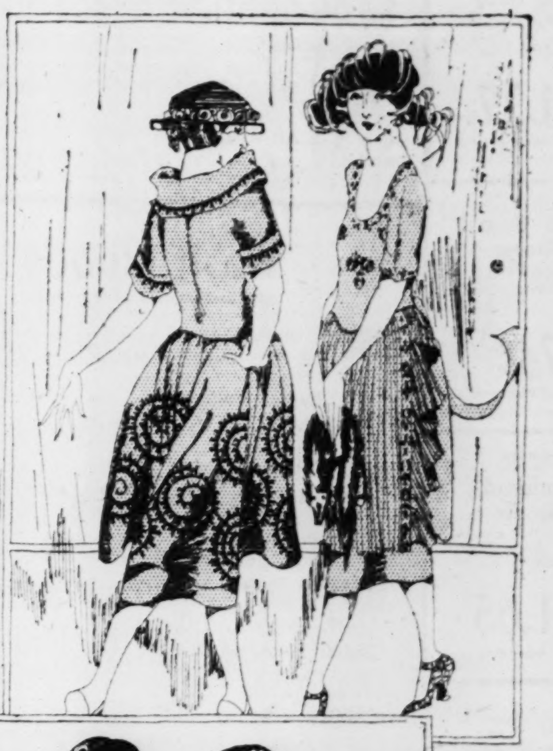
Also several special groups of misses' Frocks are featured in this sale at unusual savings.
(Third Floor.)

The After-Easter Sale of Suits

SOME of the handsomest things we have been able to show our patrons this season, are offered at prices, the mere quotation of which suggests a superlative type of saving to the buyer.

$25 $35 $45 $55





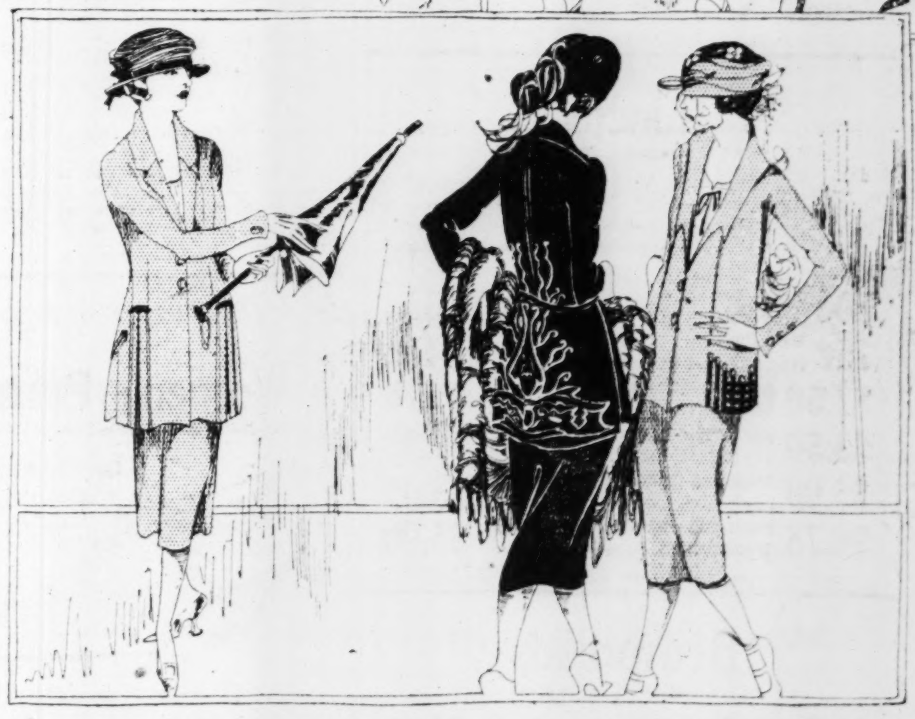
A woman demands of her tailored Suit much more than she does of any other garment. It must be perfectly tailored, and to accomplish this the finest of materials must be used. The design must conform not only to dictation of the season, but to her personal needs, and all decorations and finishing touches must be added with this talent of an artist.

You'll find these Suits doing more than merely answering each of these requirements. They are, in every fact, superior garments, and the finest sort of a purchase at these prices.
(Third Floor.)

After-Easter Sale of

Women's Dresses

$39.75 and $69.50



SOMETIMES a friend "passes on" a bit of information that is so valuable that you never cease to be grateful. This selling of Dresses is just such a piece of information. If you heed it, investigate the Dresses and make a purchase—you'll never cease to be proud of your great ability as a money saver.

The Dresses to be purchased are

Beaded Satins
Meteors
Georgette Crepes
Taffetas
Crepes de Chine
Serges
Tricotines, braided and embroidered
Canton Crepes
Laces

Dresses, you see, for all types of wearing. All of them display the art of clever designers and the elegance of fine materials.

To secure Frocks of their caliber at such prices is an action of importance.

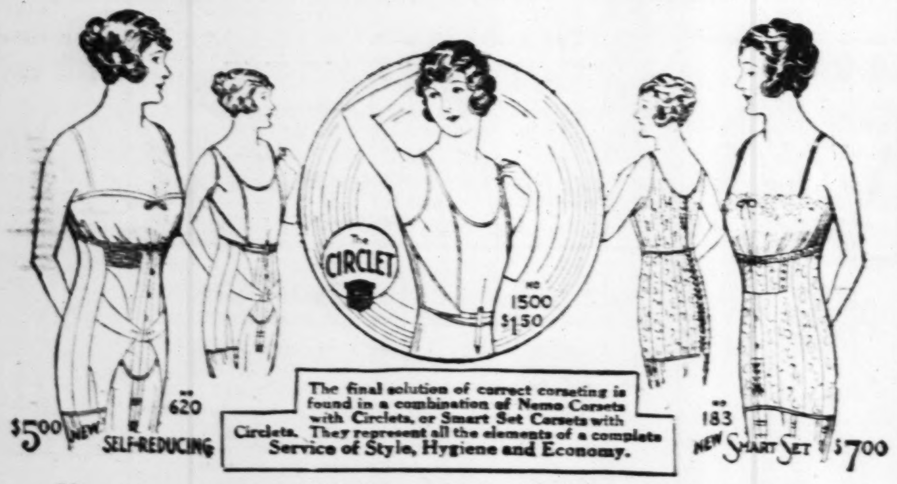
Nemo PRODUCTIONS Complete Correct Corseting

STANDARD of QUALITY & SERVICE

Nemo CORSETS for Style and Health

Circlets Beautify as they encircle

SMART SET CORSETS for the Smart Stout, for the Smart Slender



The final solution of correct corseting is found in a combination of Nemo Corsets with Circlets, or Smart Set Corsets with Circlets. They represent all the elements of a complete Service of Style, Hygiene and Economy.

No woman can afford to overlook this Complete and Correct Corset Service in justice to her attractive appearance and good health.

NEMO CORSETS meet the individual needs of their wearers by preserving their health and good figure lines, and by saving their money. They are divided into the following Services:

Self-Reducing Service—For Stout Women..	(22 models)	$5.00 to $9.00
Wonderlift Service—For All Women......	(9 models)	6.50 to 15.00
Diafram-Reducing Service..............	(4 models)	9.00 to 13.50
KopService—For All Women.............	(11 models)	3.00 to 9.00

SMART SET CORSETS........(13 models) $3.50 to 12.00

They are designed for all types and represent a service of a general nature that appeals to those who wish to be correctly corseted yet want to feel as though they had none on. They are made in a variety of materials.

CIRCLETS.........For All Figures (12 models) $1.50 to $5.00

They do for the upper part of the figure what the corset does below. They equalize the bust and shoulder flesh and make the body above the waist-line harmonize with the rest of the figure.

Be fitted by a corset hygienist in any good store.

this evening. Proceeds are for charity. The play will be repeated next Sunday evening.

Miss Pauline Bell of 5363 St. Louis avenue is visiting in Evansville, Ind.

A surprise shower in honor of Miss Hulda Lohrum and Miss Irene Moeller was given the evening of March 17 at the home of Mrs. Fred W. Meyer Jr., 4039 Labadie avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Goldman of 1119 Clara avenue announce the marriage on March 21 of their daughter, Miss Norma Goldman, to Morris Applebaum, of Coffeyville, Kan., son of Mrs. A. Samet of 2518 South Broadway. The couple will make their home in Coffeyville.

ADRIA LE COMPTE SYKES TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT AT STATLER

Versatile 13-Year-Old St. Louis Girl to Recite to Music and Perform Classic Dances.

Adria Le Compte Sykes, a 13-year-old St. Louis girl of versatile talent, will sing, recite to music and perform classic toe dances at a tea to be given for her benefit at 3 o'clock next Saturday afternoon, in the ballroom of Hotel Statler. The proceeds are to enable her to continue her studies in the East.

Her vocal numbers will be Nevin's "One Spring Morning"; Braga's "Serenata" and the aria, "Connais tu le pays," from Thomas' "Mignon." She will recite Nevin's "Doris," a pastoral, and Downing's "Memory Land," a nocturne. Her dances are entitled "Feast of the Lantern" and "Aubade Printaniere."

Miss Sykes has appeared many times in public, notably at the American Legion Festival, and during both seasons of the Municipal Opera. She is said to have been the first member of the Junior Players. Assisting with the program will be Michel Gusikoff, violinist, and Mrs. David Kriegshaber, pianist.

LOYOLA ACADEMY DRAMATIC CLUB TO PRESENT COMEDY

"Ahead of the Bond" to Be Presented at St. Louis U. Tomorrow and Tuesday.

The Students' Dramatic Club of Loyola Academy will present a comedy, "Ahead of the Bond," at two performances, Monday afternoon and Tuesday evening, at the auditorium of the St. Louis University. The matinee performance will be for school children. The proceeds are for the benefit of various student activities at Loyola Academy.

Incidental music will be supplied by the St. Louis University High School orchestra. Fifteen students will take part in the play.

Missionaries Here From Africa.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Hershey Longenecker are the guests of Herman Hauhert of Valley Park. For three and one-half years they have been doing missionary work in South Africa, Angola, Belgian Congo and Belgium, under the direction of the American Presbyterian Congo Mission, and returned to this country on board the Finland, which arrived in New York March 23.

SULPHUR CLEARS ROUGH, RED SKIN

Face, Neck and Arms Easily Made Smooth, Says Specialist

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a smal jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

KAISER IN STATE OF TERROR ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE

feeling as if somebody had hit him on the head with a blunt hammer. He leans his head back and glares at the light."

A Captain of the General Staff appears to read the official report on the situation in the other theaters of war.

"The King shakes his head, raises his hand, and, by a nod, gives to understand that he does not want to listen any longer. That is intolerable. Therefore, no more of it."

Wide Awake, He Sees Ghosts.

Wide awake, he sees ghosts. While he and his immediate entourage are riding from Bosmont to Menil:

"Suddenly he sees the pale, spongelike face of his cousin Nicky (the last Russian Czar), with the shy, fixed expression of the heavy eyes; good, poor Alix (the Czarina) and their children. He moves restlessly, feels warm like a fevered patient. He tries to chase such thoughts away. Murderers, criminals, miserables! He thinks in the excitement of anger."

"Terrified, he suddenly rises, only to fall back again. There he stands in front of him, Uncle Bertie (King Edward of England). The King's heart beats like a hammer."

After midnight his groom asks if he will retire.

"He wants to go there (to his sleeping room from his library), but he stands still as if paralyzed, unable to make a decision. Mystic fear takes possession of him. He sees abysses between himself and the door of his sleeping compartment."

(This scene takes place in the imperial special train.)

For what he calls his misfortune he blames his ally of Vienna, Emperor Charles; his late uncle, King Edward of England; Nicholas of Russia, his own parents. His father, Emperor Frederic III, a man of liberal ideas, and his mother are held up to ridicule and contempt. King Edward is called perfidious, Czar Nicholas a weakling and Emperor Charles "the miserable, mean liar—the little unseated disciple of the Order of Jesus, who is a cripple out of fear of Rome."

While millions of innocent men lay down their lives, suffer and are maimed for his cause, he permits himself luxuries, though reports tell the German people of the Spartan frugality of the Kaiser:

"Half an hour later (after the imperial special train had arrived at Bosmont) the King had taken a bath, had sipped a little tea, had received his physician in ordinary. Now some rest—an hour of sleep in advance (it was in the early after-

HEADACHES AND THEIR RELIEF

DR. F. J. GUILBAULT
OPTOMETRIST and OPTICIAN.

Chronic sufferers from headache are in such a frame of mind that they sometimes become addicted to dangerous drugs in seeking relief from pain.

Carefully prescribed glasses in a great number of these cases would have effected permanent relief.

Under my skillful services during the past 16 years thousands of cases of sick and nervous headaches have been relieved by glasses.

Extremely moderate charges are a pleasant feature of my service.

KAISER IN STATE OF TERROR ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE

noon). The King lies on the cooling leather sofa. The fragrance of the perfumed water in which he has bathed is still in the air."

Ludendorff a Man of Backbone.

Of all the personages who enter into Rosner's book, only Ludendorff appears as a man of backbone and character, who did his duty as he understood it, irrespective of the impulsive War Lord's caprices. His personal retinue, which he himself selected to suit his taste, reflects the Kaiser's character.

"All these men feel as if they were under a gray, invisible burden. To them the face, a word, a gesture of their royal lord, is the hand showing the situation and existence of the world. While the fatherland's future and very existence hang in the balance, the Kaiser and his entourage made merry at the dinner table.

"The King asks: 'Why do you laugh?' The Baron shows his white teeth and answers: 'His highness (Prince Fuerstenberg) has been telling various details of how he made ready his dresses for our entry into Paris.' The Prince smiles: 'Majesty, the Baron gives away everything. I packed a "baedecker" of Paris and some other like things in my trunk.'"

On the other side of the table the conversation is about the maiden name of the wife of the Captain of the dragoons.

"The Count draws tender, dreaming, feminine profiles on a sheet of paper and memorandas: 'If victory flees us tomorrow, and day after tomorrow and so on forever, how about national unity?'"

"And the tall Major of the Garde du Corps (the most exclusive Prussian regiment of cavalary): Chase the whole lousy gang out of the Reichstag building! Stinkers and schiebers (illicit traders)! National idea? A fact! When I am commander of the Garde du Corps I would like to see any despicable pigtow home I could not teach nationalism!" Then he nods to the chief of the military cabinet and asks with keen interest: 'General, will you come along to the observation tower?' The General shakes his head, and as the King turns to the other side of the table, smilingly remarks: 'Accompany you? No—cut out that silly idea! Waste of time! What for? Will it help any? I shall get a good sleep. Tomorrow morning the orderly will deliver the wireless message to my compartment—and I will know just as much as you.'

"The King keeps on talking. He talks as if driven by a mystic desire of keeping away silence and driving off obstacles which he imagines in his own breast, near him and far away. Though talking to others, he talks mostly to satisfy his own restless soul. He tries to chase away the mystic dull fear of threatening specters with courageous words proclaiming his strong, unshaken faith. He speaks with blinding dilletantism, which is sparked with the splendor of genuine geniality, and constructs a new world in which he really believes for the moment.

"His retinue is silent, every one follows that shiningly, sputtering flow of oratory, in which are confounded the possible and improbable, which has been proved and what is doubtful.

"He stops talking and looks around, happy and strong. He sees in the eyes of the others the reflex of his own faith.

"'We will succeed in that, too.'"

"Hardly had the King finished and gone when the Councillor of Legation says: 'Yes, the King talked much today.' And the little, jolly sharpshooter nods and laughs: 'What's the use to whisper?' He approaches the Prince. 'Your highness, how about a party of whist en trois?' The Baron is certainly willing to play! Without taking the glass from his mouth (champagne was served at the table) the Prince nods. And the Councillor of Legation lights his cigarette and laughs: 'Go on—to hell with the miserable life!'"

Such is the suite chosen by the Kaiser himself as the men best fitted for highly responsible positions. They regard themselves as not better than the medieval court jesters. Witness the following scene on the Menil observation tower:

"The Adjutant (of the Crown Prince) asks: 'You are here since midnight?' The tall Major nods: 'Yes, such men are we; under no circumstances any Jewish haste! It would be better for you to tell us when our high lord (the Kaiser) will have enough of that film (the battle of the Marne).' The tall Major asks one of the Crown Prince's officers: 'Say, Malte, one might learn more from you. How is business?' The lancer (the Crown Prince's officer): 'We conquer always—always, until we are ruined.'

"These words were overheard by the Kaiser's Adjutant, a General, who interrupted: 'Captain, do you speak in such tone to his royal highness (the Crown Prince)?' The Captain replied (in slang): 'And not merely a little, your excellency: He who, like me, has the job of a court jester, claims, for the sake of his reputation, the privilege of telling the truth, at least once in a while.'"

Eggs Cheaper Than Last Easter.

Eggs for Easter dyeing were cheaper yesterday than on the day before Easter in 1920. The lowest price of chain stores' last Easter season was 48 cents a dozen. Eggs of the same description were offered yesterday at 25 cents a dozen.

"HEINE" ASKS COURT TO LET HIM BECOME PLAIN "HEIN"

Petitioner Says Present Name Is Pronounced "Heinie," the Term Used in War for Germans.

Albert John Casper Heine of 1300 Montgomery street, yesterday filed a petition in Circuit Judge Grimm's court for authority to drop the final "e" in his surname and to be known hereafter as Hein. He says that he served in the American army during the world war and that the German soldiers were referred to as "heinie," which, he says, was embarrassing to him.

Since his return to this country he has suffered further embarrassment because of the way his name is pronounced, he says. He believes, he says, that the name has interfered with his success in business and states that it kept him from winning promotion as an outside salesman, a less capable man receiving the place.

THOMAS W. GARLAND — 409-11-13 Broadway

BILL TO ELIMINATE "PULLERS" PASSED; MAYOR TO SIGN IT

Measure Prohibits Solicitation of Patronage for Stores or Any Business House by Persons on Streets.

Mayor Kiel said yesterday that he would sign the ordinance prohibiting the activities of "pullers" for stores which was passed by the Board of Aldermen without debate in the morning. The ordinance will go to him for his signature in 10 days and 30 days thereafter will become effective. Violation of the ordinance will be a misdemeanor, punishable by fine of $25 to $100. The text of the ordinance follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, on any street or sidewalk within the City of St. Louis, to accost any other person and there solicit such person to purchase any goods, wares or merchandise kept for sale at any store, house or place of business, or to solicit such person to enter any such store, house or place of business to examine or purchase any goods, wares or merchandise kept therein for sale. Provided, however, that nothing herein shall be construed as prohibiting licensed peddlers acting within the scope of their license or representatives of bona fide labor organizations doing picket duty."

Previous Ordinance Void.

The ordinance is a substitute for one which was held unconstitutional in January, 1920, by the State Supreme Court. The former ordinance prohibited solicitation of trade in front of any store or within 50 feet of any other store dealing in similar articles. The former ordinance was held to be class legisaltion. It went into effect in May, 1919, and was tested by a man who was fined in Police Court in September under its provisions.

The present ordinance was introduced Nov. 12, last, by Alderman Wyrick, chairman of the Legislation Committee, at the request of the Associated Retailers, who favor such a law. It remained in committee until recently and was scheduled for final passage March 18. Several Aldermen opposed it, however, and it was recommitted by a vote of 15 to 13. An effort to have it die in committee with the close of the session on April 8 failed.

The Legislation Committee on last Wednesday amended the bill to include exemption of strike pickets, at the request of the Building Trades Council and Ceneral Trades and Labor Union. The committee, which includes Aldermen Wyrick, Hall, Udell, Groeschel, Eilers, Otto and Baur, voted five to two to include the amendment and report the bill favorably. Aldermen Otto and Baur voted against the report, saying they feared this was another piece of class legislation. Alderman Baur was considered the head of the opposition.

Unanimous on Amendment.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday voted unanimously to accept the amendment, Alderman Hall urging the passage of the bill, in what he termed his "valedictory address," as a measure to hold the confidence of the business element of the city. He was defeated for renomination. He moved the suspension of the rules and passage of the bill.

Aldermen Baur, Eilers, Hirth, Neuman, Otto, Scholl, Schrantz and Tamme voted against suspension, the vote being 21 to 8. President Aloe voted for suspension, explaining he is opposed to suspending the rules, except for urgent financial reasons, but that this bill has been delayed too long. Aldermen Baur, Neuman and Schrantz voted "no" on the final question; Aldermen Otto, Scholl and Tamme reported "not voting," and Aldermen Eilers and Hirth switched their vote to "yes." The ordinance was passed, 23 to 3.

The board will adjourn the year's session sine die on April 8. Special meetings probably will be held before then in an effort to pass a number of important measures.

BOY MISSING SINCE FEB. 17

John J. James, 14, Failed to Return Home From School.

Relatives of John J. James, 14 years old, of 1433A Hodiamont avenue, aided by the police, have been looking for him since Feb. 17, when he failed to return home from the Bryan Hill School, where he was an eighth grade pupil.

Inquiry at the school by his father, G. M. James, disclosed that the boy had failed to deliver a note to his mother, written by his teacher in complaint of an act of mischief on the part of the boy, and when the teacher asked him if he had given it to his mother he said he had lost it. The incident occurred the day he failed to return home.

ILLINOIS SEED MERCHANT FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION

John W. Spence Said to Have Lost $100,000 in Stock Speculation Here.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the United States District Court at Danville, Ill., Friday by John W. Spence, a wholesale seed merchant at Jeff, Wayne County, Ill., who lists his liabilities at $75,000 and his visible assets at $11,000. His petition has been referred to C. B. Thomas of East St. Louis as referee in bankruptcy.

Spence lost $100,000 through speculation in the St. Louis stock market, according to Thomas. The Spence failure resulted in the failure of the Rinard Banking Co. at Rinard, Ill., which held his note for $39,000. The bank, which was capitalized at $25,000, has been reorganized as a State bank.

A. Poorman, a banker, of Fairfield, Ill., has filed an interpleader to Spence's suit asking for delivery of $16,000 worth of seeds he said he bought from Spence. H. C. Chaffin of Flora, Ill., attorney for a number of creditors, has filed two petitions with Referee Thomas, requesting his decision as to the ownership of the seeds between Poorman and Spence and setting forth that Poorman, as a silent partner, is jointly liable with Spence. The referee will hear arguments tomorrow on the petitions.

CORN FOR ARMENIANS SOUGHT IN MISSOURI

Arrangements Made to Transport Gifts of Hominy Grits and Flour to Near East.

Following a message received from the Near East Relief headquarters at Constantinople that Armenia has virtually been cleared of Bolshevist invaders and that a new coalition Government, sitting at Erivan, now has control of a wide area of the country, H. C. Jaquith, managing director at that point, has just cabled Mrs. L. H. Kenney, State secretary, Eastern Missouri division, Near East Relief, 1423 Chemical Building, that they are in urgent need of 5000 tons of hominy grits and corn flour, to enable them to resume their regular program in caring for thousands of children and in feeding 200,000 starving refugees.

It is estimated that at least 30,000 tons of flour and other food supplies will be required to save the thousands of lives of people now dying in Russian Armenia and to save the 50,000 children that are now running loose in one small district of the Caucasus.

Chester H. Gray of Nevada, president of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation, will head the gift corn movement in the counties of Eastern Missouri. Others who will assist are: D. L. Boyer, secretary Missouri Grain Dealers' Association; H. O. Raine, Hayti; William Hirth, Columbia; Roy Monier, Agricultural Commissioner, Carrollton; Jewell Mayes, secretary State Board of Agriculture; A. J. Meyer, secretary Missouri Farm Bureau Federation, Columbia; F. B. Mumford, former Food Administrator and dean of the Missouri Agricultural College, Columbia; P. H. Ross, county agent leader, Columbia, and Carl J. Baer, head of Production Bureau, St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

All gifts of corn from Missouri will be transported free of charge to St. Joseph, where they will be unloaded, milled sacked and reshipped to point of embarkation for delivery to British ships, which will carry them to the Near East port for delivery to representatives there without cost.

The grain when milled will be packed in 10-pound cotton sacks, each sack to bear the imprint, "The Gift of Missouri Farmers to Near East." Ten of these sacks will be packed in a burlap container and securely sewed in the same manner that meal and flour are prepared for export. This will insure safe carriage and bring the meal and hominy to the Near East stations in clean and attractive packages, easy to handle and distribute.

PART THREE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 27, 1921. PAGES 1—8B

"FOR HE'S A JOLLY GOOD FELLOW"

By MAY EDINGTON

THE Good Fellow put his latchkey into his door as the clocks struck 12. Throwing off his overcoat in the tiny hall, he went on into a drawing room almost as tiny. There, although the clocks had said 12 with bedtime insistence, Dorothy waited for him, wasting the glories of a pink silk trousseau frock all alone on his slippers, still warming before the fire. Over the arm of his empty chair, pulled up also to the blaze, hung the old smoking jacket that he donned for evenings at home. It and the slippers somehow struck an unobtrusive note of faithful pathos repeated by the slim, dejected figure in pink.

Cartier, big and hearty, a little flushed and exhilarated by Mostyn's very good dinner, only faintly heard the note. It struck rather pleasantly than otherwise on his consciousness; it was not a bad thing to have this pretty picture of domestic fidelity to come home to after an evening of his old bachelor freedom.

She jumped up gladly, and ran to him, seizing the lapels of his coat in her two hands like an eager child while he kissed the soft cheek she help up.

"A nice evening, Stephen?"

"First rate." He sat down, stretching out his feet to the fire, with Dorothy perched on the arm of his chair. "Mostyn's dinner, you know, tonight. Mostyn does us very well—was always the rich member amongst us six poor dogs"——

"You're not poor?" she murmured, her pink cheek against his.

He laughed, an indulgent, well satisfied laugh. "I've been poorer. So were we all when we founded the Beggars, years ago. Lord! What feeds we used to give! Even old Mossey's first one, I remember—vegetable soup and some messes we ate, like you do eat when you're young and hungry. But we've always fed each other ever since, and I hope always shall"——

Her round face fell a little.

"You mean you—you'll always go to these dinners three times a week, and—and"——

He put a careless arm round her.

"You aren't going to be Mrs. Henpeck, dearest?"

"Henpeck!" she cried aggrievedly. "Henpeck!"

A tiny quiver puckered the corners of the soft lips. She was very young, very pretty, very gregarious, and, since her marriage, very lonely, for after the first week or two Cartier had resumed all the old habits and occupations of his bachelorhood. He was a rising man in the ranks of journalism and his work and his club took him from home most of the day. The evenings to which she looked forward after solitary hours seemed always swallowed up for weeks ahead in a rush of multitudinous engagements. She was a little, country-bred girl, entirely ignorant of London, and was beginning to feel bewildered and more than a little aggrieved at the new waters into which he had plunged her and told her to swim alone. But—"Henpeck!" "Henpeck!" Never let it be said! Certainly not "henpeck!"

"I—I—it's been sort of—extra lonely today," she faltered, hating "Mossy" of the Beggars, who had "done" Stephen so well tonight.

"I meant to have been home earlier," he said, looking a little guilty. "But—well, one can't leave the fellows without a better excuse than bedtime"——

"There's me!" said Dorothy.

"Oh, you," he laughed. "You're only on sufferance, darling, and I don't obtrude your existence, you know. The Beggars broke one of their strictest rules when they allowed me to keep my membership after I married, and a tabooed subject at our feeds is 'women'! 'Extra lonely,' have you been? Well, now"——

She waited, looking forlorn.

"Well, now," he said, "couldn't you have asked Mrs. Pettigrew in or trotted up to her?" Mrs. Pettigrew was the occupant of the flat above them and absolutely young Mrs. Cartier's only London acquaintance—"and—and—had a gossip, or—er—helped her make the baby's clothes—or something? You might have gone out to tea together."

"I didn't want to go out with Mrs. Pettigrew," she answered, "and even if I had, she went out with her husband this afternoon."

"Oh, Pettigrew is a model benedict, I grant you!" said Cartier, a little sulky. "And, see here, dear, I think it's time we turned in, isn't it?" He stood up. "I'm abominably sleepy, and you're quite annoyed at having married a busy man who hasn't time to make love to you at all hours of the day—though he'd like to"—her reproachful face drew from him the concession. "You've been sitting up for me, and you're tired, little country girl. Go to bed. I'll just have a pipe here by this jolly fire you've kept, and—er—we mustn't let you feel 'extra lonely' again."

"Stephen, dear!" she murmured.

"If we can help it," he added, hastily. "You know what—er—what a rush I have—and I told you about the 'Beggars' when we were engaged, you remember, and what jolly good chaps they all are, and—and—how we've stuck by one another for years. But we must try to arrange some little dissipation together soon—I don't quite know when"—— She was waiting, expectant. "There's the football dinner tomorrow, at my old Streatham club, and a billiard handicap I can't very well miss the next night, but"——

"There's always something," she said, subduedly. She went slowly to the door, and turned: "My birthday the end of next week, Stephen. Couldn't we"——

He hesitated. "Darcy's feed that night. I'm afraid, dear. Told you who Darcy is, haven't I? But we'll see. Don't worry, Dorothy"——

"I didn't mean to," she said, and went out.

He sat down again and lighted a pipe, while his mind roved pleasantly over the events of the evening. They had all been there, all six "Beggars," at Mostyn's rooms, and the dinner had been a good one. There was Mostyn, the father of the little society, himself, Pigott, Darcy, Cleaver and Brooking, the youngest member—Brooking, of loose talk, and, they said, looser morals, but the best of good fellows, from whom life had crushed any petty squeamishness. So were they all the best of good fellows, all men of budding, worldly prosperity now, bachelor, cynics of circumstances, perhaps, but capital company.

There had been some good stories told—Cartier's lips curled over them yet. The little society had formed, years ago, through the chance meeting of two or three nearly out-at-elbows boys who discovered that they had all been educated at the same school—obscure—in the Midlands. They christened it the "Beggars," for obvious reasons, and each member dined the others once a fortnight in his rooms, if he had a plurality, in a restaurant if not. There were six of them now, and they had left the early struggles behind, but they still banded together with marvelous regularity. When Cartier returned from a Devonshire holiday with a little country-bred wife they broke Rule No. 1—there were three—and allowed him to retain his membership on condition of his still adhering to the other two, one of which was to attend their, and give his own, dinners in due course—the other, that the one tabooed subject thereat was still "women." Cartier, who had married the least exacting of her sex, pledged his adherence light-heartedly. Wherefore little Dorothy wept many secret tears, which she wiped ashamedly away; wherefore she began to sigh for the farm in Devonshire; wherefore one or two of the cynical bachelors who formed the "Beggars" found themselves wondering a little what sort of woman—or angel—Cartier had married; wherefore Louis Brooking, who possessed a turn that amounted to a talent for intrigue of the grosser sort, behind a face that heaven had apparently given him to facilitate it, swore to himself that he would go and see.

It had become a habit during these two months to put the slippers and old smoking jacket by his chair at the fire, so Cartier's wife brought them as usual and arranged them with pretty devotion.

Her husband had kissed her and gone to the football dinner at Streatham, and she had donned the pink frock and settled down to her lonely evening. He had brought her a book when he came home, and glowed with the conscious virtue of the thoughtful man who had done his duty. She loved his thoughtfulness, though she ached for his companionsip more than for a dozen presents, and she sat down by the fire and opened the book upon her knee.

But it was a Devonshire story.

She read two pages through swimming tears. She had never been lonely on this Devonshire farm for all her 22 years. The book slipped down on the hearth rug, and she laid her face on her arms and cried.

There is a drawing by Dana Gibson of a solitary woman sitting, her head bowed, her face hidden. The empty chair is drawn up to the fire and the slippers warming before it, and underneath the artist has written, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." That is all.

The woman, the slippers, the empty chair, the brief inscription, tell the whole story—the story Dorothy and her tears told to Louis Brooking when, no answer coming to his ring, he pushed open the outer door of the flat, went softly through the tiny hall, and, a sob guiding him, on to the drawing room.

He stood a moment on the threshold, looking in, unperceived. So this was Cartier's neglected wife, this sobbing girl in pink. The Gibson picture occurred to him briefly. He could not see her face, only the top of the bent brown head, and the slim shoulders heaving. He hesitated barely the fraction of a second, never doubting his reception. His vanity and his experience were equal to the idea that he knew women.

"Mrs. Cartier?"

She looked up—saw him—sprang up, frightened, breathless, speechless. He came quickly forward from the doorway, his dark eyes on her flushed face.

"You are Mrs. Cartier? I am awfully distressed. Please send me away"——

He added, after a moment's pause, during which he appeared to be deferentially awaiting her dismissal.

"But I am a friend of your husband's—Brooking, you know"——

"Oh! I—I know," she said. There were catches in her breath like a grieving child's. "I know, of c-c-course. No, d-d-don't go away, p-p-please. Stephen will be s-s-sorry to have missed you." She put out a small hand.

Brooking smiled, took both hands, and kept them a moment.

"But you are in trouble," he said. There was so much of the sympathy that she longed for in his voice. She checked her tears with a determined effort, and looked up at him, while he held her hands in a gentle grasp, with a grateful sense of confidence and comfort.

"Not exactly, but"——

"But you are," he contradicted, gently.

Her lips began to quiver again.

"I am very—foolish, Mr. B-B-Brooking"——

"You are not foolish at all," said Louis. "You are lonely."

She flushed with surprise at his comprehension.

"Lonely, and horribly bored all by yourself. Isn't that it? And Stephen has left you while he has gone to the club"——

To Be Continued Tomorrow and Concluded Tuesday.

FAVORS DEFAULT ON SUBURBAN COUPONS

Special Master in U. R. Receivership, However, Would Pay Interest on Other Bonds.

Judge Lamm, special master in the United Railways receivership suit, yesterday announced he would recommend to United States District Judge Faris that no payment be made on St. Louis and Suburban 5 per cent second mortgage bonds when the interest falls due April 1, but that payment of interest due on the same date be made on St. Louis Transit Co. 5 per cent bonds.

Rolla Wells, receiver of the United Railways Co., in a petition for the modification of a previous order, had asked that payment of interest on both these bond issues be withheld because a default was made Feb. 1 on payment of the principal of $2,000,000 St. Louis & Suburban first mortgage bonds which matured on that date.

The receiver, at a hearing held in the last few days argued that the interest payments should not be made on any underlying bonds of the United Railways system while there was a default in the principal of one issue of bonds.

Judge Lamm in his ruling yesterday took the view that this argument could not be applied to all the bonds, but that it would be improper to pay interest on one issue of Suburban bonds while another issue of Suburban bonds was in default. This however, he said, would not be a bar to the payment of interest on Transit bonds or bonds of any of the other component lines of the system except the Suburban, which comprises the Hodiamont line and parts of the Union, Sarah and Manchester lines.

Referring to possible foreclosure by holders of the Suburban first mortgage bonds, Judge Lamm said he did not think any one would favor dismemberment, as figures introduced at the hearing showed that the Suburban system, if operated independently, could not earn enough money to pay the interest on its debt. He said he would recommend to the court that the entire United Railways property continue to be operated as one system.

In the event of a foreclosure it is expected that a separate receivership will be created for the Suburban system and that Wells will be the receiver.

INQUEST IN DEATH OF MAN

An inquest will be held in the case of Louis Bantle, 48 years old, of 1327 Wash street, who died at 6 a. m. yesterday at the city hospital following an operation for gastric ulcer. The ailment was the result of poison which he had taken on March 15.

He told the police at McKinley Bridge Station, where he went after taking the acid, that he had overheard a man living in the same house with him say, "We'll get him in 24 hours." He said that was the reason for taking the poison.

ROBBERS AND POLICE IN PISTOL FIGHT

Four Men in Auto Return Fire of Those Who Try to Halt Them, and Escape.

Four robbers in an automobile were chased and fired at by several policemen about 3:30 a. m., yesterday, after they had been surprised by Motor Cycle Policeman Fierce while they were carrying a small safe from the Y. W. C. A. Cafeteria at Grand avenue and eDlmar boulevard.

Fierce, whose motor cycle was disabled, chased the men on foot. At Grand and Olive, three other policemen tried to halt the robbers' machine and fired several shots at it. The robbers returned the fire. The policemen commandeered an automobile and followed them, lost trace of the machine after it turned east in Chouteau avenue.

At 3:50 a. m. an automobile with four men in it was seen speeding south on Broadway at Carroll street. When a policeman tried to stop it he was fired at. He returned the fire. At Soulard street, a block further south a private watchman fired at the machine. The fire was returned. The machine turned west into Allen avenue and got away.

At 3:10 a. m., 20 minutes before the attempt to rob the cafeteria, burglars broke into the Regal Tie and Shirt Shop at 320 North Grand avenut, a block south of the cafeteria, and stole shirts and furnishings.

Lawyers Won't Handle Debt Suits.

By the Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, March 26.—The Rev. Claude L. Jones, pastor of a local church, who has just returned from a visit to Jennings, La., said the lawyers of Jefferson Davis Parish, including Jennings, have formed an agreement not to assist in any suits brought for indebtedness during the present period of stringency, during which rice is down to $1 a sack, which is said to be below cost of production.

FIREMEN APPEAL IN SONG FOR AN EIGHT-HOUR DAY

Glee Club Sings on Movie Stage and Zouaves Drill on Grand Avenue.

The Zouave drill team of the St. Louis Fire Department gave an exhibition in front of the Missouri Theater on Grand avenue yesterday afternoon. Mayor Kiel granted a suspension of traffic while the men were going through their maneuvers. The drill lasted 10 minutes.

The Glee Club of the Firt Department, composed of 20 members of the organization, made its first public appearance on the Missouri stage yesterday, and will continue as a feature of the program throughout the week. The firemen sing on original composition by Maxwell Goldman, the St. Louis composer, which carries with it an appeal for an eight-hour day.

TAX ON LAMPERT ESTATE MAY SET A STATE RECORD

Appraiser Estimates That, on Valuation of $1,000,000, Payments Will Approximate $157,000.

The estate of the late Jacob Lampert, cigar manufacturer, will probably be assessed the highest State inheritance tax ever levied against an estate in Missouri, it was said yesterday by an appraiser who has levied inheritance taxes against many estates in this city.

Lampert's inventory showed personal property with a par value in excess of $1,200,000. The appraiser said that on the basis of a net valuation of $1,000,000, the inheritance tax against the cigar manufacturer's property would be approximately $157,000. He knew of no other estate tax in Missouri which approached that figure except the Swope estate of Kansas City, which, he said, however, did not pay as much.

McKee Tax Was $78,000.

According to the appraiser, the highest inheritance tax so far against any estate in St. Louis was that of $78,000 paid by the heirs of Miss Ellen McKee, one of the owners of the Globe-Democrat. Like the Lampert estate, Miss McKee's property went to collateral heirs, against whose interests a higher levy is made than is made against bequests to direct hears or to a wife, husband or parents. In addition to the State tax, the Lampert estate will have to pay a heavy Federal inheritance tax.

The appraiser's figures on the Lampert tax were on the theory that Mrs. Bernard M. Graff of 5349 Pershing avenue, a sister of Lampert, remains the principal beneficiary. In his will he left about $55,000 to charity, which is exempt from taxation; $500 to each employe who had been with him 10 years or more and the residue to Mrs. Graff.

The bequests to the old employes, of whom there are about 14, will be assessed 5 per cent or $25 each, and the bequest to Mrs. Graff will be assessed on a rising scale, starting from about 3 per cent. On the last $600,000 the assessmennt is at the rate of 18 per cent.

Suit Could Affect Total.

Eleven nieces and nephews of Lampert have filed a suit to set aside his will. If this suit should prevail, the assessment will not be as large as it would be if the estate were divided according to the terms of the will, the appraiser said. He explained that if the estate were divided into three parts as the plaintiffs in the will contest demand, the different heirs would be entitled to various exemptions which would reduce the tax to about $101,000.

Col. M. A. Aldrich, Editor, Dies.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Col. M. A. Aldrich, a veteran newspaper editor and author, died at his home here today. He was one of the founders of the Milwaukee Journal and later managing editor of the Boston Globe, Detroit Evening News, St. Louis Star and other newspapers. His best-known book was a "History of the United States Marines."

A widow, the Rev. Alice Phillips Aldrich, pastor of a Chicago church, and a son, M. A. Aldrich, a St. Paul newspaper man, survive him.

5000 CARPENTERS REFUSE TO ACCEPT WAGE REDUCTION

Members of District Council Decline to Lower the Prevailing Rate of $1.25 an Hour.

PRICES OF MATERIAL CITED AT MEETING

Secretary of Union Says Efficiency Has Increased—Barbers to Consider Readjustment of Scale.

More than 5000 carpenters, members of the Carpenters' District Council, rejected a proposal to accept a reduction in wages through officials of the council acting for them at a meeting with representatives of the Master Builders' Association held Friday afternoon in the offices of the Building Industries' Association. The carpenters, who have been working without a signed agreement since July of last year, receive $1.25 an hour, the basic wage of trades in the building industries.

Although the employing contractors in the building trades have been asking the various unions in the last few months to agroee to a reduction of wages of 20 per cent, no percentage of reduction was mentioned to the carpenters' representatives.

Increased Efficiency Claimed.

J. L. Fritz, secretary of the union council, informed the employers that the carpenters would not agree to any adjustment of wages at this time, declaring that efficiency had increased about 30 per cent since jobs were more plentiful and this condition ought to compensate for the prevailing wage scale.

He pointed out that material dealers and manufacturers were exacting exorbitant prices for building materials and would eagerly take to themselves anything that labor would agree to relinquish.

A spirit of amity pervaded the conference, and the question of wages, working conditions and the cost of living were freely discussed.

The union of hoisting engineers Friday night voted unanimously to reject a proposal to accept a decrease of 20 per cent in wages. They receive $1.25 to $1.37½ an hour and have about 135 members. The Painters' District Council, which has about 2000 members, also voted down a similar proposal. Their contract has expired and the prevailing wage, $1.25 an hour, is being paid.

Barbers to Discuss Readjustment of the Existing Scale.

Readjustment of wages will be discussed at a meeting to be held this morning at Central Trades and Labor Hall, 2228 Olive street, by representatives of employing barbers displaying union cards in their shops and Barbers' Union, Local 102. Under the present contract, which expires April 1, the journeymen barbers are guaranteed $25 a week and get 65 per cent of all their weekly business in excess of $35. There are 600 members in the union, and 265 boss barbers employing union men.

Athough no agreement has been reached, about half of the union barbers employed, who have been earning the minimum of $25 a week because their week's business did not reach the commission-earning basis of $35 want the minimum wage increased from $25 to $26 a week, while those who have been benefiting by the commission of 65 per cent might agree to a reduction in the commission to 60 per cent.

The bosses, it is understood, will not entertain any proposition which might necessitate an increase in the price of tonsorial work, but probably will consent to a readjustment of the wage scale if it does not interfere with present prices. Haircuts in union shops now cost 50 cents and a shave 25 cents.

WILL ASK THAT KING'S WEDDING BE LEGALIZED FOR CHILD'S SAKE

Greek Government Will Seek to Establish Right of Daughter to Inherit Alexander's Fortune.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, March 26.—The Government will ask the national assembly to legalize the marriage of the late King Alexander and Mme. Aspasia Manos, who yesterday gave birth to a daughter, in order to establish the right of the child to inherit the late King's fortune, it was announced today.

The patient's doctor, Queen Sophie and an American trained nurse are in attendance on Mme. Manos and both she and her daughter are doing well.

AMERICAN RED CROSS WORKER REPORTED IN MOSCOW PRISON

Capt. Emmet Kilpatrick Given 20 Years by Soviet Tribunal—Investigation Ordered.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Capt. Emmet Kilpatrick of Uniontown, Ala., Red Cross worker in South Russia, captured by the Bolsheviki forces last fall, is reported to have been sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment at hard labor by a soviet tribunal in Moscow. Red Cross headquarters here has ordered an investigation.

Capt. Kilpatrick, while on leave of absence, got far forward with the forces of Gen. Wrangel, and was captured when soviet armies started a general advance. It has been definitely established that he was taken to Moscow, and imprisoned there, though there was no previous report that he had been formally tried.

The reports said Kilpatrick was tried in retaliation for alleged condemnation of Russian communists in the United States.

Office Employes at Packing Plant Adopt Daylight Saving.

FIRST COAL IN COUNTRY DISCOVERED IN ILLINOIS

By the Associated Press.

URBANA, Ill., March 26.—Coal in the United States was first discovered in Illinois, according to S. W. Parr, professor of applied chemistry at the University of Illinois.

Prof. Parr says in an article just published here that Illinois' greatest asset next to its agricultural interests is its coal, and reports that its coal reserves are computed by the United States Geological Survey to exceed in amount those possessed by any other State in the Union, not excepting Pennsylvania or West Virginia.

"The location of the first discovery of coal in this country," writes the State University professor, "was in the territory occupied at the time by the Illinois Indians, at a point approximately opposite Starved Rock on the north side of the Illinois River. At least the first mention of coal in the United States is found in the journal of Father Hennepin, who in 1679 reported an outcropping of 'Cole' not far from Fort Crevecoeur on the Illinois River, and marked the location on the map accompanying his journal.

"Practically contemporaneous with the earliest production of anthracite in Pennsylvania and of bituminous coal in Virginia, occurred the actual mining of coal in Jackson County, Ill., on the Big Muddy River, a flatboat being loaded at that point in 1810 and sent down the river to New Orleans.

"If the date for the beginning of coal production in the State were a little more definite, we might with propriety take note of the 100th anniversary and fittingly celebrate the event. The 250th anniversary of coal discovery is very precisely defined and occurs in 1929."

EDUCATIONAL FILMS AVAILABLE FOR USE IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Pictures Deal With Geography, History and Other Subjects—60 Schools Have Machines.

More than $50,000 worth of educational motion picture films is now available for use in the public schools in connection with the work in geography, history and other subjects. All of this film was donated by various industrial concerns. A wide variety of subjects is covered, such as the manufacture of clocks, cordage, pens, Hawaiian ukeleles, shoes, paper, pianos, watches, scenes in Alaska, Yellowstone Park, California, Hawaiian Islands and various cities of the United States.

Recently the United States Bureau of Commercial Economics donated 119 reels of film to the schools. The films are stored at the Educational Museum, 1606 South Eighteenth street. From there they are distributed to the various schools on requisition. Sixty schools now have motion picture machines.

More than 85,000 collections have been catalogued by the museum for use in the schools. Many of them were donated by various firms and individuals.

State Bank in Texas Closes Doors.

By the Associated Press.

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex., March 26.—The Guaranty State Bank of Breckenridge closed its doors at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon, after posting a notice that it was in the hands of the State Insurance and Banking Department. Suspension of the institution caused little apparent interest.

ANNUAL DOG SHOW OPENS TOMORROW AT THE COLISEUM

750 Contestants Expected for Medals, Cups and Cash Prizes Amounting to $2500.

VIRTUALLY EVERY BREED IS ENTERED

Sizes Will Range From Great Dane Weighing 160 Pounds to Toy Black and Tans.

The eleventh dog show of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club will be held tomorrow and Tuesday in the Coliseum, with about 750 contestants for the medals, cups and $2500 in cash which will be given as prizes.

The entries range in size from a great Dane, which weighs something like 160 pounds, huge St. Bernards and Newfoundlands, to tiny Pomeranians and still smaller toy black and tans. The most numerous entries are Airedales, Boston and fox terriers, pointers and English setters. They include many champions and some breeds never shown in St. Louis.

Wire-haired pointing griffons, a rare hunter which is said to excel both the pointer and setter, are exhibited by E. A. Wheatley of Chattanooga, Tenn. This dog resembles the pointer, but has a larger head, longer hair and a hair-covered face.

Cairn Terrier Entered.

A Cairn terrier, said to be the only one in this part of the country, is exhibited by A. Horn of 1710 Market street, who has entries of two other uncommon breeds, Scottish and West Highland white terriers. The Cairn has a long body and short legs. The "Scottie" is a brindle. West Highland whites are entered also by Miss Cathleen Illingworth, who has several champions at the kennels of Alf Delmont in Wynnewood, Pa.

Brussels griffons, which have never been shown here, are entered by the Sinaway Kennels of Hartsdale, N. Y. They are coveted pets and no larger than Pomeranians. A Sealyham terrier is exhibited by Miss Elizabeth Cuendet of 4 Hortense place.

Chesapeake Bay dogs, large, brownish hunters, which have become scarce, are entered by Joseph Pulitzer Jr. and Clark McAdams. This is one of the many classes in which special prizes are offered.

The Chesapeake Bay dog is said to be the oldest of the few real American breeds. It is somewhat like the Newfoundland, but smaller and with even heavier hair. Its protective coat, proficiency in swimming and intelligence make it the peer of all duck retrievers. For this reason it is most common in the Middle West, in the Chesapeake Bay district and the other hunting grounds of the duck shooter. It was a prominent show dog a few years ago, and a club has been formed by George W. Harper Jr. of Short Hills, N. J., to revive interest in this breed.

Champion Chow Entered.

Among the noted dogs to be shown is Champion Lord Cholmondeley II, one of the greatest of all "chows," and winner of many firsts. It is entered by the Adamston Kennels, Mount Vernon, N. Y. The Duke of Argyle, a Gordon setter priced in the catalogue at $1000, is shown by Meta D. Aharon of Gloucester City, N. J.

Much interest is manifested in the entry of Ferris Jake, a pointer which won the national championship last month in the field trials at Grand Junction, Tenn. He belongs to the Griffith Kennels, Yale, Ok.

Very fine Pomeranians are shown by Mrs. T. W. Sessinghaus of 5315 Cabanne place, who also represents a number of other exhibitors. August A. Busch Jr. is showing several shepherds, and an imported bulldog, Lallie, which is regarded with some misgiving by other contestants in this class, is entered by Ellen Busch of Grant's Farm. A number of bulldogs are entered by the Warfleigh Kennels of Indianapolis, which are among the largest in the country.

Many Fox Terriers.

Irish terriers are entered from the noted kennels of Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody of Hinsdale, Ill., and fox terriers by James Strachan of Montreal, Can., and also by the Coolridge Kennels of Altamont, N. Y. Boston terriers, including several champions, are entered by Miss Mable C. Thorpe of the North Side Kennels.

Pekingese are exhibited by Mrs. John C. Liggett of Corcoran Manor, Mount Vernon, N. Y. Chihuahuas, Russian wolfhounds, Manchester black and tans, and collies, are some of the others, and it would not do to leave unlisted the badger dog, erstwhile the dachshund, which has become in little demand as a show dog.

The show will be under the direction of George Foley and F. W. Barnes of the Westminster Kennel Club show. G. L. L. Davis is president of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club and G. B. O'Reilly is secretary.

Million Population Club to Meet.

Speakers at the meeting of the Million Population Club at the American Hotel Annex at 8 o'clock tomorrow night will be Thomas K. Skinker on "The Framing of the 1875 Constitution of the State, and the 1876 Scheme and Charter;" P. C. Baker, vice chairman of the Daylight Savings Plan Committee; Arthur Stoehr, president of the Tenth Ward Improvement Association, and C. L. Chittenden, chairman of the club membership committee.

Gorky Assails Soviet Regime as Breeder of Chaos

'Way in Which Things Are Handled Is the Way of Savages," Author Boldly Declares in Petrograd Paper—Mad Destruction of Products of Labor and Life's Necessities Goes on Over Whole Length and Breadth of Russia, He Charges—Stupidity Vies With Thievery.

IT IS not often that one finds some of the worst charges leveled against the soviet regime confirmed by a recognized leader of the Bolshevist movement. The following article was published by Maxim Gorky, who is something in the nature of the commissary of science and art in the soviet government. The picture he draws of the chaos into which ignorance and anarchy have thrown Russia is pathetic. The parcels sent through the post wrapped in canvases of valuable paintings cut from their frames; the moujik stealing rivets from the sleepers on the railroads to make horseshoes—these things would probably be angrily denied if they came from the pen of an imperial investigator.

Maxim Gorky's article appeared in the Pravda (The Truth) of Petrograd.

WHAT is a workman?

A workman is a man who takes a mass of any given matter—iron, clay or wood—and transforms it into a beautiful or useful object; into a tool or instrument of precision, into complicated machines, which are almost living things; into beautiful windows, into fine furniture—in a word, into anything that lightens the labor of men or adds to the joy of their life.

Everything (not produced by nature) on the face of the earth has been created by the work of man, and everything that surrounds us is the crystallization of the flesh and blood of the workman. Everything, whatever it may be, is the incarnation of human energy.

That is an indisputable truth.

And this being so, it would seem that the workman should understand the educational value of his work and hold in high esteem that which is the product of his labor.

Especially today is this knowledge necessary, for now the treasures of the country, the fruits of the labor of the workmen, have become the property of those who created them, and of the whole nation, and are not merely the belongings of a few thousand masters of the bourgeoisie, as they were before the revolution.

The Way of Savages

And yet, up to now, this has not been understood among us.

The way in which the things are handled is a way of savages who have neither understanding of the usefulness nor appreciation of the beauty of these things, and; what is worse, who do not realize that now all things are the property of the republic.

"What does it matter? It is not ours," says the savage from Samara as he smashes up a priceless piece of furniture in Petrograd to build his fire.

And the savage from Penza destroys the things of Samara, and thus over the whole length and breadth of Russia is going on mad destruction of the productions of labor and of all things that are necessary to the life of man.

There is another way—that of the stupid vandals who, destroying and slaughtering everything, exclaim in their overweening assurance: "We will do better." These boasters ought to understand that the day is not near in which it will be possible for them to do better than has already been done, to make things better than those already made—things which exist and which ought to have existed, which for countless ages have insured man's comfort and lightened his burden.

We shall for a long time be prevented from working in peace, for our enemies have a primordial interest that we should remain naked, a prey to cold and hunger and in a condition which would reduce us as soon as possible to a state of physical depletion and moral barbarism. Our enemies hope to reduce us to complete impotence and drive us to despair, so that they can urge the Russian people to surrender at mercy for a piece of rotten bread and a few rags.

A Political and Social Crime

So it is perfectly clear that the savages and boasters who destroy the assets of the nation render service to their irreconcilable enemies, who work for their own abasement and strengthen the hope which the capitalists still nourish of stifling and crushing the Russian revolution by misery and the wearing out of its strength.

Judged by this standard, the act of destroying a thing of daily use is both a political and a social crime.

We are much less rich in manufactured things than in raw materials, which we cannot work up today because our frontiers are closed. Perhaps tomorrow it may be the turn of the negroes, for the hunting down of Russia is not yet near its end.

We must all permeate ourselves with the idea that we are engaged in a death struggle and that the partisans of the old order are still passing strong.

That is why it is essential, both from the standpoint of morals and of politics, that we should conserve and treat with greater care our national patrimony, which is being destroyed and dissipated with such frightful rapidity.

While producing little or nothing, we are consuming at an alarming rate. Without rhyme or reason, and often with a kind of unholy joy, things are destroyed which are not only of great intrinsic values for our homes, but which have a tremendous artistic, historic and educational value, or which are models of craftsmanship and of art.

Playing Into Our Enemies' Hands

Thus, for instance, one sees parcels sent from the provinces by post wrapped in the canvases of magnificent pictures cut from their frames. Thus in winter are the stoves heated with splendid pieces of furniture each of which is worth many tons of wood. And it would have been possible to exchange this furniture for food and butter and saws and axes and scythes from Finland.

I repeat that for a long time we shall have to do with what we have, for it is not tomorrow that the capitalists of the Entente will renounce their policy of preventing us from working peacefully and productively. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that we should respect and conserve with care our present assets.

This carelessness toward labor and the products of labor is playing into our enemies' hands. And work is done with shameful incuriousness and often in an absurd manner. Every day one sees burlesque examples in which stupidity vies with cruelty and the ignorance of labor with the refusal to help or to learn.

A Foolish Wastage of Effort

On the ice of the Neva six bourgeois shivering with cold are pushing sleds overburdened with planks for boat building. They slip, they fall, and the planks slide onto the ice. These makeshift workmen are guarded by eight powerful youths with guns. The convoy moves slowly as a funeral procession. It would cost the guards nothing to help those people, who, for the first time in their lives, are called upon to do hard physical labor. But they never even have the idea of holding back with the butts of their rifles the planks which slip from the sledges. They march one behind the other, swearing volubly and, made weary by this useless task, they yawn and whistle and waste utterly time that is so precious.

In another place a car is being loaded. On one axle are piled heavy barrels of cement, cases of lead, pieces of machinery, etc. On the other, rocking chairs, household goods, a perambulator—things that are quite light. The overloaded axle will, of course, become heated and the car will not reach its destination. I have been a porter myself. I know that had I tried to load a wagon in that way my boss would have boxed my ears and told me to go to the devil. And I should have deserved it, for I should have been injuring the rolling stock.

In another place a mechanical saw is being used to cut rafters and planks from a house which has been torn down. The wood is full of nails and the saw groans painfully. It is quickly spoiled and its teeth broken, yet it is common knowledge that we have no saws and that the price is so high that for one saw we have to give many bushels of wheat, and wheat itself is scarce.

Houses are being destroyed in a most revolting fashion. The windows are all broken, though we have no glass, and it would be so easy to take out the panes without breaking them. In the barracks transparent paper takes the place of window glass, letting in no light and keeping in no heat, therefore more furniture is burnt to warm the barracks.

Metal roofing is allowed to lie for months in the midst of the wreckage of destroyed houses. It rusts and becomes absolutely useless. The roofs of the inhabited houses are also rusted and the rain comes through, but nothing is done to mend them. Walls and ceilings fall in and well-built houses rapidly become uninhabitable.

Destroying the Nation's Assets

And this is how, by sheer stupidity, by lack of regard for their own labor, our people destroy the valuable assets of the nation and ruin the patrimony of the public.

Our streets are littered with pieces of iron and the moujik in his village has nothing wherewith to repair his wheels and axles, and cannot even

Thanks to Your Suggestions!

Constructive suggestions from many women helped Westinghouse make an iron which really will do fine work better and flat work more quickly, week after week after week, without failing.

The heat is concentrated in the base, where it belongs, and the base itself is larger. The bottom of the iron is beveled all the way around, to make intricate and delicate work easier. It is a beautifully finished iron, perfectly balanced, with an especially comfortable grip.

It will interest any woman to inspect this graceful, dependable utility at her electric light company or the Westinghouse Store.

INFORMER IS FREED OF ROBBERY CHARGE

Case Against Thomas Flowers, Whose Testimony Convicted Five, Is Nolle Prossed.

A charge of robbery in the first degree against Thomas Flowers, 48 years old, of 3918 Knapp street, a former member of the Fire Department, who has been in jail since last September, was nolle prossed yesterday by Circuit Attorney Sidener in consideration of Flowers helping the State to convict five other men who were implicated with him in the holdup last Aug. 21 of the paymaster of the National Refriegerators Co., who was robbed of $4056.

After entering a plea of guilty to the charge against him, Flowers turned State's evidence against his codefendants, and sentence in his case was deferred.

As a result of Flowers' testimony, reinforced by corroborative evidence, the other cases were disposed of as follows: Oscar R. Roderman, 20 years in the penitentiary; Charles C. Adams, 15 years; Roy Clarence Mills, 12 years; Clifton Roy Frank, 10 years, and Harry Sechmelzer, eight years. The latter entered a plea of guilty and the four others stood trial. Roderman rejected an offer to plead guilty and accept a sentence of seven years.

HORACE MANN SCHOOL'S EXHIBIT

Pupils to Hold Open Session on Friday and Demonstrate Methods.

Pupils at Horace Mann School will hold an open session, beginning at 7:30 p. m. Friday to demonstrate methods of class work for persons unable to get away from work during the day. The school held a similar affair three years ago which was attended by several thousand parents and relatives. The school has 900 pupils.

Regular class instructions will be given by the teachers in all of the subjects taught. Parents and friends have been invited.

GORKY ARRAIGNS SOVIET SYSTEM AS BREEDER OF CHAOS

forge shoes or nails for his horses or teeth for his rakes. That is why he goes out to the railway bridges and tries to saw off a piece of iron, or to loosen the rivets of the sleepers, or attempts to steal from the station the piece of metal that he needs. For a carload of iron the moujik would gladly barter a carload of wheat. Yet the hundreds of thousands of old saucepans that are scattered among the ruins of the houses would suit him very well and he could put to good use the window sashes and doors that are burned in the cities for heating purposes.

Doubtless these are all very minor matters, and particularly unimportant to us whose object is to teach the whole world a new order of things and a new manner of life. But can one learn conscientiously from masters who themselves either do not know how to work or will not work, and who will soon have no clothes to put on their backs? I do not think the European workman can have any great respect for comrades who do not know how to organize their own labor. The politics of social revolution doubtless is very fine, but work comes first.

All these little things of which I have spoken are repeated by thousands, by tens of thousands, and they create an atmosphere of scandalous unrest, of laziness and of criminal carelessness, for all that goes to make up the patrimony of the public. Looked at as a whole, these little facts give real encouragement to the hopes and aims of the enemies of the working classes of Russia.

Our 71st An sary E

When this house first opened doors, 71 years ago, St. Louis, which has almost 780,000 people, had less 78,000.

The goods on the shelves had all from the East by river and canal; it not until four years later that the railroad reached the banks of Mississippi; and the steamers that the boxes and bales for our opening filled with goldseekers bound for fornia, for this was the next year
'49.

There is no business house elsewhe in the United States whose city has such changes in 71 years as St. Louis. community passed from slavery to dom: it went through four years of war that cut off its most profitable and ruined its best customers; it changed from the greatest river port the United States to the second center of the world: it has developed a purely trading community to one of greatest of industrial centers.

Business has gone on; but the vidual business houses of 1850 passed away. This house alone
Founded by Richard Scruggs, it was developed by him that, as he grew old, retained its youth. It has grown old, like a man, but like a tree. It is stronger, fresher, and deeper rooted ever.

Why has Vandervoort's lived grown? In retail merchandising there no monopoly or special privilege; store that goes forward faces competiti in a free field. No one leadership have continuity for anything like years; there are at least three busine generations in the span of the life of house. The sterling integrity of founders is but a part of the explanation there is no monopoly on honesty; name of St. Louis has always stood in minds of American business men for est prices and fair dealing.

The explanation of 71 years of tinuous growth, culminating in an ganization of outstanding strength usefulness, is to be found in the concep tion of service in which its foundation were laid—the conception with Richard Scruggs began, and broadened and enriched with the broad ening life of mankind, animates the

Vandervoort's has done something more than supply honest goods at an honest price; it has remembered that the things in life that last longest and count for most are the invisible things: that souls and not bodies are the supreme realities. In an age when trade in half of St. Louis territory was barter with savages and when the motto in many an American community was "Let the buyer beware," the founder of Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney had already seen and understood that the selling of goods, rightly understood, is the service of human lives.

◖ This is the conception which has animated 71 years. Dresses and hats, books and games, tools and furniture are not mere devices of cotton, wool and silk, of wood and metal; they are made "according to the measure of the man," like the Heavenly City; they are instruments of work and play, the thought and effort of immortal beings. "To give the public what it wants" is a small part of the duty of an American mercantile house; this is a land of growing opportunity; the public, growing richer in material things year by year, has wants which are as real yet as vague as the desire of the child to climb the hill on the horizon, and see what lies beyond. It looks to the merchant for the revelation of things dreamed of but not yet seen—for objects of use, beauty and comfort developed by the life of other lands and peoples, for the fruits of invention and fancy at home and abroad. In all ages the great merchants have been more than mere buyers and sellers again; they have seen the vision and felt the drift of their time, and helped men and women to move with it.

◖ Today, this store, with its force of 2000—its salespeople, technical staff, artists, craftsmen—acknowledges spiritual kinship with the little organization formed by Richard Scruggs in the frontier city in 1850. Deep-rooted in the soil, owned by St. Louisans, directed by and for St. Louisans, displaying choicest products of St. Louis skill and craftsmanship, this house is a place for the bringing together of the choicest, finest and fittest things and adornment of human life, in order to serve, express and adorn the lives of men, women and children of St. Louis and of the great Empire of which it is the pulse and heart.

PUBLIC INTEREST IN STOCK MARKET SHOWS INCREASE

Activity, Though, Still Predominately Professional—Cheap Money by Fiat Called Impossible—Buyers' Strike On.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Movements in the financial markets continue to be confused and irregular. Rallies and reactions occur in individual instances, but nothing like a genuine spring revival of trade is so far in evidence. Cotton has shown the effect of a better feeling in the English textile market, which is based on the British trade agreement with soviet Russia, and the permanence of which is, accordingly, open to grave question. Wheat, on the other hand, has fallen to new low prices, a circumstance which is consistent with large existing stocks, a big crop coming on, and a lack of export demand. In foreign exchange market sharp movements of individual currencies have been the features, Italian lire losing part of their large gain, francs being heavy and the Central European moneys showing erratic fluctuations in accordance with political and economic developments on the continent. Speculation clearly is as large a factor in the exchanges as ever, and balances evidently are shifting about a great deal to meet rapidly exchanging current in the political situation.

"Interest in the stock market and trading on the exchange have increased markedly during the past 10 days. While activity remains predominately professional, a large element of public interest had appeared and the character of trading has undergone a change. Instead of a series of bear raids conducted over a narrow list, the market has seen days of distinctly heavy trading with a goodly number of issues dealt in and with some buying of low-priced stocks. The bears, to be sure, continued active, but have been meeting with opposition from a considerable number who are convinced that a 'spring rise' is on the cards. Some believe that it is already under way and has not much longer to run while others take the view that it is only about to start and mention two or three weeks as the possible duration. However that may be it is apparent that from an economic standpoint little real basis for such a rise exists. Spring trade certainly has shown no strings vigorous enough to justify optimism in the stock market, nor is the monetary or the political outlook such to lead to expectations of happy events. This does not mean that a rise in stocks will not occur, but simply that it will have to be built on a technical basis.

Buying Falls Off.

"Money rates, meanwhile, command much attention. This situation arises naturally from the known influence of money rates on security prices and from certain mistaken ideas regarding the relation of money rates and general trade. Oddly enough the agitation for cheap money is more violent in England, where less consistent improvement is shown in the reserve ratio of the Central bank than in this country. It is apparent, however, that the clamor is growing in both countries, much being made of the revival of trade which, it is represented, would follow promptly on a lowering of the discount rate.

"The fact must be faced that the fundamental obstacle to better trade is a falling off in buying which extends all over the world. Cotton mills are idle because consumers are not buying cloth as formerly, and shoe factories are closed for a similar reason. Trade will remain dull until consumers start buying again, and the lack of buying springs not from high money rates, but from the fact that consumers either do not like existing retail prices or are unable to buy with their present resources. What is needed to relieve this situation is that the sharp reductions which have occurred in wholesale prices be passed on to the consumer in the form of retail prices, a process which admittedly is not yet reasonably complete.

Cheap Money Essential.

"Cheap money certainly is essential to any vigorous revival of trade, but it must come as the result of natural processes and cannot be created by fiat. When credit becomes really plentiful banks will bid for accounts and will offer lower rates. Meanwhile we may spare ourselves disillusionment by avoiding ill-considered artificial expedients, the real effect of which is likely to be an aggravation rather than a solution to our present difficulty."

"Trading on the Stock Exchange was fairly active with prices moving within a comparatively narrow range. Much irregularity at the start was followed by a resumption of strength in the motor stocks and a few other specialties, which turned the list firm. While certain issues showed conspicuous weakness, fractional advances predominated toward the close. Sterling was firm at $3.91¾, lire were up 3 points and francs and marks were unchanged.

"An increase of $4,200,000 in the surplus reserve of the Clearing House banks brings the total of this item to $7,700,000. Loans meanwhile are less by $86,000,000 and deposits are less by $31,000,000. The only other significant change is an increase of $51,000,000 in Government deposits."

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $7,661,040 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $4,221,010 from last week.

The statement follows:

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 26.—It is necessary to divide the review of the foreign exchange market during the past week in various groups, as exchanges on several important points moved in different directions. Sterling was steadily maintained above $3.90 without regard to fluctuations in other rates, and at the end of the week decreased offerings made a moderate inquiry effective in advancing the rate nearly 2 cents over that of a week ago. The sterling market misses the supply of bills that had been expected against grain shipments, but the British commission has not been a buyer of wheat for some time. Absence of bills against copper and cotton shipments which a short time ago seemed to be pending was another element helping a display of firmness in sterling and continental exchange.

The upward movement in Italian exchange was not renewed, although lire checks rose 4 cents again during the week, but after this advance the rate fell to 3.85.

Most interest was attached to banking dealings in Swiss exchange on a large scale. Swiss checks, after selling at 17.43 on Monday, had a sudden collapse, dropping to 16.90, but later in the week again became strong and advanced to above 17.30. Austrian exchange was helped for a time by advices from the continent that European allies would arrange for extension of credits to Austria and crown checks which recently sold at .19 moved up .35, but lost most of this gain when differences over German reparations again demanded attention.

The volume of business was small all through the week, as a natural result of anticipation and observance of the Easter holidays in England on the continent, and the observance of Good Friday here. In the past few days the market was at a standstill for long intervals.

The market was dull and without special feature today, business being restricted by observance of the Easter holiday in many sections.

Sterling was steady and unchanged from yesterday's closing, while a slight improvement was made in French and Italian rates. Danish was also slightly higher.

INCREASED ACTIVITY IS SHOWN ON CURB

Maracaibo in Urgent Demand and Advances Sharply—Prices of Bonds Little Changed.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 26.—An accumulation of moderate buying orders in some issues over the holiday caused increased activity on the Curb Market today, and resulted in a steady tone. The professionals also were more active than earlier in the week, but their dealings were about equally divided between the buying and selling side. Insiders did a little in one or two of the oils.

Maracaibo was one of the features, being in urgent demand for a time and advancing nearly 3 points to a new high record on large dealings, and profit-taking sales at the high figure were well absorbed. Salt Creek Producing also was more active and rose a substantial fraction on a good general demand. Skelly-Carib Syndicate and several others traded in were slightly higher. Arkansas Natural Gas moved up a point. Chicago and Eastern Illinois, common and preferred, when issued, which were the leaders early in the week, were somewhat irregular and business was smaller.

United States Steamship held steady. There was a sale of Lake Torpedo the first time in weeks at unchanged prices. United Profit Sharing was active and a steady tone was shown in Sweets Co. Acme Coal was firm on moderate trading.

Dealings in bonds were less active than heretofore, and prices generally showed little change from the previous closing. Chicago and Eastern Illinois, when issued, were in comparatively good demand around 61¼ to 61¾.

Interest in the mining department was again centered in active issues. Eureka Croesus was in comparatively good demand and at an unusually sound advance. Boston and Montana rose 2 points and Florence Goldfield moved up a point.

Hope of Cheaper Money Largely Basis of Good Feeling Despite Political Situation in Europe—Deal With Soviets Disapproved.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, March 26.—The stock market disbanded for the Easter holidays in an optimistic mood, for, strangely enough, the mere hope of cheaper money seems sufficient, in the case of the market, to offset and even obscure such formidable considerations as anarchy in Germany, political and economic chaos in Europe, unprecedented disorders in Ireland, depressed trade, labor and social unrest, and the great financial congestion caused by the carrying of commodities in borrowed money on both sides of the Atlantic. The outbreak in Germany probably will further complicate the arrangements with the allies and defer a settlement, while further occupation of Germany by allied troops would involve additional outlays and would delay economic recuperation.

Labor Is Attacked.

Lloyd George's sudden attack on labor is both inopportune and unwise. In the first place, labor, as a result of the adversity brought by the trade depression, had just begun to show a slightly more reasonable attitude, with some readiness to accept reductions in wages corresponding with the decline in the cost of living. In the second place, the Premier's tactics clearly are designed primarily to strengthen the ranks of the coalition.

Lloyd George now apparently is using recent excesses of labor, which, in fact, are due largely to unwise concessions by his own Government, as a reason for attacking the entire labor movement. The speech in fact, represents an entire policy of anti-socialism, whereas what is needed is a constructive policy such as will bring capital and labor into co-operation.

The speech is the more extraordinary in the light of the recent recognition of the soviet Government, which recognition, together with any handling of soviet gold, is distasteful to business circles here.

Aid for Austria.

The Government's financial year probably will close slightly under the estimates, in which case, however, the result probably will be due to the Government's desire to make a big show of improvement in the forthcoming budget.

There is reason to believe that developments are pending which are likely to produce a favorable effect on Austria's financial position in general and upon Austrian exchange.

PRODUCE DECLINES IN YEAR

Bureau of Markets Makes Comparison of Wholesale Prices.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The marked decline in wholesale produce prices was illustrated by the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Markets, in a statement yesterday of comparisons based on reports from 10 leading cities.

Potatoes a year ago selling wholesale at $5.75 a hundred pounds, now are quoted at $1.35; onions which were $6.25 a hundred pounds a year ago, now are quoted at 70 cents; new cabbage, which was $6.25 a barrel a year ago, now is $3.50 a barrel, and best cold storage apples of standard varieties quoted at $8.75 a barrel last March, now sell for $5.50.

Detroit Woman Hunting Father.

Mrs. Robert Bird of 1951 Baker street, Detroit, Mich., has written to the Post-Dispatch asking for aid in tracing her father, Emil Stephanske, from whom she has not heard for six years. She says she has reason to believe that he is in St. Louis. She wants him to know that she is married and has her own home and is anxious to hear from him.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The three principal determinants in the future course of the financial markets are: First—The trade movement; second—The outcome of the efforts to reduce productions costs, and third, the state of the money and credit supply. Regarding trade conditions there is still a great variety of opinions. Those who take their cue from the more immediate facts about the volume of new orders and the outlook for earnings in certain lines where things are still pretty much depressed, are not at all cheerful. Those on the other hand who take a broader view and consider the many evidences that readjustment in output and in prices has about run its course, are distinctly hopeful. They do not look for any general improvement right away, but they do point to the recovery which is said to have set in in textiles, in the motor trade, in dry goods and in several other directions and maintain that sooner or later this recovery will spread. Their opinion is that price cutting has been completed and that while it will take sometime for consumers to be satisfied of this so that they will buy more freely, while they admit that industrial earnings for the first quarter and probably for the second will be poor, they are convinced that bottom was struck three months ago and that taking business conditions by and large these are on the mend.

It cannot be expected that wages and other items of expense will be reduced sufficiently to counterbalance the slump in orders. Still the shrinkage in gross earnings would be viewed with equanimity if manufacturing and productive costs were at the same time being restored to a more sound and normal basis. As to the ability of the heads of American industry to accomplish this result there is certainly more ground for optimism than for pessimism. Wage reductions have been put into effect in many industries without friction. The average commodity price level upon which depends the cost of labor and materials is back over nearly half the entire enormous advance between 1914 and the peak of 1920. This may not show much in the reports of industrial companies during the first three or even during the first six months of the current year, but that it is building a solid under-structure for future prosperity, ought not to be doubted.

The Labor Situation.

With the railroads working under a hard and fast agreement which was made when business and price inflation was at its height, wage reduction is a far more difficult task than it is with manufacturing concerns. The problem will not be settled until it has been argued out at length before the Labor Board and until in all probability a congressional commission has had a whack at it. Still a very impressive demonstration has been given in two instances of how railroad costs can be cut down radically even without any actual lowering of wage scales. In their reports for February the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific disclosed an astonishing change as compared with the very poor results of the previous month. Union Pacific cut its expense account down nearly $3,000,000 two-thirds of it by simply ceasing the altogether extraordinary appropriations for maintenance of roadbed and equipment that were made during the five months beginning Sept. 1. Southern Pacific was able to show as compared with February, 1920, a decrease of $1,863,000 in operating expenses in face of more than $1,000,000 increase in gross revenue. These Pacific roads may not prove to be typical of the February results in general, but they do indicate in very striking manner the possibilities of retrenchment and as such their figures are bound to have an important bearing on the whole railway wage controversy. Evidently in the case of these two companies and as it will probably be shown, in the case of many others, Wall Street has been taking altogether too blue a view of the outlook for railway stocks.

The Money Market.

The money market is the third fundamental influence at work and here are the developments. We have had on the one hand a steady and in the aggregate a very large curtailment of loans and note issues since the end of December. On the other hand we have had in the same interval a heavy importation of gold, a movement which promises to continue in a quiet way for some time longer. These curative processes have not yet gone far enough to persuade the authorities at Washington to reduce Federal Reserve discounts, but it is only a matter of time when this will be done. Meanwhile the money supply is becoming more abundant and while the open market cannot be expected to lower its rates any further until the Federal Reserve Board has acted, the business and investment communities can reasonably lay their plans for a lower scale of discounts in the not distant future.

The Investment Situation.

That the prospect of lower interest rates has not had more effect than it has had upon bond prices during the last week or so simply goes to show to what an extent the market was overstocked with new offerings during the first two months of the year. It is to be noted, however, that numerous representative industrial bonds have within the last few days made new high prices for the season and the fact that railway issues are still well under their best may be referred to some degree of course to the uncertainties surrounding railway investments in general. The stock market has again shown in several instances, notably in Vanadium and Virginia Chemical, how the passing of dividends can prove to be thoroughly discounted at present selling prices. For the rest it is a market which is disposed to look beyond present conditions of outside business and to pin its faith to the proposition that trade is slowly on the upgrade. One most potent cause of restraint at the close of the week is the uncertainty of what is next going to happen in the critical matter of German reparations and naturally the communist uprisings have not tended to give this question any more cheerful aspect.

Saturday's Market.

In today's brief session of the stock market the line of demarkation was once more carefully drawn between the shares of industrial companies which face the possible reduction or passing of dividends and those companies whose earnings have either turned the corner or where the worst is known as regards dividend action.

Sears-Roebuck had another severe break. There was some selling of Industrial Alcohol. And there was fresh weakness in Central Leather shares.

As against the weak spots, however, there were more points of strength. Oil shares, especially the junior oils, were again decisively bought and here the movement reflected again the view that the price-cutting in the oil industry has about reached its limit and that the tendency is now toward improvement. Pacific Oil, Transcontinental, Invincible, California Petroleum and Texas Co. were all very strong. The textile group were in demand—American Wool and Consolidated Textile. Motor stocks were buoyant, helped by a large short account that had still obstinately refused to cover.

Railway shares did little but were firm in the main. More light was thrown upon the recent weakness in Pennsylvania stock and the talk of dividend reduction by the February figures, which showed that despite an increase in gross earnings over the month last year of $3,700,000 the road still had a net operating deficit of $2,577,000. Foreign exchanges were generally higher, partly as a result of the more reassuring news from Germany.

Transue and Williams.

Transue and Williams sold off rather sharply on the announcement that the directors at their meeting yesterday had cut the dividend, putting the stock on a $4 basis. Transue and Williams is one of the companies which is benefitting by the better conditions in the automobile trade and this action of the directors cannot be looked upon as anything more than a move to conserve cash. Incidentally the street in recent weeks has been inclined to be rather bullish on the outlook for this company.

HODGEN LECTURES BEGIN AT WASHINGTON U. MEDICAL SCHOOL

Memorial to St. Louis Creator of Thigh Fracture Splint Being Given by New Orleans Surgeon.

Dr. Rudolph Matas, professor of surgery in Tulane University, New Orleans, opened last night what have been designated "the Hodgen lectures," in the auditorium of the Washington University School of Medicine, Euclid and Scott avenues.

The Hodgen lectures are annual lectures in St. Louis, established by the St. Louis Surgical Society, to be given by distinguished surgeons as a tribute to the memory of the late Dr. John S. Hodgen, professor of surgery in the old St. Louis Medical College, who created the Hodgen splint for thigh fractures, extensively used, even in the late war.

Dr. Matas, distinguished for blood vessel surgery, talked on a phase of that work.

Lumbermen to Urge Building.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A national newspaper advertising campaign to stimulate home building is to be undertaken by the lumbermen of the country after the third American Lumber Congress to be held in Chicago, from March 30 to April 1, the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association announced today. Plans for the campaign have been worked out by a committee of the association for presentation to the Chicago meeting for action. According to the association, 50 per cent of the saw mill capacity of the country is now idle because of a lack of demand for lumber.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 26.—Walter E. Wilson, State Banking Commissioner, was found not guilty of official misconduct ac charged in the ouster suit brought against him by the Attorney-General in a special decision handed down today by the Supreme Court.

NO AID FOR AUSTRIA UNTIL FINANCIAL REFORMS ARE MADE

Chancelor Reports That Allies Refuse to Extend Help Until Internal Situation Improves.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, March 26.—Chancellor Mayr today outlined to the Chief Committee of the National Assembly the result of his visit to London to ask allied aid for Austria. He warned the committee that it was necessary for Austria to negotiate a loan as soon as possible.

The Chancellor said the entente's representatives had notified him Austria must effect internal financial reforms before it could expect outside aid.

Preparation of a bill abolishing free rationing and substituting graded prices according to the capacity of the people to pay has been directed by Chancellor Mayr.

The Acht Uhr Blatt today says Germany is the only means of salvation for Austria. The Freie Presse urges the Government to concentrate on internal reforms to obviate foreign control of the revenues.

GRAIN LIST CONTINUES ON DOWNWARD TREND

Bearish Crop Reports and Slackening of Export Demand Weight on Wheat Market.

Disturbed economic conditions, bearish crop reports and blackening of exports demand were among the chief bearish factors in the wheat market during the past week influencing prices adversely.

It has been three consecutive weeks since the wheat market began to slip, owing largely, it is claimed, to misgivings over the general business outlook. This week, in addition to further strain, especially as to domastic, industrial conditions, the bulls had an extra handicap as a result of field advices that danger of any big damage from the green bug pest was about over. Then, too, word was circulated that British Government holdings of wheat would be sufficient for all British requirements to the end of the season, and this announcement was followed by news of revolutionary outbreaks in Germany. Under such circumstances, knowledge of measures being taken to facilitate the passage of a new emergency tariff bill failed to act as much of an immediate stimulus. Occasional rallies which took place appeared to be related in the main to spurts of sharply timed transatlantic buying on declines.

GERMAN CAPITAL IN ITALY

Industrial Leader Buys 200,000 Shares of Largest Electrical Concern.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

ROME, March 26.—Great alarm is expressed here at the news from Vienna that Hugo Stinnes, German multimillionaire industrial leader, has won the first part of his campaign for German trade penetration into Italy. He has bought from the Italian Fiat Corporation 200,000 shares in the electrical works in the Italian Tyrol known as the Alpinen Montan Gesellschaft. Stinnes, with Voegler, who directs the big Deutsch Luxemburg concern, will henceforth sit on the board of directors of the largest Italian electrical concern. German experts are already in the Italian Tyrol superintending the Alpinen Montan Works.

To make Italians more indignant news comes from Milan that the Banca Commerciale is now treating with other German financiers for the sale of a large number of shares in the huge Ilva Metallurgical Works. On the Roman bourse today were rumors of the approaching German purchase of shares in the Lloyd Habaud Shipping Line, which is agent in Italy for the United States Mail Steamship Co.

SALESMEN
With stock selling records; excellent proposition; good returns in exchange for results. Box W-125, Post-Dispatch.

Daylight Saving on Merchants' Exchange Begins on Monday

THE hands of the official clock on the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange will be pushed ahead one hour over Sunday and daylight saving will begin at the resumption of trading Monday morning. This action will be taken in order that the exchange session hours, 9:30 a. m. to 1:15 p. m., may continue to correspond with those of the Chicago Board of Trade. Chicago begins daylight saving Sunday. Similar action was taken last year.

The sesion hours during the daylight saving period will be, according to standard St. Louis time, 8:30 a. m. to 12:15 p. m.

Daylight saving in New York begins April 24, when it will be necessary for local stock brokers to push their office clocks ahead.

CATTLE TRADE ERRATIC, FLUCTUATIONS SHARP

Light Receipts Credited to Labor Situation in Packing Industry Early in Week.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	12,528	15,721	19,354
Hogs	50,428	54,325	74,484
Sheep	4,197	5,853	4,881
Horses and mules	1,934	1,907	3,628
Totals	69,087	77,806	102,347

Sharp fluctuations in the cattle market at St. Louis last week made trade for the period the most erratic in some time. Under light receipts the market ruled considerably higher Monday and Tuesday, followed by a larger run Wednesday and a sharp reaction in values. Decline continued Thursday, with the following two days devoid of change.

Uncertainty over the labor situation in the packing industry was evidently responsible for slightly reduced recepts from the previous week. At other times receipts have been known to show a slight increase just before Easter, at which time Illinois assessments are made on livestock in the country.

Apparently the labor situation had no material part in restricting demand, for, though it was definitely known Thursday that a strike had been averted, the market, instead of showing improvement, drifted still lower under por outlet. There are many angles to watch in connection with the livestock trade at present, among which in addition to others named is the closing of the Lenten season, which ordinarily would increase meat consumption.

Taken as a whole, livestock prices at the close of the week were about on a level with the preceding week's close. Top on beef steers for the period was $10, while the bulk sold from $8.25@9. Butcher yearling top was also $10 paid for heifers, and the bulk, $7@8.50. Butcher cows sold at $5.50@6.75 largely; canners and cutters, $2.50@4.25, and bulls, $5@6.50. Both receipts and demand for stockers and feeders were some smaller and market was slightly higher. Veal calves opened steady Monday, advanced $1 Tuesday, and from then on hit the toboggan, Friday's prices at $9@9.50 for good veals being $2.50 under the high time for the week, when top hit the $12 mark.

Hogs Close Slow.

Hogs—Estimated receipts of hogs for the week's final session were 3000 head. Shipping orders were scarce and a slow draggy market was staged at 35 to 40c lower prices after the first rounds. A few pigs and light lights sold from $11.10@11.35 early, but later the practical top was $11. Some medium and strong weight hogs sold steady to 25c lower. Bulk of sales for the day extended from $10.60@11.00.

Sheep Receipts Fall Off.

There was a further reduction in sheep and lamb receipts the past week and more than half of the light supply went direct to killers. Total number including directs was 4200, as against 5853 the preceding week. City butcher demand was the most important factor in the market. Not in many years have the big packers been as indifferent as at the present time. Prices show a 50 to 75c advance on lambs and yearlings over a week ago, with sheep unchanged. On Tuesday and Wednesday good lambs sold at $10.75 and it is thought they would bring $11.00 at this time, that is such a supply as the city butchers would be able to use, for packers claim they would not go over $10.50. Fat yearlings are quotable from $8.50@9.00, two year olds, $7.75@8.00, aged wethers, $6.50@7.00, fat ewes, $5.75@6.00, canners, $1.50@2.00, choppers and bucks, $3.50@4.00 and cull lambs, $8.00@9.00.

Horses Close Lower for Week.

After a strong and active opening last week, the horse market soon developed weakness and closed for the period materially lower. Receipts were fair in volume, about 700 Southern and Eastern stock arriving on a commission billing. Of these close to 400 were sold at auction Monday, the others being disposed of remaining days of the period.

Buyers proved to have more limited orders than was at first indicated and therefore filled much of their requirements Monday. Preference was shown horses with flesh and good hair, thin and long-haired material finding slow going.

Weak Undertone to Mules.

The mule market failed to show the activity characteristic of some previous weeks and values held barely steady. Receipts were comparatively light though demand was correspondingly small and selling was inclined to drag somewhat on the blemished and outclassed mules especially, of which a considerable portion of the arrivals comprised. Small and medium mules were probably the best sellers, and a fair inquiry also prevailed for good material.

Roots and Feathers.

FEATHERS—To command full quotations, stock must be dry and full grown. Quote per lb.: Prime white live geese, 88c; prime gray do, 63c. Duck—White, 63c; colored, 38c. WEATHER REPORTS SEND WHEAT OFF IN CHICAGO TRADE

CHICAGO, March 26.—Beneficial rains in the winter wheat belt over the holiday and lack of outside support caused wheat prices to tumble after advancing sharply on short covering and on buying by houses with seaboard connections. At the finish wheat was ⅝c higher to ⅝c lower, with March $1.53⅝ and May $1.41¼ to $1.41½; corn was off ¼c to ⅝c; oats ⅛c up to ⅛c down, and provisions a shade to 17½c lower.

Wheat started lower on scattered selling but rallied quickly on a report that the Greek order for 1,300,000 bushels was placed over the holiday and that there were intimations of 2,000,000 bushels more being sold abroad, but this failed to have much effect after the early bulge. The market soon became bearish on reports of heavy rains in Southwest, and a forecast for unsettled and much colder weather over the entire grain belt. Country offerings in Kansas and Nebraska showed signs of increasing. Crop reports remain decidedly favorable.

Coarse grains were affected by the action of wheat and while firmer after a small decline at the start weakened later. Domestic demand for corn was better with sales of more than 100,000 bushels, including a small quantity to Canada, the first business with that country in some time.

The South was after oats in fair volume, the selling being largely by Northwest interests. Country offerings were small, field work being delayed by rains.

Provisions were easy with a light trade, the bulk of the business being by small packers and cash handlers.

Oils.

LINSEED OIL—In lots of 1 to 4 barrels, 79c for raw and 81c for boiled.

COTTONSEED OIL—Per pound: Winter white, 10⅝c; do yellow, 10½c; summer white, 9⅝c; do yellow, 9½c; salad, 10⅛c; cooking white, 9⅝c; do yellow, 9½c; cocoanut oil, 11⅝c; soya bean, 9¼c.

Dry Goods.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Cotton goods of various sorts today showed improvement. Some finished goods sold as far ahead as offered. Wool goods were strong, despite a sagging market for raw material. Burlaps were quiet on prices as low as any yet quoted. Raw silk was distinctly firmer, buying of hosiery and underwear improved.

4¾ Victories Profitably Exchanged For 4th 4¼% Liberties

Many banks are making this change. Both the 3¾% and 4¾% Victories, which mature in 1923, are selling around 97¼, as compared with about 87 for the 4th 4¼s, which run until 1938.

The Victories have such a short time to run they will probably not go above par, whereas the low price of the 4th 4¼s leaves room for considerable enhancement in value. $10,000 Victory Bonds can be exchanged today for $11,100 4th 4¼s, and we desire to bring the attractive possibilities through exchange to the attention of investors.

Our Liberty Bond Department is prepared to make such exchanges.

TWO MILK DEALERS APPEAL FROM POLICE COURT FINES

One Assessed $200, Another $25 for Not Conforming to Ordinance Requirements.

Two milk dealers were fined and one discharged in police court yesterday on charges of offering for sale milk not conforming to ordinance requirements. Both fines were appealed.

Judge Mix fined Fred Meyer, 4325 North Taylor avenue, $200 on a showing that milk taken from one of his wagons on Feb. 8 contained 11.18 per cent of solids compared with a requirement for 12 per cent. Assistant City Chemist Moellenhoff said that this indicated watering. He also stated that Mayer had been fined 13 times in 1919 and was in court last September and again in December.

Harry Schulte of 4568 Carter avenue was fined $25 for milk containing 11.44 per cent solids and 2.9 per cent butter fat compared with a minimum requirement of 3 per cent. Moellenhoff said this indicated skimming.

John J. Meier, 5362 Marcus avenue, was discharged when Moellenhoff said that a low solid content in his milk might have been caused by the condition of some one cow.

HOTEL SUES WOOD COMMITTEE

Campaign Bill of $12,465 Includes Items for Shoe Shining.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—The Campaign Committee for Major-General Leonard Wood was sued for $12,465.45 for rent and other expenses by the Congress Hotel today. The bill against the committee covers the months of April, May and June, 1920. Members of the committee named in the suit include William Cooper Procter, A. A. Sprague, J. J. McGraw and Fred Stanley. The items included in the charges covered broken chairs, laundry bills, shoe shines and room rents.

The hotel's account showed total charges of $22,465.45. A cash payment of $10,000 on May 1 left a balance due of $12,465.45, according to the bill.

Col. Procter, one of the defendants, was chairman of the committee and this week sued Maj. Sprague, another defendant, for $110,000 alleged to be due on joint notes signed to cover funds secured for the campaign. J. J. McGraw of Ponca, Ok., was vice chairman of the committee. Fred Stanley, who lives in Wichita, Kan., was one of the original Wood supporters.

LLOYD GEORGE

By MARGOT ASQUITH,
Wife of the Former Prime Minister of Great Britain.

THE political event that caused the greatest sensation when I was a girl was the murder of Mr. Burke and Lord Frederick Cavendish, on May 6, 1882. We were in London at the time and the news came through on a Sunday. Alfred Lyttleton told me that Lady Frederick Cavendish's butler had broken it to her by rushing into the room and saying:

"They have knifed his lordship!"

The news spread from West to East and groups of people stood talking in the middle of the streets, without their hats. Everyone felt that this terrible outrage was bound to have consequences far beyond the punishment of the criminals.

The murders in the Phoenix Park tended to confirm Gladstone in his growing belief that the Irish were people whom we did not understand and that they had better be encouraged to govern themselves. He helped to convert his colleagues to a like conviction, but Chamberlain and he disagreed.

Just as I ask myself what would have been the outcome of the Paris conference if the British had made President Wilson and his league a genuine first plank in their program, instead of a last postscript, so I wonder what would have happened if Joe had stuck to Gladstone at that time. Gladstone had all the playing cards—just as President Wilson had—and was not likely to underdeclare his hand, but he was a much older man and I cannot but think that, had they remained together, Chamberlain would not have been thrown into the arms of the Tories and the reversion of the premiership must have gone to him.

When Mr. Gladstone went in for home rule, society was rent from top to bottom and even the most devoted friends quarreled over it. Our family was as much divided as the others were.

One day, when Lord Spencer was staying at Glen, I was sent out of the room at dinner for saying that Gladstone had made a Balaclava blunder with his stupid home rule; we had all got so heated over it that I was glad enough to obey my papa.

A few minutes later he came out full of penitence to see if he had hurt my feelings; he found me sitting on the billiard table smoking one of his best cigars. I gave him a good hug and told him I would join him when I had finished smoking; he said he was only too glad that I appreciated the cigars, and returned to the dining room in high spirits.

Events have proved that I was quite wrong about home rule. If anyone had foreseen what the consequence was going to be of withholding from Ireland the self-government which they have demanded for generations, can it be doubted that Gladstone, had he been properly backed, would have settled the controversy forever? As it is, our follies in Ireland have cursed the political life of this country for years. We have allowed this running sore to go on too long unhealed; it should have been referred to the League of Nations at the Paris conference. Some Frenchman has said: "L'Irlande est une maladie incurable mais jamais mortelle." And, if it can survive the present regime, no one will doubt the truth of the saying.

(Editor's note: The extent to which political and social enmities are interlaced in England is exemplified by the fact that in some quarters Asquith's loss of the premiership was attributed to the fact that Mrs. Asquith had snubbed Mrs. Lloyd George, thus offending and estranging the entire body of "middle class" manufacturers.)

It is a far cry from the Irish question to a house party at Chatsworth, but I warn you that this is to be a wandering, reminiscent chapter, delving round wherever memory beckons.

One day in 1901 we were staying at Chatsworth, the country place of the Duke of Devonshire. There was a huge house party, among others Arthur Balfour and Chamberlain. Before going down to dinner, Henry came into my bedroom and told me he had had a telegram to say that Queen Victoria was very ill and he feared the worst; he added that it was a profound secret and that I was to tell no one. After dinner I was asked by the Duchess' granddaughters, Lady Aldra and Lady Mary Acheson, to join them at planchette, so I put my hand on the board.

My mind was a blank; I was listening to the Duchess. After the girls and I had scratched about on the board for a little time, one of them took the paper and read out loud:

"The Queen is dying."

She added:

"What Queen can that be?"

I looked closely at the paper and read distinctly out of a lot of hieroglyphics:

"The Queen is dying."

If the three of us had combined to try and write this and poked about all night, we could not have done it.

I have had many interesting personal experiences of untraceable communication and telepathy, and I think that people who set themselves against all this side of life are excessively stupid; but I do not myself connect these experiences with religion any more than I would with Marconi.

To return to Chatsworth, our host, the Duke of Devonshire, was a man whose like we shall never see again; he stood by himself and could have come from no country in the world but ours. He had the figure and appearance of a strong artisan, with a brevity and courtesy of a King and the jolly sense of fun of a Falstaff.

He gave a great wheezy guffaw at all the right things and was possessed of endless wisdom; he was perfectly disengaged from himself, without touchiness or pettiness of any kind. Bryan, the great American speaker, who came over here and heard all our big men speak—Roseberry, Chamberlain, Asquith, etc.—when asked what he thought, said that a Chamberlain was not unknown to them in America, and that they could produce a Rosebery or an Asquith, but that a Hartington no man could find; his speaking was the finest example of pile driving the world had ever seen.

The Duke and his wife were the great social-political figures of my youth.

I was walking alone on the high road at Chatsworth one afternoon in winter, while the Duchess was playing bridge, when I saw the family barouche, a vast vehicle on C springs, stuck in the middle of a plowed field, the horses plunging about in unsuccessful efforts to drag the wheels out of the mud. The coachman was accompanied by a page of diminutive stature, called in those days a "tiger." Knowing the coachman well and observing his dilemma, I said:

"Hullo! You're in a nice fix! What induced you to go into that field?"

He explained that they had met a hearse in the narrow part of the road; and, as her grace's orders were that no carriage was to pass a funeral if it could be avoided, he had turned into the field, where the mud was so deep and heavy that they were stuck. It took me some time to get assistance; but after I had unfastened the bearing reins and collected some yokels, the coachman, carriage and I returned safely to the house.

Death was the only thing of which I ever saw the Duchess afraid. When I referred to the carriage incident and chaffed her, she said:

"My dear child, do you mean to tell me you would not mind dying? What do you feel about it?"

I answered her in all sincerity:

"More than anything in the world, but not because I am afraid."

She asked me what I cared for most after hunting, and I said politics. I told her that I had always said when I was a girl that I would marry a Prime Minister, and we had many discussions together about politics and people.

I will go back to my early connection with politicians.

We were not popular in Peeblesshire. My papa and his vital family disturbed the country conventions; and all Liberals were looked upon as aliens by the Scottish aristocracy of those days. At election times the mill hands of both sexes were locked up for fear of rows; in spite of this the locks were broken and the rows were perpetual.

When my father turned out the sitting Tory, Sir Graham Montgomery, in 1880, there were high jinks in Peebles. I pinned the Liberal colors with the deftness of a burglar on to the coat tails of several of the unsuspecting Tory landlords who had come from great distances to vote. This

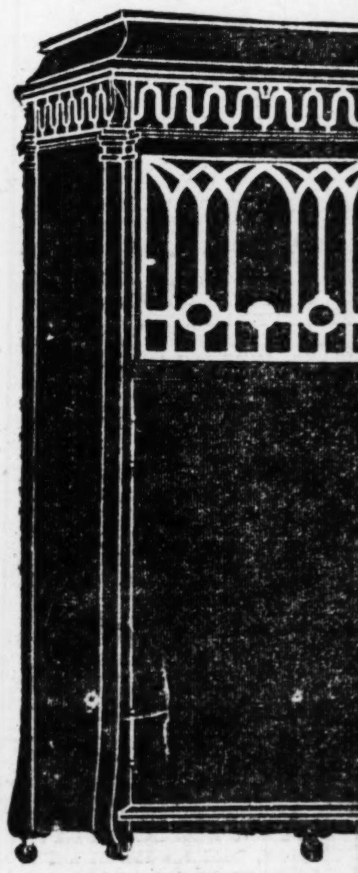
THERE WAS NO PROFITEERING ON THE NEW EDISON PHONOGRAPH

THEREFORE PRICES CANNOT BE REDUCED!

An Unusual Guarantee

I personally guarantee the New Edison against any reduction of present retail prices this year but not against an increase. Mr Edison says he will have to increase prices, if the government excise tax paid upon phonographs is increased
Mark Silverstone



There Are Many Reasons Why the New Edison Is the Best Value for Your Dollar

Invented and Made by Edison

You naturally expect a better Phonograph from Edison. Its patented improvements make it a distinctive Phonograph, entirely different from any other, and plays all other make records better. Just hear this wonderful musical instrument.

Lifelike Realism

The New Edison is positively the only Phonograph in the world that will sustain a direct comparison with living artists. Ask for the proof.

Bed-Rock Prices

The New Edison has increased in price less than 15% since 1914, and part of this increase is War Tax. Prices must advance if the government increases the tax on Phonographs.

MRS. ASQUITH TELLS OF SEVEN PREMIERS SHE HAS KNOWN

delighted the electors, most of whom were feather-stitching up and down High street, more familiar with drink than jokes.

The first politician of note that came to Glen was Sir Charles Dilke. Just as, later on, among my friends—the set that were called the Souls—we discussed which would go furthest, George Curzon, George Wyndham of Harry Cust, so in these days people were asking the same question about Chamberlain and Dilke.

My father, being an ardent Radical, with a passion for everyone that Gladsone patronized, had made elaborate preparations for Dilke's visit; he was given a warm welcome on his arrivel and we all sat down to tea. After hearing him talk uninterruptedly for hours and watching his stuffy face and slow, protruding eyes, I said to Laura:

"He may be a very clever man, but he has not a ray of humor and hardly any sensibility. If he were a horse I would not buy him."

She entirely agreed with me. On the second night of his visit, our distinguished guest met Laura in the passage on her way to bed. He said to her:

"If you kiss me I will give you a signed photograph of myself."

To which she answered:

"It is awfully good of you, Sir Charles, but I would rather not; for what on earth should I do with the photograph?"

Mr. Gladstone was the dominating politician of the day and excited more adoration and hatred than anyone. He was a very big figure, independent of the press and indifferent to public opinion, once he had convinced himself that what he meant to do was right. After my first visit to Hawarden he sent me the following poem, which he had written the night before I left:

"MARGOT.

"When Parliament ceases and comes the recess,
And we seek in the country, rest after distress,
As a rule upon visitors I place an embargo
But make an exception in favor of Margot.

For she brings such a treasure of movement and life,
Fun, spirit and stir, to folks weary with strife,
Though young and though fair, who can hold such a cargo
Of all the good qualities going as Margot?

Uphill and down dale, 'tis a capital name,
To blossom in friendship, to sparkle in fame;
There's but one objection can light upon Margot,
It's likeness in rhyming, not meaning, to argot.

Never mind, never mind, we will give it the slip,
'Tis not argot the language, but Argo the ship;
And, by sea or by land, I will swear you may far go,
Before you can hit on a double for Margot.

"Dec. 17. 1889. W. E. G."

I received this at Glen by the second post on the day of my arrival. I instantly wrote to our dear old friend, Godfrey Webb, who was always under suspicion of playing jokes upon us, to say that he had overdone it this time, as Gladstone had a far better handwriting than this. When I found out I was wrong, I wrote to the Premier.

I have heard people say that the Gladstone family never allowed him to read a newspaper with anything hostile to himself in it; all this is the greatest rubbish; no one interfered with his reading. The same silly things were said about the great men of that day as of this and will continue to be said; and the same credulous geese will believe them. I never observed that Gladstone was more easily flattered than other men. He was more flattered and by more people, because he was a bigger man and lived a longer life; but he was remarkably free from vanity of the common kind.

He would always laugh at a good thing, if you chose the right moment in which to tell it to him. He and I were talking of Carlyle. I told him that a friend of Carlyle's, a very old man whom I had met at Balliel, had told me that one of his favorite stories was of an Irishman who, when asked where he was driving his pig to, said:

"Cark." (Cork.)

"But," said his interlocutor, "your head is turned to Mullingar."

To which the man replied:

"Whist! He'll hear ye!"

This delighted Mr. Gladstone. I also told him one of Jowett's favorite stories of how George IV went down to Portsmouth for some big function and met a famous Admiral of the day. He clapped him on the back and said, in a loud voice:

"Well, my dear Admiral! I hear you are the greatest blackguard in Portsmouth."

Whereupon the Admiral drew himself up, saluted and said:

"I hope, sir, you have not come down to take away my reputation."

On Saturday, May 28, 1886, Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone came to pay us a visit at 40 Grosvenor Square. Papa had been arranging the drawing room preparatory to their arrival and was in high spirits. I was afraid he might resent my wish to take Mr. Gladstone up to my room after lunch and talk to him alone. However, Aunty Pussy—as we called Mrs. Gladstone—with a great deal of winking, led papa away and said to mamma:

"William and Margot are going to have a little talk!"

I had not met or seen Mr. Gladstone since Laura's death.

He asked if Laura had often spoken of death. I said yes, and that she had written about it in a way that was neither morbid nor terrible. I showed him some prayers she had scribbled into a book against worldliness and high spirits. He listened with reverence and interest. I don't think I ever saw his face wear the expression that Millais painted in our picture of him as distinctly as when, closing the book, he said to me:

"It requires very little faith to believe that so rare a creature as your sister Laura is blessed and with God."

Aunty Pussy came into the room and the conversation turned to L. Oliphant's objection to visiting the graves of those we love. They disagreed with this, and he said:

"I think, on the contrary, one shold encourage one's self to find consolation in the few tangible memories that one can claim; it should not lessen faith in their spirits; and there is surely a silent lesson to be learnt from the tombstone."

After a little more conversation we went for a drive. (Ten days after this drive Mr. Gladstone made his greatest speech on Irish home rule.)

I made him smile by telling him how Lord Kimberly told me that, one day, in Dublin, when he was Viceroy, he received a letter which began:

"Tomorrow we intend to kill you, but we would like you to know there is nothing personal in it!"

He talked all the way down Piccadilly about the Irish character, its wit, charm, grace and intelligence. I nearly landed my phaeton into an omnibus in my anxiety to point out the ingratitude, and want of purpose, of the Irish; but he said that in the noblest of races the spirit of self-defense had bred mean vices and that generation after generation in Ireland were born with their blood discolored by hatred of the English Government.

"Tories have no hope, no faith," he continued, "and the best of them have class interest; the spirit of an-

"How to Develop the Bust"

Womanly Beauty

Can be cultivated just the same as flowers are made to blossom with proper care. Woman, by nature refined and delicate, craves the natural beauty of her sex. How wonderful to be a perfect woman.

Artificial Pads or Ruffles

Never look natural or feel right. They are positively harmful and retard development. You should add to your physical beauty by enlarging your bust to its natural size. This is easy with our scientific method, which we wish you to try at once.

FREE BEAUTY BOOK

We offer to send free, to every woman in search of womanly beauty, our valuable book, "Perfect Development Now a Reality." This book contains an important article by the late Dr. C. S. Carr, formerly published in the Physical Culture Magazine, entitled: "THE BUST—How It May Be Developed." Of this method Dr. Carr states:

"Indeed, it will bring about a development of the busts quite astomishing."

Write Quickly—This Offer is Limited

This valuable book, explaining the causes of non-development, together with photographic proof showing as much as five inches enlargement by this wonderful method, will be sent FREE to every woman or girl over sixteen years of age, who writes quickly. MRS. ASQUITH TELLS OF SEVEN PREMIERS SHE HAS KNOWN tiquity lies in their hearts, but the last has been forgotten and only class interest remains. Disraeli was a great Tory. It grieves me to see people believing in Randolph Churchill as his successor, for he has none of the genius, patience or insight, all of which Disraeli had in no small degree.

I have known seven Prime Ministers—Gladstone, Salisbury, Rosebery, Campbell-Bannerman, Arthur Balfour, Asquith and Lloyd George, every one of them as different from all the others as possible. I asked Arthur Balfour once if there was much difference between him and his uncle. To which he replied:

"There is a difference. My uncle is a Tory—and I am a Liberal."

I delighted in his uncle, the late Lord Salisbury—delighted both in his speaking and in his conversation. I had a kind of feeling that he could always score off me with such grace, good humor and wit that I would never die over it.

I asked Lord Salisbury once, in the early days of our acquaintance, if he had ever heard Chamberlain speak (at the time I am writing Chamberlain was Secretary of State for the Colonies).

Lord Salisbury: It is curious you should ask me this. I heard him for the first time this afternoon.

Margot: Where did you hear him and what was he speaking about?

Lord Salisbury: I heard him at Grosvenor House. (Reflectively.) Let me think—what was he speaking about . . . Australian washerwomen, I think . . . or some such thing.

Margot: What did you think of it?

Lord Salisbury: He seems a good, businesslike speaker.

Margot: I suppose at this moment Mr. Chamberlain is as much hated as Gladstone ever was?

Lord Salisbury: There is a difference. Mr. Gladstone was hated, but he was very much loved. Does anyone love Mr. Chamberlain?

One day after this conversation he came to see me in Cavendish Square, bringing with him a signed photograph of himself. It was in the year 1904, almost at the height of the controversy over protection. The Tory majority was getting smaller every day. Arthur Balfour—who was Prime Minister—was like an engineer, mending the taps and the bells, but, as the house was falling over his head, the work was not effective. It was difficult to see how any architect and engineer rolled into one could have saved the building when Joe was pulling out the props.

Naturally, the conversation turned to the tariff, Lord Salisbury being one of the chief opponents of free trade. I was surprised at his belittling the question.

"You need not be anxious," he said. "Free trade will always win against protection in this country; this will not be the trouble of the future."

Margot: Then what will be?

Lord Salisbury: The House of Lords is the difficulty that I foresee will arise.

I was surprised and quite incredulous:

Lord Salisbury (smiling): What do you think, then, will be the next subject of controversy?

Margot: The Church of England—if it is true, what you say, that protection is impossible in this country.

I proceeded to denounce the constant building of churches while the parsons' pay was so small. I said that few rising men could afford to go into the church at all; and the assumed voices, both in the reading and in the preaching, got on the nerves of anyone who cared to listen. The churches were becoming emptier every day. I added:

"Christ says: 'Thou shalt call no man Lord but me.' And then you see Lords and palaces and all sorts of folly, plus narrowness, dullness and affectation."

He listened with patience to all this, and then got up and said:

"Now I must go: I am afraid I shall not see you again."

Something in his voice made me ask, anxiously: "You aren't ill, are you?"

To which he replied:

"Yes; I am ill."

I neevr saw him again; and, when I heard of his death, I was vexed with myself for having seen so little of him in my life.

The next Prime Minister, whom I knew much better than Mr. Gladstone or Lord Salisbury, was Lord Rosebery.

One day, on returning from my early dancing lessons to Thomas' Hotel, I found my father talking to Lord Rosebery. He was saying to him:

"I heard you are going to marry Miss Hannah Rothschild, Rosebery."

"If you believe that," Lord Rosebery replied, "you will believe any lie."

My father told me to go away. I shook hands and, as I shut the door, I heard Lord Rosebery say:

"Your little girl has got beautiful eyes."

I repeated this upstairs, with great joy, to one of the family, and they said they thought it was true enough, if my eyes had not been so close together. I took up a glass, had a good look, and was reluctantly compelled to agree.

I asked my father about Lord Rosebery. He said he was far the most brilliant young man alive and would certainly make a great reputation.

I think Lord Rosebery, like many others, might have been happier if he had not been so rich. He would have had a better nervous system. Can anyone doubt that the heaven which is made difficult for the rich man to enter into is happiness? Riches are overvalued in the Old Testament; the good or successful man receives too many camels, wives, shekels, she-goats, ivory and peacocks.

The values are changed in the New Testament. Christ counsels quite a different perfection and promises another reward. He does not censure the man of great possessions, but he points out that his riches will hamper him in his progress to the kingdom of heaven and that he would do better to sell all—and conclude by saying:

"Of what profit is it to a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

The soul here is happiness and freedom from self.

Lord Rosebery was too thin-skinned, too conscious, to be really happy.

An announcement in some obscure paper that he was engaged to be married to me came between us in later years. He was seriously annoyed and thought I ought to have contradicted this. I had never even heard the report till I got a letter from Paris asking if I would not agree to the high consideration and respectful homages of the writer and allow her to make my chemises.

After this, the matter went completely out of my head till, meeting him one day, I was greeted with such frigid self-suppression that I

CAN'T BEAT "TIZ" WHEN FEET HURT

"Tiz" for Sore, Tired Puffed-Up, Aching, Calloused Feet or Corns.

You can be happy-footed in a moment. Use "Tiz" and never suffer with tender, raw, burning, blistered, swollen, tired, smelly feet. "Tiz" and only "Tiz" takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions.

As soon as you put your feet in a "Tiz" bath, you just feel the happiness soaking in. How good your poor, old feet feel. They want to dance for joy. "Tiz" is grand. "Tiz" instantly draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, aching, sweaty, smelly feet.

Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug store or department store. Get instant foot relief. Laugh at foot sufferers who complain. Because your feet are never, never going to bother or make you limp any more.

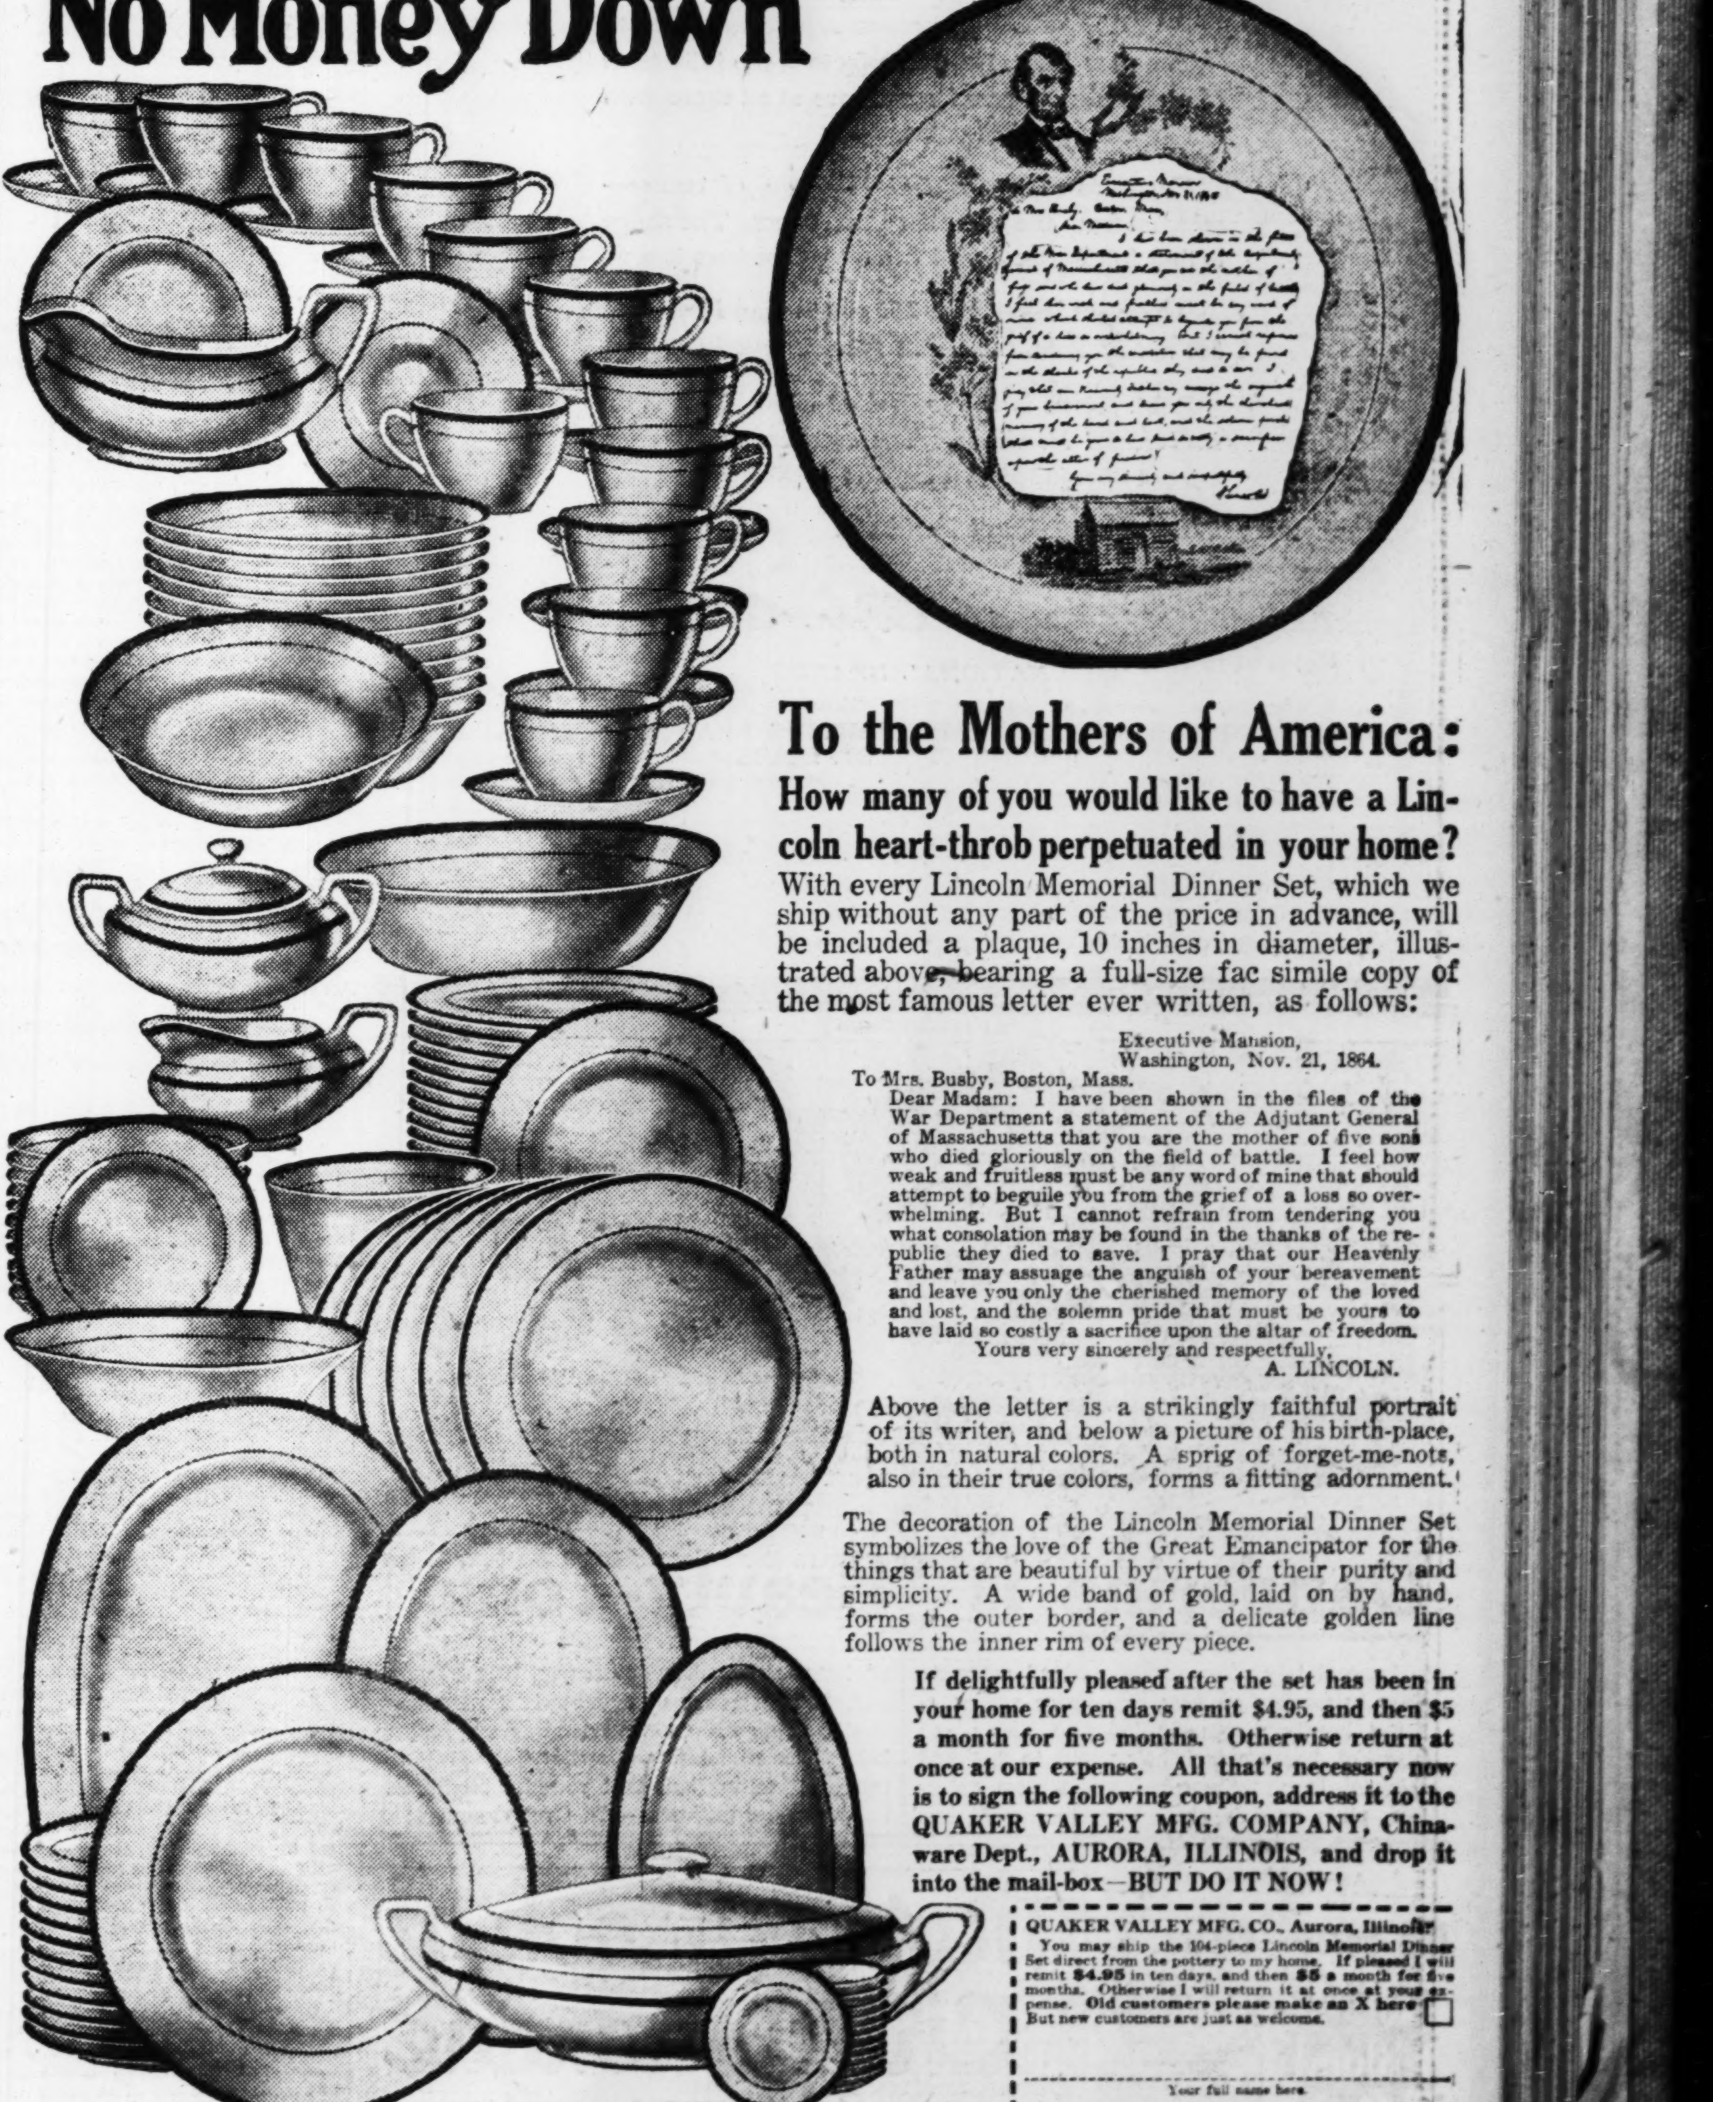
No Money Down



To the Mothers of America:

How many of you would like to have a Lincoln heart-throb perpetuated in your home?

With every Lincoln Memorial Dinner Set, which we ship without any part of the price in advance, will be included a plaque, 10 inches in diameter, illustrated above, bearing a full-size fac simile copy of the most famous letter ever written, as follows:

Executive Mansion,
Washington, Nov. 21, 1864.

To Mrs. Busby, Boston, Mass.

Dear Madam: I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any word of mine that should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering you what consolation may be found in the thanks of the republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

Yours very sincerely and respectfully,
A. LINCOLN.

Above the letter is a strikingly faithful portrait of its writer, and below a picture of his birth-place, both in natural colors. A sprig of forget-me-nots, also in their true colors, forms a fitting adornment.

The decoration of the Lincoln Memorial Dinner Set symbolizes the love of the Great Emancipator for the things that are beautiful by virtue of their purity and simplicity. A wide band of gold, laid on by hand, forms the outer border, and a delicate golden line follows the inner rim of every piece.

If delightfully pleased after the set has been in your home for ten days remit $4.95, and then $5 a month for five months. Otherwise return at once at our expense. All that's necessary now is to sign the following coupon, address it to the QUAKER VALLEY MFG. COMPANY, Chinaware Dept., AURORA, ILLINOIS, and drop it into the mail-box—BUT DO IT NOW!

The Lincoln Memorial Dinner Set consists of 104 pieces:

12 ovide shaped cups; 12 saucers to match; 12 nine-inch plates; 12 seven-inch plates; 12 French soup plates; 12 sauce dishes; 12 individual butter dishes; 1 thirteen-inch platter; 1 eleven-inch platter; 1 large covered vegetable dish [two pieces]; 1 oblong vegetable dish; 1 fancy gravy boat; 1 open butter dish; 1 pickle dish; 1 fancy sauce bowl; 1 covered sugar bowl [two pieces]; 1 cream pitcher; 1 salad bowl; 6 seven-inch fruit plates; and the eight-inch plaque bearing the fac simile copy of the Lincoln letter.

The pottery workers are taking unnsual pains in the production af this Lincoln Memorial Dinner Set, for, you see, they want it to be worthy of the great name it bears. They are proud of it, and you will be, too, when your set is delivered to your home, direct from the hands of the makers. We hope you will then do us the kindness to call some of your neighbors in and tell them all about it, not omitting the price. This price is only possible through our direct dealing and the word-of-mouth advertising of our friends.

QUAKER VALLEY MFG. CO., Aurora, Illinois

You may ship the 104-piece Lincoln Memorial Dinner Set direct from the pottery to my home. If pleased I will remit $4.95 in ten days, and then $5 a month for five months. Otherwise I will return it at once at your expense. Old customers please make an X here ☐ But new customers are just as welcome.

Box of 50—$6.00

A larger Robt. Burns Cigar at 2 for 25c

HERE is a new 2 for 25c size of Robt. Burns Cigar. It is new in value too, for it is larger by a good deal than the former size selling at that price.

The new Robt. Burns Perfecto is the fulfillment of our pledge to provide smokers at all times with the greatest possible value.

Perfecto's filler is full Havana, of course—selected from the best that Cuba offers. The shape is that full Perfecto which modern smokers like.

(There are larger 2 for 25c cigars than Perfecto—but not of Robt. Burns full Havana quality.)

Robt. Burns is the individual cigar. This is an individual Perfecto. The smokers of America are not offered today a cigar of greater value.

Old Sores—Ulcers!

CHIN-CEA
Blood

Avoid the use of mercury and potash if your tainted, vitiated or scrofulous blood is due to a perverted process of elimination.

Overcome your trouble safe and surely by treating the blood with nature's medicines of roots, herbs, bark and leaves, made into a palatable, concentrated form, widely used as elixir Chin Cea. It gradually brings about healthful changes in the blood and tissues of flesh, so that chronic Old Sores, Ulcers, Running Abscesses, Blotched Skin, Eczema are gradually healed as the poisons are driven out of the blood.

Rheumatism and other blood and skin disorders yield to this alterative medicine, as it is safe to take indefinitely, being purely vegetable and non-injurious to the stomach, bowels, etc.

Dr. Lewis Baker has prescribed elixir Chin Cea for many years, with astonishing success, in a wide class of blood ailments.

Mother! look at Child's tongue

Give "California Syrup of Figs" only—Say "California"

Hurry, mother! A teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If your child is constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has a cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good "physic-laxative" is often all that is necessary.

Children dearly love the delicious, "fruity" taste of genuine "California Syrup of Figs" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits. Mother, you must say "California." If you don't say "California" you may get an imitation fig syrup.

MRS. ASQUITH TELLS OF SEVEN PREMIERS SHE HAS KNOWN

felt quite exhausted. I thought this both silly and conscious.

A few months later our thoughtful press said I was engaged to be married to Arthur Balfour. As I had seen nothing of Lord Rosebery since his wife died and he had gone into a period of long mourning, I was acclimatized to doing without him; but to lose Arthur's affection and friendship would have been an irreparable personal loss.

I need not have been afraid; this was just the kind of rumor that challenged Arthur Balfour's insolent indifference to the public and the press. Seeing me come into the Rothschild ballroom rather early, he left the side of a man he was talking to and stalked with his long, elastic step all the way down the empty parquet to greet me. He asked me to sit down next to him in a conspicuous place; and we talked through two dances. I was told afterwards that someone had said to him that night:

"I hear you are going to marry Margot Tennant."

"No, that is not so. I rather think I shall have a career of my own."

(Editor's note: Gossip had it that Margot was responsible for the origin of both these rumors of an engagement, some of her enemies going so far as to say it was an attempt to force one of them to marry her.)

Lord Rosebery's two antagonists, Sir William Harcourt and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, were very different men.

Sir William ought to have lived in the eighteenth century. To illustrate his humor, he told me that women should be played with like fish, only in the one case you angle to make them rise and in the other to make them fall. He had a great deal of wit and nature, impulsive generosity of heart and a temperament that clouded his judgment. He was a man to whom life had added nothing; he was perverse, unreasonable, brilliant, boisterous and kind, when I knew him. But he had been all that in his nursery.

I never knew Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman well, but whenever we did meet we had great laughs together. He was essentially a bon viveur, a boulevarder and a humorist. At an official luncheon, in an admirable speech in French—a language which he spoke perfectly—he described Arthur Balfour, who was on one side of him, as l'enfant gate of English politics and Chamberlain, who was also at the lunch, as l'enfant terrible.

In spite of the serious split led by my husband, Grey and Haldane in the Liberal party over the Boer War and the dangerous political situation thus created, when the Tory government fell in 1905 and Campbell-Bannerman became Prime Minister he instantly summoned my husband; he did not have a coupon election to smother his opponents, but asked Henry, before he consulted anyone else, what appointment he would take for himself and what he thought advisable for other people in the new Cabinet. Only men of a certain grandeur of character can do these things. Everyone who watched the succeeding events would agree that his generosity was rewarded.

Campbell-Bannerman was a tired man when he came down to the House of Commons at nights; and as time went on, he delegated more and more work to my husband.

One day he sent for Henry to go and see him at 10 Downing street and told him that he was dying. After thanking him for all he had done, and particularly for his great work on the South African Constitution—every line of which my husband wrote with his own hand—he turned to him and said:

"Asquith, you are the greatest gentleman that ever lived."

It was the last time they ever met; he died a few days after this.

I now come to Arthur Balfour.

When Lord Morley was writing the life of Gladstone, Arthur Balfour said to me:

"If you see John Morley, give him my love and tell him to be bold and indiscreet."

I agreed with him. A biography or an autobiography must not be a brief, either for or against his client.

If I have written anything that wounds the feelings of my friends or enemies, I can only refer them to my general character. I am kind by nature and have never willingly hurt anyone in my life; but in this book I must write without fear or favor exactly what I think and with a strict regard to unmodeled truth.

Arthur Balfour was never a standard bearer. He was a self-indulgent man of simple tastes. For the average person he was as puzzling to understand and as difficult to know as he was easy for me and many others to love. You may say that no average man can know a Prime Minister intimately, but most of us have met strangers whose minds we understand and hearts we reached without pre-knowledge and without effort; and some of us have had an equal experience among our intimates; when, after years, we suddenly become aware that all the love we have given and received has not succeeded in spanning our incommunicable lives and the friend whom we thought we knew becomes a stranger.

He was difficult to understand, because I never knew if he needed me; and difficult to know intimately because of his formidable detachment. The most that many of us could hope for was that he had a taste in us as you might have in clocks or old furniture.

Balfour was blessed or cursed at his birth, according to individual opinion, by two great assets—charm and wits. The first he possessed to a greater degree than any man or woman that I have ever met; his social distinction, exquisite attention, intellectual tact, cool grace and lovely bend of the head made him not

Ask any of these Progressive Lumbermen why they recommend "Cornell" Panels

We have handled all other varieties of wallboard from the cheapest to the costliest, and we never found another that gave such universal satisfaction for permanent walls, ceilings and partitions.

One reason is Cornell's "Triple-Sized" process which gives Cornell panels triple protection against moisture, expansion and contraction. This is why Cornell can be guaranteed not to warp or buckle if simple directions are followed. Anyone who can handle a hammer and saw can apply Cornell to the joists and studding or over damaged plaster.

Cornell's exclusive "Oatmeal" finish makes handsome interiors in homes, factories, offices, garages, stores, summer cottages and farm buildings.

Because of the "Mill-Primed" surface Cornell takes a perfect spread of paint or calcimine without the work and expense of a priming coat.

Tell your lumberman you want Cornell-Wood-Board—no other is like it. You can tell the genuine by the name on the edge. Write for sample board and book No. 61 of beautiful "Cornell Interiors"—FREE.

perhaps you are "regular"—but

NAVY MEN know that a submarine must be kept constantly in condition. Likewise with the human system. Even more than a submarine, your body should be kept in fighting trim.

Your system requires periodic cleansing. Even though your bowels are regular, evacuation may not be complete. Poison accumulations in the intestines are breeding ground for sickness of every kind.

Thousands of well-informed men and women avoid this danger by cleansing their systems at regular intervals. For this purpose, they find a water laxative unusually efficacious; it really flushes the system.

Pluto Water is the safe, sensible laxative. It works quickly. No putting off till evening to take—then waiting till next day for results. Taken on arising, Pluto cleans away the disease-breeding waste while the morning is still young. It safeguards your health. Gentle, harmless; thorough, quick!

ARTISTS' GUILD PLAYERS WILL PRESENT 'PAOLO AND FRANCESCA'

Sale of Tickets to Open Tomorrow—Play to Be Given Week of April 4.

The sale of tickets will open tomorrow at 1111 Olive street for the Artists' Guild Players' revival of Stephen Phillips' lyric tragedy, "Paolo and Francesca," which will be given at the Little Theater of the Guild for one week, opening April 4, under the direction of Joseph Solari. The play, which is considered by critics to be one of the finest examples of lyric drama ever written, will be presented with lavish stage settings and costumes designed by Marguerite Breen and Laurence Ewald.

The gallery of the theater is to be sold every night to students at special prices, in order that schools, dramatic clubs and classes may have an opportunity to see the play. The leading roles of Paolo and Francesca are to be taken by Thomas E. Dawson and Florence Walters. Giovanni, who weds Francesca, only to find that her heart has turned to his younger brother, Paolo, will be played by Harland Frazer. Hazel Ewald will play Lucrezia, who tries to save the unhappy lovers but fails, and they are put to death by Giovanni. Others in the cast are: Mrs. William Hammond, Dorothy Breen, Marguerite Breen, Gordon B. Summers, Felix C. Rozier, Mont Schuyler and Joseph Solari.

MANY GERMANS MIGRATING

400 Recently Landed in Argentina, 300 in Brazil.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, March 26.—Four hundred German immigrants came to Argentina recently to seek their fortunes anew on board the first passenger vessel flying the German flag which entered this port since the beginning of the war. The majority of them were members of the former German middle-class and about 80 were officers of the German army, but few are understood to have possessed any capital with which to start life afresh. Most of them were counting upon prompt employment to provide them with livelihood.

The same vessel landed about 300 German immigrants in Brazil and a smaller number in Uruguay. It is understood that this was the first of several steamers which are to bring contingents of German immigrants to these shores.

Ban on Bare Arms and Shoulders.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, March 1.—Bare arms and low-necked dresses have been outlawed by the ecclesiastic governor of Argentina. A notice has been posted in the doorways of all the Catholic churches reading: "After Sunday, March 27, no priest for any reason will be permitted to administer holy communion to any married woman, girl or child who approaches the altar without having completely covered the breast, shoulders and arms with material that is not transparent."

MRS. ASQUITH TELLS OF SEVEN PREMIERS SHE HAS KNOWN

only a flattering listener but an irresistible companion. The disadvantage of charm—which makes me say cursed or blessed—is that it inspires everyone to combine and smooth the way for you throughout life. As the earnest housemaid removes dust, so all his friends and relations kept disagreeable things from his path. This freed him from small anxieties and effort and gave him more leisure in his life than was humanizing.

Apart from the unvarying love I have always had for Arthur Balfour, I should be untrue to myself if I did not feel deeply grateful for the unchanging friendship of a man who can think and write as he can.

Of the other two Prime Ministers I cannot write, though no one person knows them better than I do. By no device of mine could I conceal my feelings. Both their names will live with luster, without my conscience being chargeable with frigid impartiality or fervent partisanship. All of us should be allowed some "private property in thought."

(Copyright, 1921, by the Metropolitan Newspaper Service.)

In the next and final installment of Mrs. Asquith's diary, to be published in next Sunday's Post-Dispatch, she tells about a strange offer of marriage and racy anecdotes of her student days on the Continent.

Wrinkles Coming?

Here's the Answer

The skin can be brought back to its original plumpness and vigor by the following formula. An astonishing result is the quick disappearance of wrinkles, little and big, crows' feet, and lines of age. It is simple and can be prepared in a few moments by adding to half a pint of water one tablespoonful of glycerine and two ounces of eptol, obtained from your druggist. This takes years from your appearance, and is always sure and positive in its work if you will apply it liberally every day.

And If the Hair Is Thinning

Strengthening and enlarging the roots of the hair is one of the real secrets of forcing hair to grow, something which has heretofore not been fully realized. Merely stimulating the surface tissue of the scalp will not stimulate the hair growth to the extent desired. By the new method just mentioned hair can be forced to grow several inches a month. Hair will stop falling as if by magic. The new vigor of the hair will be quickly noticed, and all bald spots will be soon entirely filled out with new sprouts. This can all be easily obtained by the simple use of beta-quinol, which can be secured at any drug store in the original one-ounce package. This can be mixed at home with a half pint of bay rum and a half pint of water, or with witch hazel, if you prefer. It contains no oil whatever.

To Cleanse Hair and Scalp

As to head-wash, you are advised against using soap or the many shampoos sold, because of the alkali they contain. This dries up hair secretions. Get a package of eggol at the drug store and dissolve a teaspoonful of it in half a cup of water. You can get enough eggol for twenty-five cents for a dozen or more head-washes. It is magic in cleansing hair and scalp and aids wonderfully in making hair grow.

The answer of most fat people is that constant dieting is hard, continual exercise is tiresome, exhaustive—then, too, it might be harmful to force the weight down. That was the old-fashioned idea. Today in Marmola Prescription Tablets, all these difficulties are overcome. Just a pleasant, harmless little tablet after each meal and at bedtime causes fat to vanish. This modern method is absolutely harmless, entails no dieting or exercise, and has the added advantage of cheapness. A large case of safe Marmola Prescription Tablets is sold by druggists at $1.00. Or, if preferable, can be obtained by sending price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward av., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this you have no excuse for being too fat, but can reduce two, three or four pounds a week without fear of any bad after-effects whatever.

LEADER OF GERMAN INDUSTRY SAID TO FAVOR MONARCHY

Hugo Stinnes Is Referred to as "Dangerous Patriot;" Ready to Bankrupt Self to Restore Kaisers.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 10.—Hugo Stinnes, generalissimo of German industry, recently accused of plotting a strike of several hundred thousand workers in the Ruhr district to make more difficult the Allied occupation of Duesseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort, is referred to by the Berlin correspondent of the Times as "an earnest and dangerous patriot."

Stinnes, a multi-millionaire member of the Reichstag, has put through some of the greatest financial deals of his career since the armistice. He has been called "a recentlessly efficient, human calculating machine." It has been said that he would sacrifice every mark of his enormous fortune to bring back the monarchy.

Has Many Interests.

Mine-owner and coal merchant, shipowner, landed-proprietor, head of a great chain of newspapers, proprietor of the finest hotel in Berlin, trader in oils, paper, hides, jute, peat and manufactured wares of many kinds, Stinnes, the Times correspondent says, "is today the wealthiest, most influential, best known, and at the same time the least well-known man in Germany."

Publicity and notoriety are alien to him, it is stated, and he prefers to remain behind the curtains in the Reichstag, permitting his henchmen and lieutenants to do the talking while he pulls the strings.

"There is nothing in his appearance to betray the man of genius," says the correspondent. "Just fifty years old, of medium height and sturdily built, with black hair and beard that show up strongly against a rather sallow complexion, Hugo Stinnes is an inconspicuous figure as he slips in and out of the Adlon hotel, his bowler hat tilted slightly on one side, one hand in his pocket, and one or two secretaries following hard on the heels of their chief in his well-worn black coat and black tie. He stops to speak to no one. He has no time for small talk in the lounge with other guests. He is a relentlessly efficient, cool, human, calculating machine."

The foundations of the Stinnes fortune were laid by the present Stinnes' grandfather and increased by his father. The youth was sent to a gymnasium and later worked as a miner and attended the School of Mines in Berlin. Embarking in business for himself at the age of 23, his remarkable career began. He went with success into the coal and iron trade, becoming a prominent figure among the magnates of Rhenish Westphalia and branched out into the development of tramways and electric power in the coal fields.

Fortune Came With War.

But his "real great spring to fortune," says the Times, "came with the great war."

"His fortune before the war was estimated at 40,000,000 gold marks. What it is now he probably could not say himself—possibly 1,000,000,000 marks." Newspapers now owned by Stinnes are said to number at least 60.

"People are eagerly asking with what ultimate object all this colossal wealth is being incessantly piled up," says the Times correspondent. "Does his present association with and financing of the Volkspartie mean that Stinnes is preparing to bring back the monarchy?"

"Stinnes," concludes the correspondent, referring to the alleged truculent conduct of the financier at the Brussels financial conference, "has measured himself once with allies and received a severe snubbing. He is not likely to risk a second similar rebuff. Nor is he likely to forget. Let the allies in their turn remember that, witness his unconciliating manner of the conference table, he is an earnest and dangerous patriot."

MUSIC PAGEANT TO BE GIVEN

A pageant, in costume, representing the development of music from the folktunes of ancient Egypt to the "Music of the Future," will be presented Saturday evening at Baldwin Hall by Miss Elise Aehle, violinist. She is a St. Louisan, but better known in the East and in Canada than in her home city. She was admitted to the Paris Conservatoire, which accepts none but students of exceptional talent, and only two foreigners each year.

She will be assisted by Misses Elizabeth Seago, Marion Swords, Adelaide Tarrant, Ella Vornbrock and Blanche White; and Gilbert Johnson, Richard Miles, Andrew Prentice, Lewis Sehrwood, Charles Aehle, Eames Smith, Julian Tarrant, Ernst Vornbrock, Edward Zimmer and J. Glenn Lee.

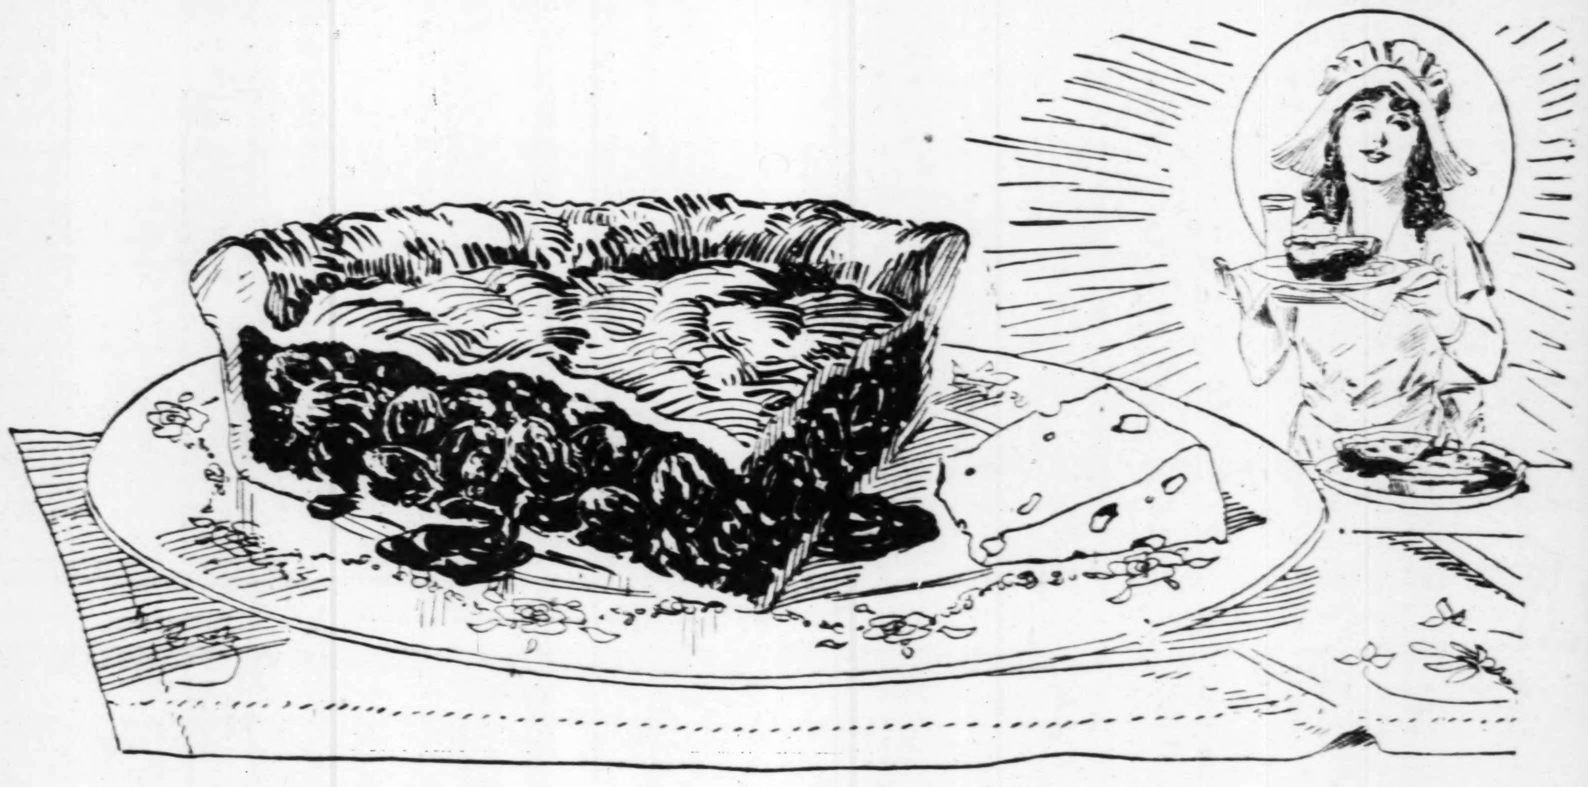
Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) or the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and all truss sufferers in the land are invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own homes. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—comparatively inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., 380 Stuart Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and instructive information.—(c) P.L.



Take a Vote on Pies

Take a vote on pies in your home and you'll make mostly raisin pies. For this is the pie that men think most delicious.

Raisins furnish 1560 units of energizing nutriment per pound. They are 75 per cent pure fruit-sugar in practically predigested form. So the nutriment of raisin pie is almost immediately assimilated.

Raisins are rich in iron also, which brings the bloom of youth to women's and children's cheeks. When you eat raisins you eat a "beauty food" as well as one that's healthful.

Try raisin pie tonight. You'll never have to ask men what pie they like thereafter. Every first-class baker has this pie, or if you wish to make it yourself, we publish here the tested recipe for the chief of pies.

Recipe for Real Raisin Pie

Cut This Out and Keep It

2 cups Sun-Maid Raisins
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
Juice 1 orange
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup chopped walnuts

Cook raisins in boiling water for five minutes; pour into sugar and cornstarch which have been mixed. Cook until thick; remove from fire and add other ingredients. Bake between two crusts. Walnuts may be omitted if desired.

SUN-MAID RAISINS

Use these raisins for home cooking, for they are the finest raisins grown. Made from choicest California table grapes, tender, meaty, juicy and thin-skinned.

Packed in California in a sunlighted, glass-walled plant. Clean, sweet, wholesome, American raisins—the kind you know are good.

Three varieties: Sun-Maid Seeded (seeds removed); Sun-Maid Seedless (grown without seeds); Sun-Maid Clusters (on the stem). All dealers sell them. Insist upon the Sun-Maid brand.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

GALLI-CURCI RECITAL; DETROIT'S ORCHESTRA

Easter Week Events in Music Include Cadman-Tsianina Concert at Odeon.

Easter week, which virtually closes the musical season, brings forward two important events—the recital which Mme. Amelita Galli-Curci, coloratura soprano of the Chicago and Metropolitan Opera companies, will give Tuesday night at the Odeon, and the first St. Louis visit of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, under its distinguished conductor, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, previously known here as a virtuoso pianist. The orchestral concert will take place at the Odeon on Friday evening.

In addition, a joint recital will be given tomorrow night at the Odeon by Tsianina Redfeather, a Cherokee mezzo-soprano, and Charles Wakefield Cadman, whose songs on Indian themes are nationally known, and whose opera, "Shanewis," has been given in two successive seasons at the Metropolitan.

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra, which is said to be composed of 100 musicians, has, under the leadership of Gabrilowitsch, ascended to more than local fame in the last few years. Its tours this season have taken it to New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati and Pittsburg. Enjoying generous financial support, Gabrilowitsch was able to choose the personnel of the orchestra according to the highest standards of individual merit. The leader is married to Clara Clemens, a well-known singer and a daughter of the late Mark Twain.

The chief orchestral number will be the First Symphony of Brahms in C minor, which was offered by Theodore Spiering on his trial program as guest conductor of the Symphony Orchestra, on March 11 and 12. The concluding number will be Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Caprice on Spanish Themes," which Tschaikowsky declared to be "a colossal masterpiece of instrumentation," and which, with its numerous solos, dialogues and cadenzas, provides an exceptional opportunity for displaying the individual virtuosos of an orchestra.

The program in detail is announced as follows:

Weber ....Overture to "Oberon"
Brahms—
Symphony No. 1, in C Minor, Op. 68
I. Un poco sostenuto; Allegro.
II. Andante sostenuto.
III. Un poco allegretto e grazioso.
IV. Adagio; Allegro non troppo ma con brio.
Debussy—
Prelude to "L'Apres-Midi d'un Faune"
Rimsky-Korsakoff—
Capriccio Espagnol, Op. 34
1. Alborada; II. Variations; III. Alborado; IV. Scene and Gipsy Song; V. Fandango of the Asturias. (Played without pause.)

Mme. Galli-Curci will be assisted by Manuel Berenguer, flutist, and by Homer Samuels, who appears in the three-fold capacity of the diva's recently married husband, her accompanist and composer. Berenguer will play a flute solo by Samuels, called "Autumn Leaves a-Whirl," in addition to Widor's "Romance," and Mme. Galli-Curci will offer a song of her husband's called "The Little Bells of Sevilla." The songer's generous list of arias and songs includes the following:

"L'Amour de moi," fifteenth century French; "Quel ruscelletto," Paradisi; "Comme per me sereno," from "Sonnambula," Bellini; "Lo, here the gentle lark," Bishop; "Crepuscule," Massenet; "Clavelitos," Valverde; "Roses d'hiver," Fontenailles; "Sempre libera," from "La Traviata," Verdi; "The Little Damozel," Novello; "Like the Rosebud," La Forge, and "Qui la voce," from "I Puritani," Bellini.

The Cadman-Tsianina program will include four selections from "Shanewis"—"The Spring Song of the Robin Woman," "Canoe Song," "Intermezzo" and "Indian Lament." There will be eight of Cadman's settings of Indian melodies, including the universally popular "from the Land of the Sky-Blue Water," and representing folk-tunes of the Omaha, Navajo, Blackfoot and Sioux Indians. The Zuni and Cheyenne tribes are represented in songs by Troyer and Lieurance.

In addition, Cadman will present his trio in D Major for violin, violoncello and piano, to be played by himself, Ellis Levy and P. G. Anton. The composer will also play several Indian love-songs on a genuine Indian flageolet, and give a brief talk on aboriginal folksongs.

LARGE SALE OF $25 TREASURY CERTIFICATES REPORTED

New 1921 Issue May Be Bought at All Postoffices at $20.70—Interest 4.27 Per Cent.

A big sale of $25 Treasury savings certificates in the Eighth Federal Reserve District has been reported by R. R. Smith, Government Director of the Savings Division for this district, which includes Missouri, Kentucky and Arkansas. The $25 certificates are a new issue for 1921 and were put out because of general demand for a smaller certificate as well as the $100 and $1000 certificates. They sell this month for $20.70, and may be bought at all Postoffices. Like the other certificates, they bear interest at 4.27 if held until maturity in 1926, have value tax exemption priviliges, and should emergency arise may be cashed before maturity.

The new $1 savings stamp is used by many as a means of saving to buy the $25 certificate. When 20 of the $1 stamps are in hand they may be exchanged with a small additional payment for the certificate. The $25 certificates advance in cost 5 cents each month. The $100 certificates cost $82.80 this month, advancing 20c each month, and the March price of the $1000 certificates is $828 with a rise of $2 every month in the price.

Are Weak Nerves and Thin Blood Making a Failure Out of You?

Iron starvation of the blood weakens the will power, robs you of your bodily and mental vigor and often keeps you from making the money and success you should

THERE ARE 30,000,000,000,000 RED BLOOD CORPUSCLES IN YOUR BLOOD AND EACH ONE MUST HAVE IRON.

When your blood is thin, pale and watery it loses its power to change food into living tissue, and NOTHING YOU EAT DOES YOU THE PROPER AMOUNT OF GOOD—you don't get the full strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, nervous, irritable and easily upset.

Also YOUR BRAIN BECOMES DULL AND HEAVY, your memory poor; your will power weakened; you can't think right and you are no match for the fellow with a keen active powerful mind,

It's the "man of blood and iron"—THE STRONG, FORCEFUL, VIGOROUS FELLOWS that make the money and become the great captains of industry.

When, as a result of iron starvation, you get up feeling tired in the morning, when you can no longer do your day's work without being all fagged out at night; when your digestion all goes wrong, or you have pains across the back and your face looks pale and drawn, do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, or until in your weakened condition you contract some serious disease, but consult your family physician and have him take a specimen of your blood and make a "blood count" of your red blood corpuscles, or test the iron power of your blood yourself by adding plenty of spinach, carrots, baked apples or other iron-containing fruits and vegetables to your daily food and take organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, with them for a while and see how much your condition improves.

Thousands of people have surprisingly increased their strength, energy and endurance in two weeks' time by this simple experiment. But in making this test, be sure that the iron you take is organic irin and not metallic or mineral iron which people usually take. Organic iron is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Organic iron may be had from your druggist under the name of NUXATED IRON. Beware of substitutes; look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

PILES CURED

WITHOUT THE KNIFE
By Dr. Henrich's Method
TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

Don't Be Cut

All surgical methods destroy tissue, impair function, impinge nerves and cause nervous diseases. No one who is operated on by any surgical method for the removal of Piles is ever perfectly normal afterward. Try my method first and you will never need surgery. My way removes the cause without evil effect.

Healing

"The divine art of healing has but a single ethic: To live in charity, doing to others as we desire them to do to us, and to all as we have the opportunity. All else is factious and extraneous. This implies Knowledge, Purpose and Skill akin to Intuition.

"This is the Higher Law of Medicine."

Health

What is health? That condition of the body in which all the organs are performing their normal function; a condition of the whole body that is so perfect that no thought or attention is directed to any part or parts. A condition of forgetfulness of one's self.

Piles

That condition the opposite to Health.

Miner Cured of Piles by Dr. Henrich's Mild Medical Method. Was Not Detained From Work.

Mascoutah, Ill., Aug. 24, 1916.
Dr. W. P. Henrich,
Dear Sir:—

I had suffered over three years from a bad case of Piles causing me lots of trouble while working in the mine; often I would rather have stayed at home.

You cured me without the knife with only three treatments; was not detained from work. Your treatment is very mild and did not have to take any chloroform.

So I advise every Pile sufferer to take your wonderful treatment and be cured for life. Very truly yours,

JOHN R. LESKER.

Fistula Cured in One Week After Other Doctors Failed.

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 1, 1913.
W. P. Henrich, Ph. G., M. D.
Dear Dr. Henrich:—

I suffered over three years from Fistula. I tried other doctors and all of them told me an operation was necessary. I then tried different medicines, which did not help me. You cured me in just one week without knife or chloroform and I do not have any fear of any return of my trouble.

I cannot give your treatment too much praise; also your kind and courteous manner in which you care for your patients, and would recommend any sufferer from any rectal disease to see you at once. You may use this letter in any way you may see fit to help others who are suffering as I did. Yours respectfully,

FORMER TRAIN ROBBER URGES PRISON REFORM

Recently Released Convict Declares Prisoners Are Still Tortured at Missouri Penitentiary.

Jesse C. Rumsey, who was released a few weeks ago from the Missouri Penitentiary after serving 14½ years of a 20-year sentence for train robbery, has turned lecturer and is in St. Louis to speak at churches and before civic and welfare organizations to arouse public sentiment for prison reform.

When he was 18 years old he became known to the police as the "lone train robber," and while robbing a Burlington passenger train near Glasgow, Mo., in 1906, he was overpowered and captured by the conductor. Previously he had held up the Golden State Limited near Mexico, Mo., and escaped with $6000, taken from passengers. At the Penitentiary he was a model prisoner. All his available time was spent in study and reading, and he gave much attention to the Bible and professed conversion.

In a speech at a meeting Thursday of women at the Lafayette Park Methodist Church (South) at Lafayette and Missouri avenues, Rumsey described the Penitentiary as a college of criminality where "all but lust was turned to dust." He did not urge any radical change in prison methods, but said that there were many practices at the prison which could be easily modified so that the unfortunate men "could live like men and learn the difference between right and wrong."

"Hatred and Revenge Instilled."

"A prison should be conducted so that hatred and revenge are not instilled into the minds of the prisoners, as has been done at the Missouri Penitentiary for many years," he declared.

"Conditions in a prison should be such that the inmates will reflect on future chances to make good, instead of cursing officials over them. It is true that restraint tends toward both good and evil, but where men are not maddened by torture the tendency is for good."

He said that all administrations while he was in prison had promised reform, but that the promises had not been kept. Gov. Hadley did more to remedy the situation, he added, and expressed confidence that Gov. Hyde would do much if the public would stand behind him.

"Several years ago promises were made that the torture rings would be taken out of the prison," he continued. "The rings were cut down and visitors were shown the places where the rings formerly hung. Since then the prisoners have been tortured by stringing them up to the steel cell doors.

Contract Labor Still in Force.

"The public believes that contract labor is gone. It was abolished on the records, but it is still in force. The contract labor method, and the task system robs the inmates of their strength and weakens their mental and moral possibilities. It leaves them so far gone that the night school for prisoners is a mockery."

Rumsey said heavily loaded clubs are still being put to brutal use at the prison. He pointed to a deep scar on his forehead, which he said was from a blow struck by a guard with one of these clubs. All his upper front teeth also had been knocked out with a club, he said.

Would Isolate Drug Addicts.

He advocated the isolation of certain types of prisoners. A large number of boys are sent to the penitentiary, he added, and they are often put in the same cells with drug addicts. There seems to be some underground method of smuggling narcotics into the prison, he said, and these boys who come to the prison in a down-hearted mood soon take to the use of drugs."

Rumsey related his history, and told how his associates, when he was a boy, had led him into crime. He left home, he said, when he was 11 years old.

He prefaced his remarks by saying that he did not believe in revenge, and that his expressions were not intended to create hatred, but to inform the public of true conditions.

AMERICANS PLAN MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES IN FRANCE

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, March 10.—Plans for Memorial day and commemorative exercises throughout France in honor of America's dead who lie in French soil, were considered by the American Memorial Day Committee at a meeting held at the American Legion headquarters.

This General Committee unites, under the Honorary Presidency of Ambassador Hugh C. Wallace, virtually all American activities in France, including the embassy, the various consulates, Graves Registration Service, American Legion and Auxiliary, Red Cross, Young Men's Christian Association, Young Women's Christian Association, Knights of Columbus, Jewish Welfare, the American churches, American Chamber of Commerce, American Hospital, Women's Club, Franco-American Welfare and the American public at large.

Following the program adopted last year, the committee will provide for the placing of flowers or a wreath upon every grave in France, and will organize appropriate exercises at all of the principal military and civil cemeteries where American dead are buried.

Due to the generous contributions made last year, the committee finds that the funds on hand for this year's ceremonies are ample to cover the prospective expenses of the program. Therefore, it announces that no appeal will be made to the public by the committee for funds for the ceremonies of 1921.

Luscious California Oranges! —Buy Them Now

SWEET, juicy, SUNKIST Oranges—California's delicious fruits—are in plentiful supply at all first-class stores.

Taste them—see how good they are. Use them in the several ways described below. Eat more oranges and less of heavier foods. Let them help to keep the family well.

Buy a dozen and keep them within reach—in your pantry, in a bowl on your sideboard, in a dish in the living room, on a plate in the bedroom to eat just before retiring.

Get the habit of eating at least one orange daily. Start it now.

Let Oranges Serve You in These Ways

Busy-day Desserts

For Shopping and Sewing Days

Delicious dishes—tempting, dainty and attractive in appearance—are prepared in a jiffy when you have oranges at hand.

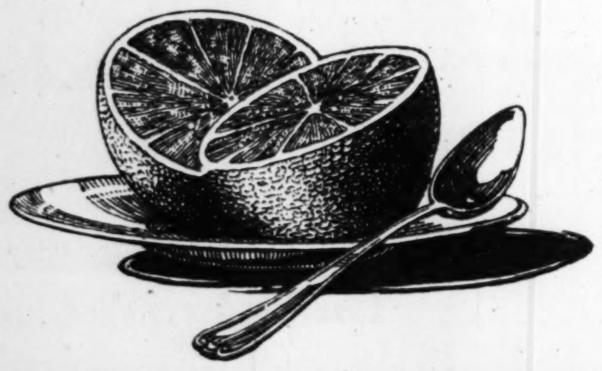
You simply slice, cut or chop them, and serve them plain, or with cocoanut, bananas or other fruit or nuts for the greater variety. Such food is both salad and dessert. And, best of all, it's the healthful kind.

You don't have to cook these dainty dishes. Serve them often and save time.

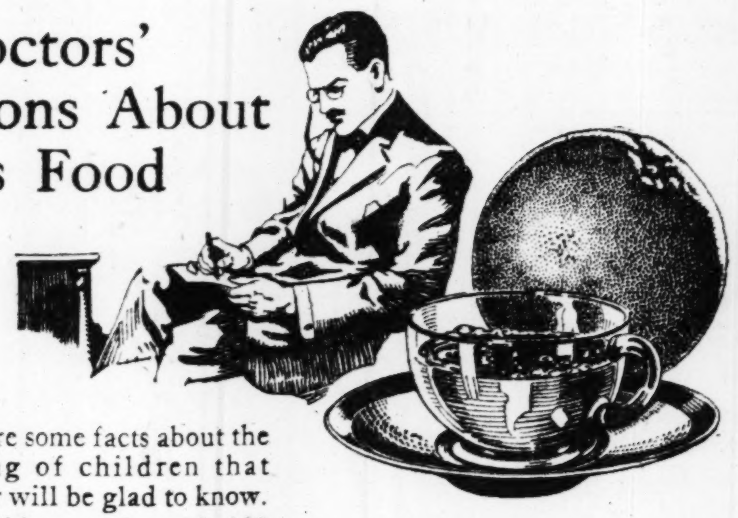
A Man's Breakfast Fruit

Note the men who are always bright-eyed and alert. They are usually the lovers of fresh fruit.

Oranges are a real man's breakfast fruit—see that your men folks get the healthful salts and acids of the orange every morning.



93 Doctors' Opinions About Baby's Food



HERE are some facts about the feeding of children that every mother will be glad to know.

We asked this question of 118 physicians—"What fruit is best for children under three years of age?"

One hundred and seven mentioned oranges as one of the most beneficial fruits.

Ninety-three of the 107, or nearly 87 per cent, designated oranges without referring to other fruits.

"Oranges (juice) form a valuable article in the dietary of the infant and child, and one that is with difficulty replaced by any other fruit," said one.

"I know of no other fruit that is so excellent for the human being from infancy to old age," was another's view.

"Some fruit juice should be given to most healthy children every day. * * * The best fruit juice is that of the orange, which should be fresh and sweet." The last is the belief of one of America's most renowned baby specialists.

We could add endless comment. But better than that, we refer you to your own physician. Show him these statements. Ask him what he thinks and be guided by his advice.

The following is quoted from the "Keep Well Series," circulated by the Government through the Treasury Department, United States Public Health Service:

"Bottle-fed babies should have orange juice each day after the first month."

Five-minute Lunches

For Busy Women

You can make a meal of oranges—a quick, delicious meal. There's nothing else so good, and there's no cooking, fuss or trouble.

Five minutes, and you have a luscious fruit dish, a cup of tea and bread and butter.

And that's as healthful and as nourishing a noon repast as any woman wants on busy days.

For Easy Entertaining

Orange salads and desserts are the handiest dishes of all when entertaining. It is easy to keep a dozen in the house, and it is easy to prepare them in different and attractive ways.

Sunkist oranges, being practically seedless and meaty, slice easiest and look best in salads and desserts.

Send coupon below for free book of "Sunkist Recipes," by Alice Bradley, principal Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, Boston.

Sunkist

Uniformly Good Oranges

Eat more oranges. They are good, and good for you. Serve them sliced, halved or extract the juice for breakfast. Serve them in salad for lunch and in desserts at dinner. Let the whole family have the benefit of this fine fruit in some form every day.

Sunkist oranges are firm, but tender, juicy and sweet. They slice best and are easiest to separate and cut. All first-class dealers sell them. Get a delicious dozen now.

PUBLIC THERAPY EXHIBITION WILL BE HELD WEDNESDAY

Work of Fifth Class Students of School to Be on Display.

There will be a public exhibition Wednesday and Thursday of the Training School of the Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy, showing the work of the fifth class of the school which is just completing a six months' course in the study of crafts. The exhibition will be held in the workshop of the city hospital where the school is now held. It will be open from 10 to 5 both tays, and also from 8 to 10 p. m. Wednesday evening.

The exhibition will include examples of weaving, manual training, book bindings, clay modelings, originally designed toys and jewelry, which have been taught the women, who after graduation will become occupational therapy superintendents in hospitals and institutions and will teach the same crafts to patients as part of the "work cure" now so generally adopted by physicians and specialists.

The class will begin on April 6 a three months' practice course among the patients, going first to the city sanitarium to demonstrate occupational therapy for the mentally afflicted. The second month will be spent at the city hospital for general cases, and the last month at Koch Hospital, where occupational therapy is being used with great success for the tubercular patients.

TUNNEL NEARING COMPLETION

Simplon Bore to Be Opened in July, Engineers Say.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

GENEVA, March 8.—The second Simplon tunnel under the Alps, between Switzerland and Italy, will be completed by the end of July, engineers say. Railroad traffic will be diverted through it immediately and repairs made in the first tunnel, opened 20 years ago. Both will be used some time in 1922.

The first tunnel, 12¼ miles long, cost £2,940,000. The new bore will cost only about one-third that amount. Construction was begun before the war, but work was abandoned because the workmen were nearly all mobilized. Half way through subterranean boiling springs were uncovered and many workmen were killed.

Do You Know a Baby Who Is Sick With Constipation

Tell the mother to give half a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

NO thoughtful mother with children in the house will risk being without a good, reliable laxative. It will save many a serious illness, many a doctor's visit.

When the baby cries and is fretful, when the boy has no appetite and won't play, when the girl is listless and feverish, when there are complaints of headaches and colds, the mother can suspect constipation. Give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in the small dose prescribed on the bottle, when you put the child to bed, and with morning the ailment will have disappeared,

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a popular compound of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant-tasting aromatics. It acts gently and mildly, and children take it without objection. A sixty-cent bottle is enough to last an average family many months. The ingredients are endorsed in the U. S. Pharmacopoeia, and last year American mothers bought over eight million bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from druggists. It is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, and few cautious families are ever without it.

TRY IT FREE

Send me your name and address and I will send you a free trial bottle of my Syrup Pepsin. Address me Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 513 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois. Everybody now and then needs a laxative, and it is well to know the best. Write me today.

Brownatone Ends Gray, Streaky Hair

Ladies, in society, no more tolerate gray, streaky hair than they do unbecoming gowns. Neither can the business girl or person in any walk of life who would keep up to date.

The proven, tested and absolutely harmless way to tint gray, faded "Brownatone." This one bottle, easy to apply tint gives distinct shades from lightest golden to the deepest brown or black.

"Brownatone" tints instantly and will make you look ten years younger over night. No mussy, dirty pastes to bother with—no waiting for results.

All druggists recommend "Brownatone" on a money-back guarantee—50c and $1.50. Two colors—shading from "Golden to Medium Brown" and "Dark Brown to Black."

Special Free Trial Offer.

For a free trial bottle, with easy, complete directions, send 11 cents to pay postage, packing and war tax to The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 601 Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky.

"Come Over to Our House and We'll Play The Cheney"

That's the signal for an evening of fun!

What do you like best—fox trots, one steps, waltzes, the latest jazz? You can have the newest releases in any make of record, for The Cheney plays no favorites. With twelve distinct volumes of tone, it will play loud enough to practically fill a ballroom, as soft as a whisper, or anywhere in between.

The CHENEY
PHONOGRAPH

With the Violin Resonator—Period Models as Low as $125

The tonal quality is beautiful. It gives reproductions a richness and purity which you must hear to appreciate. Needle scratch is practically eliminated—even on softest piano records and lullabies.

Further, The Cheney constantly improves in tone with age, like a rare old violin. "The Longer You Play It, The Sweeter It Grows."

Cheney cabinets are beautiful—a real addition to your home. In craftsmanship, in design and in the selection of woods, rare discrimination has been used. Each is a period model.

MELODRAMA, MUSICAL SHOW--EASTER PLAYS

"The Storm" at American, "Linger Longer Letty" at Shubert-Jefferson.

Easter week brings to the American Theater a noted melodrama, Langdon McCormick's "The Storm," with what is said to be the most realistic forest fire ever staged; while the Shubert-Jefferson, after a month of moving pictures, returns to audible entertainment with Charlotte Greenwood, in "Linger Longer Letty," a musical show. Both offerings open tonight.

"The Storm" has a cast of but five characters, and two of them have only minor work. But among the other three is staged a triangle of passion, rivaling the blizzard and forest fire of the elements. The heroine, a French-Canadian girl, is compelled by chance and the death of her father to spend the winter in a cabin, deep in the Canadian wilderness, with two men, rivals for her love.

One is a big, rude but chivalrous son of the woods, and the other is a polished adventurer from London. Beauty and manliness win out in the old-fashioned way. "The Storm" is now in its second year, having run some 250 performances on Broadway; and it is being played by two companies.

Miss Greenwood's new play, in which her famous kick and smile are said to be in fine working order, is a sort of sequel to "So Long, Letty," in which she appeared for five years. She is the Cinderella of a large family—cook, kitchen maid and general utility; but when she is snubbed out of going to a strawberry festival, she calls in a New York costumer and starts on a career as a Broadway butterfly. The original cast, as seen at the Fulton Theater, New York, is promised.

Helen Hayes Next Week.

On next Sunday night the American will present Helen Hayes, who has attained stardom in her 'teens, in "Babs," a sub-deb comedy, based on the stories of Mary Roberts Rinehart. On the same evening Mary Nash, in "Thy Name Is Woman," will appear at the Shubert-Jefferson. "Babs" will be followed, at the Market street playhouse, by the Fanchon and Marco "Satires of 1920."

The Pershing Theater reopens this afternoon, after six dark nights, with the Friml-Harbach musical comedy, "The Firefly," which began the opera season at the Municipal Theater last summer. Miss Walton will play Nadina, and other parts will be taken by Roger Gray, Henri Antrim, Louis Templeman, Mary Kilcoyne, Ellen Best, Edna Wakefield and Matt Hanley. Dan Marble, comedian, has left the company and returned to New York.

Helen Keller at Orpheum.

The famous Helen Keller, who was born blind, deaf and dumb, will appear for the first time in any St. Louis theater as this week's headliner at the Orpheum. She appears with her teacher, Anne Sullivan Macy in an act which is said to spread "the gospel of optimism." Persons in the audience will be permitted to ask Miss Keller questions. She began her vaudeville career the first of this month, at the Palace Theater, New York.

Others on the bill are: Jack Rose, comedian, late of George White's "Scandals;" Edith Clasper, dancer, with Nelson Snow, a St. Louisan, and Charles Columbus; Wright and Montgomery; George F. Brown, champion walker, in a comedy novelty, "Pedestrianism;" Bob Murray and Elmore White, with tunes and laughs; James McCormack and Eleanor Irving, in a comedy skit, "Telling the Truth," and the Le Grohs, mimes and contortionists.

Features at other vaudeville houses are announced as follows: Columbia, "Rubetown Follies;" Grand, a presentation, by a company of singers, dancers and musicians, of a Russian fete day, under the title of "The Kremlin of Moscow;" Rialto, Imhof, Conn and Coreene in "The Pest House," and Billing Arlington and a company in "Mistakes Will Happen;" Empress, a miniature melodrama, called "The Bandit," and King's, Cantor's minstrels and a playlet, "The Test."

125 PERSONS IN PAGEANT OF TEMPLE AID SOCIETY TONIGHT

"The Melting Pot" to Be Given at Moolah Temple—Proceeds to United Hebrew Temple Fund.

One hundred and twenty-five persons will take part in the pageant, "A Melting Pot," which will be given at 8 o'clock tonight by the Ladies' Aid Society of the United Hebrew Temple at Moolah Temple. The pageant, which was arranged and produced by Mrs. H. J. Falkenhainer, portrays the early history of America and the roles the various nationalities have played in its development.

It consists of a prologue and nine episodes of two scenes each. All characters will be costumed to represent accurately the parts they play. Songs and dances characteristic of the nationalities portrayed will be rendered. After the performance there will be dancing.

The proceeds will go to the fund for the new temple.

Direct Steamship Service.

MONTEREY, Mexico. — Direct steamship service between ports of Japan and Manzanillo, one of the West Coast ports of Mexico, has been established by the Toyen Kisen Kaisha line. It is to be a tri-weekly service, it is stated. It is expected that these steamships will be the means of building up a considerable trade between Mexico and Japan. Many Japanese colonists also will be brought to this country by the direct transportation route.

How do you know it will be a good show?

THE test of a good show is simply this: did you go home feeling that your money had purchased you a great time?

But that's a hindsight test. Why not use a foresight test, too, and pick a great photoplay every time? Know before you go!

For years past there has been in the motion picture industry one tremendous organization which surpasses all others in the size of its operations and the quality of its pictures.

This is the organization that makes Paramount Pictures.

Paramount represents the highest art in motion pictures

When you notice that your theatre is announcing a Paramount Picture you may know that that picture measures up to the highest traditions of screen art, that it is the product of those men and women who have done most to raise the screen from where it was in 1910 to where it is in 1921.

You will know that all the money, art and conscience necessary to make it perfect have been used.

Paramount inaugurated the idea of having the most famous authors of Europe and America work right with the motion picture directors in the studios to ensure best results: for example, Sir Gilbert Parker with George Melford, Edward Knoblock with William de Mille and Elinor Glyn with the star, Gloria Swanson.

Paramount Pictures have a wonderful realism.

If the story calls for a shipwreck a ship is taken out to sea and wrecked, with the camera men hard by in another vessel in great danger.

If the story calls for snow scenes, and the time when the picture is being made happens to be summer, the whole company is taken way up into the mountains amid the snowy peaks.

If the scenario calls for a cabaret life you see the girls and the costumes from the leading midnight shows of New York.

If prison scenes are needed the grim realism of Sing Sing will be seen by you on the film, or some other genuine home of correction.

When you see a Paramount Picture you are immediately lifted out of the realm of mere "movies" into the realm of the great applied art of the modern motion picture.

And there is all the difference in the world—as much difference as there is between Metropolitan Opera and a makeshift amateur concert.

The best theatres in every town show Paramount Pictures

The theatre that is showing a Paramount Picture is by virtue of that fact as good as the greatest theatre in America, since no theatre can be better than the pictures it shows.

Plush seats are not so comfortable if the entertainment is second rate.

Be one of the connoisseurs of entertainment. See the best

Paramount Pictures

You will never miss a Paramount Picture if you keep an eye on the newspaper advertisements of your theatre, on the announcements on billboards and in theatre lobbies, and find the magic phrase—"A Paramount Picture." That's the wand before which all the doors to adventure and romance fly open, letting you in where the music plays and the hours slide by like dreams.

Superlative Easter Presentations

A splendid array of attractions, in addition to the film features, will be found at the Missouri this week. Headed by the soloists, Grant Kimbell and the Misses Teschmacher and Dostal, the Missouri Chorus of 25 voices is heard three times, singing "Kol Nidre," "The Holy City" and "The Palms." The St. Louis Fire Department Glee Club of 20 male voices offers an original song. The overture is Tobani's "Creme de la Creme." With these spectacular and artistic features, the Missouri announces its most pretentious program.

Questions on "Nerves"

By DR. LEWIS BAKER

Question: What is NERVOUSNESS?
Answer: Uncontrollable feelings and actions.
Question: What causes it?
Answer: Briefly,—deficient nerve fluid.
Question: What is Nerve fluid?
Answer: Substance that generates Nerve Force.
Question: What is Nerve Force?
Answer: Like electricity,—it is Energy—Vitality.
Question: What stops Nervousness?
Answer: Cadomene—a true Nerve Medicine.
Question: How does Cadomene help?
Answer: Cadomene is the one medicine ever sold that contains elements that doctor the nerve fluid—increases the nerve fluid—and thereby the Nerve-Force, which makes every part of the body work properly. When the Nerve-Force starts all the organs of the body to working properly, nervous diseases vanish. Cadomene is a glorious boon to nerve sufferers, because it is for the Nerves—an unsurpassed tonic. Try it—and prove it—or money back. Ask for Cadomene tablets.

CHINESE ART WORKS AT MUSEUM REARRANGED

Collection, With Great Temple Bell as Centerpiece, Grouped for Better Display.

Last week the City Art Museum completed in gallery 13 a new installation of the major portion of its Chinese collection which presents these interesting objects in a dignified and instructive manner. This rearrangement of the collection was necessary to accommodate the numerous accessions of Chinese art during the past month and to permit of a more logical installation of the various groups. The numerous Chinese bronzes and other examples of Chinese metalwork owned by the museum are now collected in the long case at the north of the gallery, where, with a massive temple bell of the Chou period (1122-225 B. C.) as a center piece, they form an impressive group. Here one may study the art of casting, chasing and inlaying bronze as practiced by the Chinese from 1000 B. C. almost to the present time. The objects shown include ritual vessels (Chou period), swords, arrows (Hans period, 206 B. C.-220 A. D.), mirrors, statuettes of Buddhist deities, silver tomb figures (T'ang dynasty, 618-906 A. D.), and vases, bowls and incense burners of various periods. Aside from their artistic merit and the patinas which age has imparted to their surfaces, these pieces are of great interest for the light which they shed upon ancient Chinese life and customs.

The center of the long wall case on the opposite side of the Chinese gallery is occupied by a colorful group of tomb statuettes in pottery of the T'ang period (618-906), representing grotesque guardian monsters and attendants. A red velvet carpet (Ch'ien Lung period, 1736-1795) of rich tone, forms an appropriate background to the group. On either side are other examples of fabrics of elaborate workmanship.

The end sections of both the north and south cases are occupied principally by examples of porcelains and earthernware. While it was not possible to follow a strictly chronilogical arrangement in the display of the ceramics, nevertheless the wares of various periods and types are fairly well grouped. An entire section is devoted to the green glazed and comparatively crude earthenware of the Han dynasty (206 B. C.-220 A. D.). Here may be seen models of a granary, a well curb and a stove, all probably from tombs, together with "hill" jars and other early forms. Adjacent to these are T'ang pieces with green and buff glaze, and beautiful "Ting yao" placques and bowls of the Sung period (960-1279). Other sections are devoted to "famille verte," "famille rose," blue and white, celadon, Chun yao and other characteristic groups of Chinese porcelains. The museum's collection of Chinese paintings, embracing examples from the T'ang (618-906) to the Ming period (1368-1644), has been hung on the walls of the gallery above the cases containing the bronzes, porcelains and other objects.

About April 1 the museum will place on display an extensive collection of art objects from Persia and other Oriental countries, lent by Kahn Monif of New York. The hibition will include pottery from sites of Rhages, Sultanabad Rakka; Persian luster ware Persian and Indian textiles; Eg tian Graeco-Roman and Sy glass, Persian and Indian min etc.

An Intimate View of Einstein as He Appears in Working Quarters

IN DILAPIDATED SWEATER AND WORN TROUSERS

Shuts Self Up During Three or Four Day Periods of Intense Concentration — Likes Poetry and Music.

Prof. Albert Einstein, the distinguished German physicist, whose theory of relativity has made his name a familiar one throughout the world, is to sail for the United States on March 28. He comes to lecture on his theory.

By a Special Correspondent.

TOO much nationalism—that is the disease from which mankind is suffering today. To become normal again the world must return to its pre-war internationalism. Such is the diagnosis of Europe's and the world's ills by Germany's foremost physical scientist, Albert Einstein, discoverer of the Einstein theory of relativity.

I had come to Prof. Einstein to hear what he had to say about the "plight of German science," a subject which just then occupied much space in the newspapers of Berlin. Prof. Einstein, however, spoke not of science but of humanity.

"Of course," he said, "science is suffering from the terrible effects of the war, but it is humanity that should be given first consideration. Humanity is suffering in Germany, everywhere in Eastern Europe, as it has not suffered in centuries."

"Humanity," he continued, "is suffering from too much and too narrow a conception of nationalism. The present wave of nationalism, which at the slightest provocation or without provocation passes over into chauvinism, is a sickness.

"The internationalism that existed before the war, before 1914, the internationalism of culture, the cosmopolitanism of commerce and industry, the broad tolerance of ideas —this internationalism was essentially right. There will be no peace on earth, the wounds inflicted by the war will not heal, until this internationalism is restored."

"Does this imply that you oppose the formation of small nations?"

Not Opposed to Small Nations.

"Not in the least," he replied. Internationalism as I conceive it implies a rational relationship between countries, a sane union and understanding between nations, mutual co-operation, mutual advancement without interference with a country's customs or inner life."

"And how would you proceed to bring back this internationalism that existed prior to 1914?"

"Here," he said, "is where science, scientists, and especially the scientists of America, can be of great service to humanity. Scientists, and the scientists of America in the first place, must be pioneers in this work of restoring internationalism.

"America is already in advance of all other nations in the matter of internationalism. It has what might be called an international 'psyche.' The extent of America's leaning to internationalism was shown by the initial success of Wilson's ideas of internationalism, the popular acclaim they met with the American people.

"That Wilson failed to carry out his ideas is beside the point. The enthusiasm with which the preaching of these ideas by Wilson was received shows the state of mind of the American public. It shows it to be internationally inclined. American scientists should be among the first to attempt to develop these ideas of internationalism and to help carry them forward. For the world, and that means America also, needs a return to international friendship. The work of peace cannot go forward in your own country, in any country, so long as your Government or any Government is uneasy about its international relations. Suspicion and bitterness are not a good soil for progress. They should vanish. The intellectuals should be among the first to cast them off."

Inaccessible to Newspaper Men.

There are two men in Germany today who are traditionally inaccessible to newspaper men. One is the financier, Hugo Stinnes. The other is Einstein.

Einstein has been greatly abused by a section of the German press and he therefore shuns publicity. He lives in a quiet section of Berlin on the top floor of a fairly up-to-date apartment house. His study consists of a reception room, or rather a conference room, and of his private workroom. The walls of the conference room are lined with books of a general character. The large number of English books is especially noticeable. There is an edition de luxe of Dickens in English, and a costly Shakspeare edition in German. Alongside of Shakspeare stands Goethe in a similarly luxurious edition. Einstein is an admirer of both Goethe and Schiller, and has the busts of the two poets prominently displayed.

Adjoining the conference room is a large music room. When he is not in his study, Mrs. Einstein told me, her husband is in the music room. Music and cigars are the scientist's only relaxations. The number of cigars he smokes is controlled by Mrs. Einstein for his health's sake, but there is no control over the amount of time he chooses to spend at the piano or with his violin, for he plays both instruments well.

His workroom is exceedingly simple. There is a telescope in it. The windows give an exceptionally good view of the sky. There are also a number of globes and various metal representations of the solar system. There are two engravings of Newton on the walls. They are the only pictures in the room. The table he works at is simple and rather small. There is a small typewriter, which is used by his secretary. Einstein has a large correspondence, receiving on an average 60 letters a day.

Dressed in Worn-Out Trousers.

He was pacing up and down the room as I entered his study. He was dressed in a pair of worn-out trousers and a sweater coat. If he had a collar on, the collar was very unobtrusive, for I cannot recall having seen it. He was at work. His hair was disheveled and his eye had a roving look. His wife told me that when the professor is seized by a problem the fact becomes known to her by this peculiar wandering look which comes into his eyes and by his feverish pacing up and down the room. At such times, she said, the profess-

The Eternal Search for Happiness

Philosophers say that the search for happiness underlies all human motive.

How many women are happy when their feet hurt?

Shoes are such an every-day affair that women (and some men) put up with uncomfortable feet as if it were a punishment handed down from Eden, not to be avoided.

If you are one whose feet have suffered, much or little, let us show you a good-looking shoe that wearers call "the most comfortable shoe I've ever had on."

It is the Cantilever Shoe, grown in popularity and demand year by year, because of its good looks, its flexible shank supporting the foot arch in a natural manner—without any appliances—its correct shape covering the foot snugly without pressure anywhere except that gentle, restful support under the arch.

In Cantilever Shoes, you stand with less fatigue and greater patience. You walk with pleasure and a zest.

These are the shoes that will give you comfort, health—and happiness.

Come and see.

And Now Comes Our Annual Spring Sale of

SAMPLE LIVING-ROOM SUITES
at Factory Prices

Our entire display of floor samples, which have been used for show purposes during the last few months, are included at wholesale prices.

We do not hold our floor samples until they become soiled, but prefer to launch a "Spring Housecleaning" to make room for fresher samples coming through our factory daily.

Our reputation for upholstered furniture is a most precious asset, and so this March event will be marked by daily demonstrations of value-giving more surprising, more convincing and more compelling than ever before.

Aren't you convinced that NOW is the psychological time to buy?

Editorial

On the Wharf at Long Key Fishing Camp, Florida.

The sun was setting over hundreds of islands surrounding this interesting coral island, which is just one hundred miles below Miami.

We could see the Atlantic on one side and the Gulf of Mexico on the other; the fishing boats were coming in and all had good catches.

It was interesting to see them unload and then weigh some of the choicest, hard-fighting fish they had caught, and they were so proud of them.

They were all game fish, sailfish, amberjack, barracuda and kingfish, some weighing up to seventy pounds and measuring more than seven feet in length.

I have returned to St. Louis, just in time for Our Annual Sale of Sample Living-Room Furniture at Actual Factory Prices; and all made in our own factory.

Meat Cause of Kidney Trouble

Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is quoted and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acid so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

It Started Something

"I have not said anything to you, but have been saying to others and have induced many to take your medicine and be convinced. Mayr's Wonderful Remedy is correctly named. It removed stuff from me I never thought could be in a human being, and I feel like a different person. The pain in my right side disappeared at once, which four doctors said would require an operation; also the bloating and indigestion." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. SOME STATES STILL LIMIT WOMEN'S RIGHTS Stumbling Block in Most Cases Is Constitutional Provision Regarding Juries.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Granting of woman suffrage has not yet given women full rights with men in a large part of the United States, it is indicated by a survey of the Middle and Southwest made by the Associated Press. In only a quarter of this territory, it appears, do women stand unmistakably on an even footing with men.

The discriminations where they exist, are, however, for the most part small. The chief disability lies in the right to sit on juries. The stumbling block in this case is generally a constitutional provision that jurymen must be males. Removal of the disqualification has been urged in a number of legislatures this winter.

Other exceptions women are under in various states include these:

In Iowa they cannot sit in the Legislature.

In Wisconsin they cannot serve as a legislative employe.

In North Dakota they do not pay poll tax.

In Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri and South Dakota women are regarded as barred from jury duty by constitutional provision or statute.

In Nebraska, although an Omaha woman recently sat on a jury, existing law makes this irregular. In Kentucky a portion at least of the Circuit Judges believe that the use of the masculine in the statute does not bar women from jury duty, as women have served on a Circuit Court jury in Jassamine County and on both petit and grand juries in Laurel County. There has been no opinion by the Kentucky Attorney-General or the courts.

In Minnesota the Attorney-General has held that women cannot serve on juries, but several District Court Judges have held otherwise and admitted them to juries. In Illinois until the Supreme Court rules definitely, Judges are permitted to determine for themselves whether women shall serve as jurors.

The North Dakota Legislature recently passed a law permitting women to serve on juries, but not requiring such service.

In Indiana the Legislature has just removed a discrimination by enacting that the father and mother jointly, if living, shall be the natural guardians of their children, instead of the father alone.

Iowa women contemplate effort to have their inability to sit in the Legislature removed through an approaching constitutional convention. Otherwise they enjoy full rights with men.

MAN BURNS BROTHER'S PHOTO, THEN LEARNS OF $5000 IN IT

When Appeal for Aid Brought Picture He Threw It in Fire—Letter Followed.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, March 26.—Stephen Nemeth, a clerk, wasting away on the little food his salary would buy, appealed to his almost forgotten brother, George, who went to America years ago and is now in Chicago.

When months later there came from George simply a large photograph, Stephen Nemeth, disappointed and angry, threw his brother's picture in the fire. The next day there came a letter. It read:

"My Dear Stephen: If you will carefully divide in two the photo I sent you yesterday you will find a $5000 bill concealed between the two sheets. Enjoy it in good health and don't forget your loving brother, or is never disturbed. His food is brought to him in his workroom. Sometimes this mode of living lasts for three or four days at a time. It is when the professor rejoins his family at the table that they know that his period of intense concentration and abstraction is over.

"GEORGE."

AN INTIMATE VIEW OF EINSTEIN IN WORKING QUARTERS

After such a period of concentration, Einstein often rests himself by reading fiction. He is fond of reading Dostoyevsky. He walks a lot through the parks, and in the summer often goes out with his family in the fields. But he is never asked by his wife or children to go for a walk. It is he who has to do the asking, and when he asks them for a walk they know that his mind is relieved of work. His hours of work are indefinite. He sometimes struggles through a whole night with a problem and goes to bed only late in the morning.

I asked him about Germany.

Allies Shaping Germany's Future.

"About Germany," he said, "it is difficult to speak. The psychology of the German people is today being molded, not from within but from without. If you want to know what Germany will do you must ask what will the Entente do. Germany's actions, Germany's political and economic course immediately, at least, are governed by the action of the allies.

"Internally, Germany's creative powers have not been vitally impaired. They have been retained. If conditions are not made too oppressive for Germany she will recover quickly. It is important that the Entente should clear up things for Germany as quickly as possible, so as to bring definiteness into the country. The lack of definiteness as to what is ahead for the German people makes concentration on work difficult."

Dr. Einstein asked whether he could not see a copy of my interview with him before it was printed. I told him that I would not write the interview until after my return to America.

"In that event," he said, "when you write it, be sure not to omit to state that I am a convinced pacifist; that I believe the world has had enough of war. Some sort of an international agreement must be reached among nations preventing the recurrence of another war, as another war will ruin our civilization completely. Continental civilization, European civilization, has been badly damaged and set back by this war, but the loss is not irreparable. Another war may prove fatal to Europe." (Copyright, 1921.)

Prohibition Vital Issue in Ulster.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, March 23.—Prohibition has become a vital issue in Ulster. The big Protestant element of the population is taking a lively interest in the campaign against drink. As in Scotland, the efforts of the "drys" appear to be directed toward securing local option. There is little doubt that the Unionist members of the new Parliament will be sharply divided on this issue.

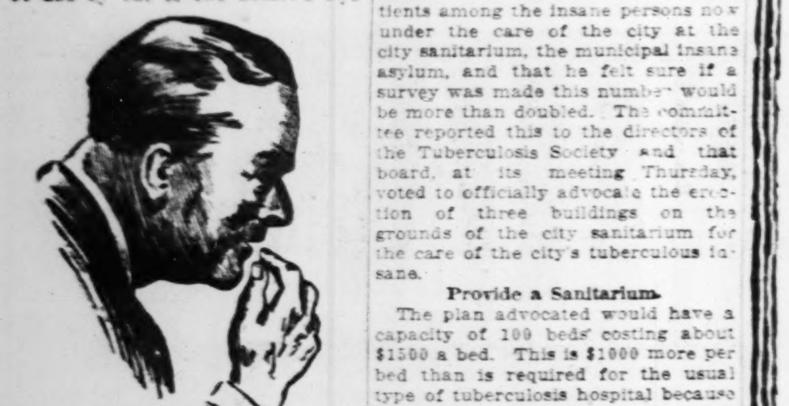
No Fear Now of Indigestion

A Host of People Seem to Thrive on What Used to Provoke Indigestion Before They Learned of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

When the stomach becomes sour, with gassiness and heartburn due to indigestion or dyspepsia, relief may be had by one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Simply chew them, no hot water nor any other fillers for a stomach perhaps already too much overcrowded.



These tablets supply to the stomach the alkaline effect which is what relieves the sour acid condition. They also contain pancreatin to help digest the starchy foods such as potatoes, rice, oatmeal, white flour, etc.

Get a 60 cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, have them in hand at all times and thus have no fear of indigestion or dyspepsia.

The fact that these tablets are on sale everywhere in the U. S. and Canada shows how generally recognized they are as an efficient aid when the dyspeptic stomach needs a little help.

THE BEST COUGH SYRUP IS HOME-MADE

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm; heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Slpendid for throat ticke, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

INGROWN NAILS

Toe Nail Turns Out Itself if you Toughen the Skin

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Says Every Railroad Man Should Read This

Peterson's Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. Dear Sirs: I was afflicted with what the doctors said were Varicose Ulcers, and up until about five weeks ago I have been treating them for about a year and five months.

With all the treatments that were prescribed to me by several doctors I received little benefit, and they kept spreading and gave me much distress and caused me to quit my work.

I was induced by a brother brakeman to try Peterson's Ointment, and after I had used two boxes I saw wonderful results. You can tell suffering ones troubled with ugly, painful and horrid ulcers that your Ointment is a cure for them when everything else fails, as I have tried about everything. Thanking you many times over, I am, your happy friend, Chas. J. Heyser, Battle Creek, Mich., 42 Glenwood Av., Jan. 17, 1918.

"I know and dozens of people write me," says Peterson of Buffalo, "that Peterson's Ointment also cures eczema, old sores, salt rheum, piles and all skin diseases, and all druggists sell a big box for 60 cents." Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medler, Enderle Drug Co. and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. will supply you.

SANITARIUM URGED FOR TUBERCULOUS INSANE

Tuberculosis Society Will Ask Board of Estimate for Appropriation for Such an Institution.

The Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis is advocating the erection of a special sanitarium for the treatment of the tuberculous insane of St. Louis and will appear before the city Board of Estimates and Apportionment at its next meeting to urge an appropriation of $150,000 for this purpose. At a meeting of the institutional efficiency committee of the society last week, Dr. Joseph F. Bredeck, municipal tuberculosis controller, stated that he personally knew of at least 50 tuberculous patients among the insane persons now under the care of the city at the city sanitarium, the municipal insane asylum, and that he felt sure if a survey was made this number would be more than doubled. The committee reported this to the directors of the Tuberculosis Society and that board, at its meeting Thursday, voted to officially advocate the erection of three buildings on the grounds of the city sanitarium for the care of the city's tuberculous insane.

Provide a Sanitarium.

The plan advocated would have a capacity of 100 beds costing about $1500 a bed. This is $1000 more per bed than is required for the usual type of tuberculosis hospital because the needs of the tuberculous insane combine the needs of both tuberculous persons and physically healthy insane persons. Buildings occupied by them must be open-air pavilions, but must be both fireproof and of greater stability than those required for the ordinary tuberculosis patient, it is stated.

Push Hospital Work.

The board of directors of the Tuberculosis Society also voted to push vigorously the proposed appropriations for improvements at Koch Hospital and for 12 additional municipal nurses. In reference to the former appropriations Dr. S. T. Lipsotz, chairman of the special committee on appropriations, says that his committee has appeared before the Board of Estimates and Apportionment in regard to items most urgently needed at Koch Hospital. Among the most needed improvements, in the committee's opinion, are the following:

Improvement of the grounds of Koch Hospital so that the patients will have pleasant surroundings, pleasing to the eye and comfortable to their tastes, thus inducing the contentment of mind so imperatively needed in effecting a real cure of tuberculosis. This will cost $20,000, it is estimated.

Properly constructed and equipped rest and recreation pavilions so that in rainy weather the patients will have a place to sit outside the wards or basement of the hospital. At present the men have to sit in the basement when the weather keeps them from sitting out in the grounds, and the women, having no basement at their disposal, must remain in the wards. Part of this pavilion, according to the plan, is to be used for the occupational therapy recently installed at Koch Hospital and already manifesting its efficacy in the increased interest and contentment of the patients who are able to enter the classes. The pavilion will cost, it is estimated, $10,000, with an additional $1800 for occupational therapy supplies. Miss Blanche Hunton, an expert occupational therapist, especially trained for work among tuberculosis patients, now is at the hospital.

Dental Equipment Needed.

Dental equipment for the hospital, to cost $1000, also is among the items urged by the Tuberculosis Society. Dr. J. P. Harper, dean of the St. Louis College of Dentistry, who made a survey of the needs of the hospital in this respect, says that there are 143 patients at the hospital who need dental care now. Most of these are not able to come to town to have their work done, and many general practice dentists object to working on the teeth of tuberculous persons. Therefore, there should be a well-equipped dental laboratory at the hospital, he says.

An X-ray outfit, with laboratory and supplies, to be used in diagnosis, will cost $7000.

Under Dr. Bredeck, who was appointed Tuberculosis Controller of Louis about a year ago, Koch Hospital has become a place where patients are given real treatment, the directors of the Tuberculosis Society say, because since he took up the work of his office two permanent house physicians have been added to the staff at the hospital. If the improvements declared by tuberculosis experts throughout the city to be imperative are installed the hospital soon will be the equal of other city tuberculosis sanitoria in America, and will aid greatly in promoting the general health of the city of St. Louis, they assert.

In urging the appropriations for these improvements the Tuberculosis Society is not relaxing its efforts to assist in obtaining an additional appropriation for the municipal nurses to enable the superintendent to add 12 more nurses to her staff. Needs in this regard are as imperative as in the other respect, the society's officers say. If 12 nurses are added to the present staff the city will have 35, and will be better prepared to cope with present conditions here. The staff as it is now constituted is heavily overworked and inadequate for the situation, and by even this small increase it will more nearly meet the requirements of the moment and also come nearer the standard of other large cities of the United States. The municipal nurses now have an appropriation of $48,000. They are seeking to have this increased to $65,000.

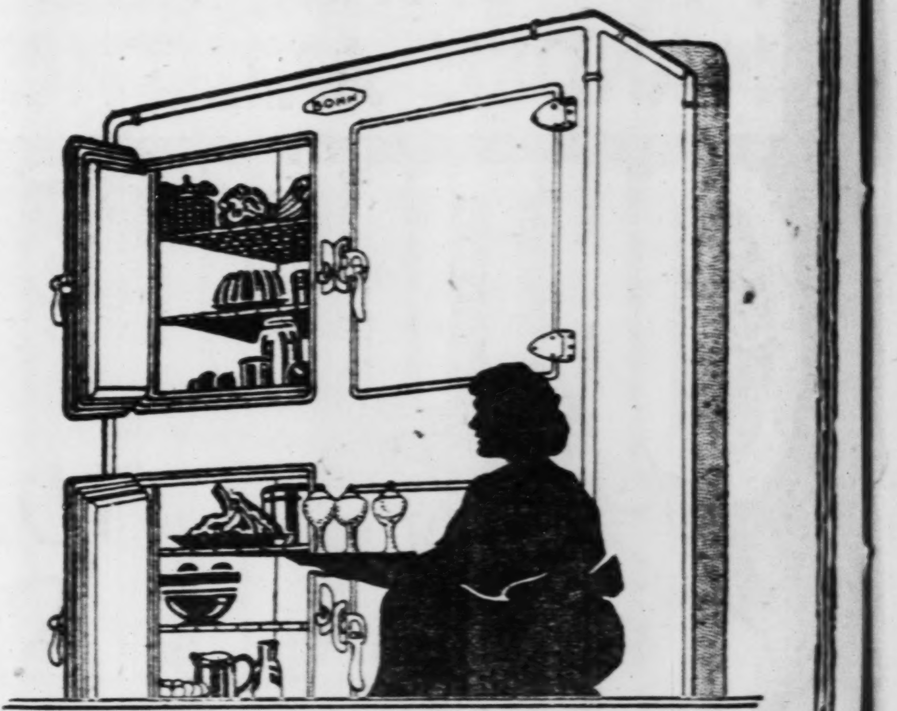
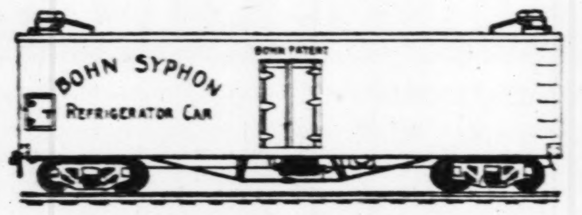
Bohn Syphon Refrigerators



Built on a scientific principle, tested and proved efficient by years of use, the Bohn Syphon Refrigerator has attained the distinction of being nationally accepted as the perfect cold storage plant for the home.

By special appointment we become the exclusive St. Louis representatives of the Bohn Company. A full and complete line of Bohn Refrigerators awaits you at our store.



Bohn Refrigeration

More than 60,000 Bohn Syphon Refrigerator Cars (constructed on identically the same principle as the Bohn Syphon Household Refrigerator) are now in daily use.

Moreover, Bohn Syphon Refrigerators have been adopted exclusively by the Pullman Company, and by more than 95% of the railroads for use in dining or buffet cars.

Bohn Sanitor Refrigerators

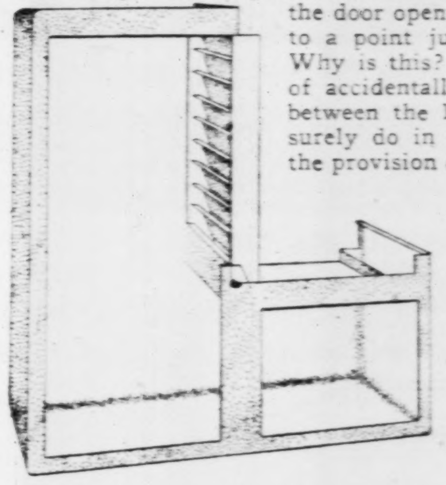
With oak or ash exterior and seamless porcelain lining in the provision chamber. It is appreciably lower in price than the Bohn Syphon, but like the Bohn Syphon, it has ten thicknesses of material and is thoroughly constructed to the last detail. Economical of ice, too. And no trouble at all to keep clean and sanitary.

Bohn Icyco Refrigerators

Made with hardwood case and one-piece white enamel lining—three coats, baked on. Well insulated with wool felt and waterproof paper. Icyco Refrigerators have been giving satisfaction for years. If you want a Refrigerator at as low a price as is consistent with real efficiency you can't do better than to get one of these.

All Bohn Refrigerators have one-piece linings

The provision chamber linings in Bohn Refrigerators are strictly one-piece and with rounded corners. In the Bohn Syphon and the Bohn Sanitor this lining is of white porcelain. In the Bohn Icyco it is of baked-on white enamel. The advantage of a one-piece lining with round corners is obvious—cleaning is made easy—and perfect, sanitary cleanliness is absolutely assured at all times.



Another point—the provision chamber floor is below the level of the door opening, and the lining curves up to a point just below the door opening. Why is this? To prevent the possibility of accidentally spilled liquids seeping in between the lining and the case, as they surely do in the Refrigerators that have the provision chamber floor on a level with or higher than the door opening. Such seeping in of liquids is not only insanitary, but also ruinous to the Refrigerator insulation. In a Bohn Refrigerator spilled liquids haven't a chance to do any harm. The only place they can go is down and out through the drain.

Drop-Side Metal Crib—Specially Priced at $4.98

This Crib is 4 feet 6 inches long and 2 feet 6 inches wide, substantially built and enameled in white. Has high sides and both sides can be dropped, but they are firm and secure when in place. Wire fabric springs are included.

Mattress for Crib, $2.45

Pure cotton filled Mattress, full 12 pounds, covered with strong ticking and finished with box edge.

Fiber Furniture, 50% Off

Odd pieces of Fiber Furniture in frosted brown and ivory finish. Included are chairs, rockers, settees, day beds and tables. You can probably pick up a piece or two that you've been wanting—and remember, you can save 50% on them.

Be Inspired by These Fighting Salesmen of 1921

AT A CONVENTION of CHICAGO TRIBUNE advertising salesmen, held during the last few days of December, 1920, this slogan was adopted as the basis for work during the ensuing twelve months: 1921 Will Reward Fighters. It met with instant, national recognition. Hundreds of letters were received by THE TRIBUNE, pledging other organizations to battle under the same standard. THE TRIBUNE, on January 15, offered ten rewards of $100.00 each for the best examples of successful salesmanship in the face of present discouraging conditions. Incidents were invited which would illustrate the absolute truth of the slogan—1921 Will Reward Fighters.

Brains without work are dead—and so is work without brains. The winners in THE TRIBUNE contest did not beat their heads out against stone walls—neither did they let stone walls stop them. Perseverance, determination and courage were directed by brains. Necessity proved mother to invention in almost every case. In four instances newspaper advertising was a big factor in solving the sales problem.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE—Also a Salesman

THE FACT that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE sells more than 450,000 copies each week-day morning and more than 800,000 each Sunday morning will indicate that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE knows something about selling. More than 25,000,000 lines of CHICAGO TRIBUNE advertising sold last year constitutes another testimonial to the salesmanship of THE TRIBUNE'S organization.

But the important thing for you to know is that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE itself is a salesman—a super-salesman that you can hire to work with and for you. It is a salesman calling regularly in one-fifth of the homes of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is a salesman that works in close harmony with all other salesmen—helps the manufacturer sell the dealer, helps the dealer sell the consumer. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is an up-to-date, 1921 fighting salesman, ready to help your sales organization to go over the top this year. You owe it to your fighting salesmen to give them the co-operation of fighting advertising in this powerful newspaper.

Ten Fighting Salesmen Who Won CHICAGO TRIBUNE Prizes

MRS. ALICE M. B—L, who found that her Virginia Hogs would not bring as much on the market as it cost to raise them. How she entered into competition with the big Chicago packers—and won—is told in her letter.

J. L. BLAKE, on the other hand, was selling Canned Goods in Southern California for one of the big Chicago packers. How he turned a cancellation of a five-case order into a new order for 83 cases makes good reading.

JOHN S. EDMUNDS of Chicago had a big order for China Dinner Sets cancelled. Fast thinking, quick action, co-operation between merchant and manufacturer, resulted in the sale of the entire original order and an additional carload as well.

MRS. G. L. GIBSON met the "Buyers' Strike" when Kentucky jobbers announced that they were all loaded up with Corn Flakes for which there seemed to be no call from grocers. She cleared their warehouse for them and new orders followed as a matter of course.

J. C. HUNT found dealers in New York towns overstocked with his Kitchen Cabinets, local factories closed, business at a standstill. But he soon got big new orders from grateful merchants.

LOUIS C. JACOBSON had to sell a Chicago mail-order house on buying more Advertising than ever before in the face of greatest depression. He did it and it paid.

WILLIAM F. MOLLOY was threatened with cancellation of an order for Grape Juice because his customer could buy for less elsewhere. But he held the order and made two friends.

T. R. SHAW was told by his firm to sell Soap—lots of it. Grocers in his Illinois territory wouldn't buy, so he sold it through a clothing store and advertising.

HARRY W. WALLACE met a grocer who said he couldn't buy Soap or Beans or Ketchup because trade was dead in his part of Massachusetts. Wallace showed him how to bring dead trade to life.

ROBERT D. WHITE created business for himself and for his customer by demonstrating that women in a small Kansas town would buy Easter Dresses in January.

A pamphlet has been published containing these vital messages of victory from men and women on the firing line of business. A copy will be mailed to any one who sends a stamped, return envelope (size No. 10) to the Business Survey of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Any one of these examples of 1921 Fighting Salesmanship may have within it an idea or inspiration which you can use to enormous advantage this year.

German Film Stars Demand High Pay.

BERLIN, March 26.—Alleged "fantastic salaries" demanded by German film stars has caused film producers so much concern that a move has been made toward limiting their pay. The moving picture companies, in making this announcement, gave out a list of salaries which they believe exorbitant. The salaries of a few women reached 800,000 marks yearly, it is said, although the usual pay for first-class work is about 3500 marks daily while employed. It is customary to hire even well-known performers by "the piece."

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to cardholders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

MAN POWER—By Lincoln C. Andrews. Gen. Andrews attempts to give the essentials of leadership and the fundamental principles of handling men. The volume is addressed to all who are responsible for the work of others.

YOUTH AND EGOLATRY—By Pio Baroja. A translation from the Spanish of a collection of intensely personal sketches of the author himself. He gives us his beliefs, his literary opinions, his tastes and the main facts of his life. Whimsical and cynical.

HOW THE MIND CURES—By Geo. F. Butler. Dr. Butler, the former head of the Psychopathic Hospital in Chicago, employs the Socratic method of question and answer to drive his points home. Optimistic in tone. "You can be well"—and this book will tell you how.

BERGSON AND PERSONAL REALISM—By R. T. Flewelling. Part 1 criticises the deficiencies of Bergson as to the philosophy of religion; part 2 is a constructive discussion of personal realism, "the supreme metaphysical and spiritual reality." The author is professor of philosophy in the University of Southern California.

THE GREAT GAME OF BUSINESS—By J. G. Frederick. A breezy exaltation of American business. The author attempts to give the standards that make good business men, the rules that make men work well together for business results and that make the great game enjoyable.

THE FRONTIER OF CONTROL—By Carter L. Goodrich. A clear and impartial study of British workshop politics by a disinterested American observer sent by Amherst College. Attempts to show what control workers of Great Britain actually exercise on discipline and management in industry today.

OLD AND NEW—By C. H. Grandgent. Sundry papers treating in general of changes in fashion, especially in matters of speech and of school. The author is professor of romance languages at Harvard.

DYNAMIC AMERICANISM—By A. B. Hall. A plea for a better understanding of the ideals and aspirations of American democracy and a deeper sense of personal accountability for their development and defense. Urges study and observation of American government, life and politics.

SCENES FROM THE COURT OF PETER THE GREAT, BASED ON THE LATIN DIARY OF J. G. KORB—Edited by F. L. Glaser. The contemporaneous impressions are from the diary of a secretary of the Austrian legation at the Russian court. First-hand sketches of a barbarous society and a cruel government.

MANUAL OF TROPICAL AND SUBTROPICAL FRUITS. By W. Popenoe. A discussion of the results of the latest researches and experiments in the cultivation of the most promising fruits of the warm regions of the world. A bibliography of material on the diseases, pests and cultivation of such fruits concludes the work.

SOCIAL CONDITIONS IN AN AMERICAN CITY. By S. M. Harrison. A social survey of the city of Springfield, Ill., for the convenience of those who might want a brief account of late social survey experiments and results.

EMANCIPATION AND THE FREED IN AMERICAN SCULPTURE. By F. H. Murray. Descriptions and interpretations of black folk in American sculpture representing them in their first state of freedom. Each of the 43 discussed statues are well illustrated.

MUSINGS AND MEMORIES OF A MUSICIAN. By Sir George Henschel. In which the author gives us interesting details of his musical life and education and tells us of his meetings and association with such men as Anton Rubinstein, Tausig, Liszt, Wagner and Brahm.

MOTOR ROAD TRANSPORTATION. By J. Phillimore. "A guide for those who intend adapting mechanical traction." A discussion of road transport as an aid to railway transport and the possibilities of earning power and economy in the operation of road transportation companies.

SKETCHES OF AMERICA AND AMERICANS. By G. I. Haight. Essays written to stimulate an interest in the heroic and vital of America on such subjects as the Alamo, Plymouth Rock, Nathan Hale, A Trip to Tarrytown, Red Jacket and the Battle of Bennington.

ROOSEVELT'S WRITINGS. By M. G. Fulton. A pocket edition of passages from the life and works of Theodore Roosevelt which reveal the characteristics of his mind and spirit. Written to help the study of "Americanism" through the careers of great Americans.

A PRACTICAL COURSE IN ROOF FRAMING. By R. M. Van Gaasbeek. The volume is intended as an aid in the teaching of the use of the steel square, the most useful tool of the carpenter's kit. Such subjects as gable roofs, gambrel roofs, conical roofs and the explanation of words and terms used in the business, are discussed in detail. Especially written for foremen, journeymen and apprenticed wood workers.

Americans' Funds to Be Released.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, March 7.—Thirty million kronen belonging to American firms is to be released by the Hungarian Government upon representations by the American Commissioner, Grant Smith. The money was taken as a 20 per cent levy on bank deposits. The question whether the authorities had a right to levy on American capital in Hungarian banks has been long argued.

CONSTANTINOPLE CITY OF STRANGE CUSTOMS

American Sailor Tells of Some of Odd Incidents of Life in Turkish Capital.

Special Correspondence of the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 4.—There are many curious things in this ancient city of the Turk which are unknown to most people. It has remained for a sailor aboard the United States warship Scorpion to classify some of these oddities for the readers of Far Seas, the paper published by American bluejackets in Near Eastern waters.

"Just imagine," he writes, "tying up traffic on the main thoroughfare of a big city during the busiest hours of the day by driving a flock of sheep slowly down the street. But they do it over here."

Some other alleged strange things done by the Constantinopolitans he cites as follows:

A street car passenger often bargains with the conductor about the price he will pay for a ride.

If a youth takes a girl to the movies once or twice her parents expect him to marry her.

Turkish saleswomen, even in the smallest shops, are required to understand or speak seven or eight different languages.

Native men are accustomed to "rent" a pipe to smoke while they sip their afternoon tea.

A policeman, if he finds a pickpocket at work, may beat him almost insensible and then let his prisoner go.

Some Constantinople stores have signs in as many as eight languages over their doors.

A tourist may engage a boatman to row him for two miles for 2 or 3 cents.

As American paper money in Turkey is worth 15 to 20 per cent more than Turkish gold, it is possible for one to buy a $20 gold piece for 17 paper dollars.

Christmas is celebrated four times a year, once for each of the different religious calendars.

A man walking along the street often may be seen followed, five or ten paces in the rear, by a few of his wives.

A bootblack will give you a good shine for a cigarette.

There is no limit to automobile speeding in any part of Constantinople, but it's a case of "all you can make."

A Turkish barber is courteous, but when he shaves you he never washes off the lather, but covers your face with powder.

A suit of pajamas, or its equivalent, is enough "evening dress" at a grand ball.

DIVER GOES DOWN 396 FEET

By the Associated Press.

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 26.—That he can dive 500 feet into the ocean and still work comfortably and easily is the contention of Frank Walters, diver and inventor of an aluminum diving suit. In a recent test he reached a depth of 396 feet, said here to be a world's record.

The suit is built of ⅝ and ½ inch metal and weighs over 300 pounds. In making his recent descent Mr. Walker added 50 pounds of lead to the soles of his shoes. Owing to the rigidity of the suit, pressure at the depth attained was but 40 pounds to the square inch inside the suit, while it reached 170 pounds on the outside. The suit has ball-bearing joints and artificial hands. It cost about $3000 to build.

APPENDICITIS

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by stomach trouble or constipation. Many people have a bowel movement every day, but it is not a COMPLETE movement, and much old, stale matter stays in the system to ferment and cause trouble. Often there is only a small passage in the center of the bowels, while the sides are covered with old, hard matter, which sticks to the bowels and often poisons the system for months, making you feel tired all the time and "half-sick." Even if your bowels move slightly each day, that is not enough. There must be an occasional THOROUGH, complete cleansing to bring out all the accumulated, poisonous waste matter.

Appendicitis is an intestinal infection spreading to the appendix, and it can be guarded against in the same manner in which you guard against the spread of throat infection (sore throat). When you have sore throat, you can often prevent further trouble by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to destroy the germs, and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Very similar treatment is necessary to guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary and a COMPLETE drainage of the bowel system.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleaner. This preparation, known as ADLER-I-KA, acts as follows:

It tends to destroy or remove harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here. It is the most COMPLETE system cleaner ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and bringing out foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gasses, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart and other vital organs. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter ADLER-I-KA draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much MORE foul matter is brought out which was poisoning your system. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headaches, one spoonful ADLER-I-KA ALWAYS brings relief. ADLER-I-KA is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary stomach and bowel medicines and the various oils and waters, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action.

REPORTS FROM PHYSICIANS

"I have used Adler-i-ka in my practice and have found nothing to excel it." (Signed Dr. W. A. Line.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years practice to excel Adler-i-ka." (Signed) Dr James Weaver.

"I use Adler-i-ka in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adler-i-ka feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

"Thanks to Adler-i-ka I can sleep all night now, something I could not do for years." (Signed) Cora E. Noblett.

Adler-i-ka is sold by leading druggists everywhere. In St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington; Johnson Bros. Drug Co., 7th and St. Charles, and other druggists.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

Lady writes: "I am writing for advice to cure myself of pimples and boils. My skin seems too oily."

Answer: The organs which eliminate waste matter need attention. Obtain Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets) and take regularly as per directions for several months.

"Texas" writes: "Can a sufferer from bronchial trouble be relieved? Nothing seems to help me. What would you suggest?"

Answer: To relieve chronic cold, sore throat, bronchitis, I would advise the use of concentrated essence Mentho-Laxene. Purchase this at any drug store in 2½-oz. packages and mix according to directions given on bottle and you will very shortly be relieved of bronchial trouble. This will not only relieve, but will correct, and is very pleasant to take.

"Father" writes: "Should a man of forty-six find himself utterly incapacitated? Am weak, nervous, timid, self-conscious. Do not sleep well. Arise with a tired feeling, lame back and often have severe headache in the back part of head. Fickle appetite, but when I do eat, do not get strength."

Answer: To use a common expression, "you have exceeded the speed limit" and your nervous system needs the aid of an invigorating tonic medicine. Get a tube of Cadomene tablets. Take as per directions and continue treatment several months if necessary.

Young Miss writes: "My hair is combing out, my scalp itches and dandruff is much annoying, and I want something to cure these conditions."

Answer: For hair and scalp troubles I have never found anything to equal the beneficial results of a thorough treatment of plain yellow Minyol. It is cooling, cleansing and invigorating, and thousands now use it regularly as a hair and scalp tonic.

"Restless" writes: "I am uneasy about my health. My kidneys and bladder are not well. Have spells of depression, do not sleep well. My ankles puff, and under my eyes I have 'bags.' Please prescribe."

Answer: Your symptoms indicate you need treatment to tone up the functions of kidneys and bladder. Obtain in sealed tubes Balmwort tablets and take as per directions for several weeks, or until relief is experienced.

Mr. A writes: "When a person becomes uncomfortable from excess fat do you believe in reducing with medicine treatment?"

Answer: The treatment of excess fat for reduction can be carried out safely with Arbolone tablets. I do not advise indiscriminate medication, but this treatment seems to be uniformly successful.

Tells About Arising "Every Hour or So" Throughout the Night, Because of Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Danger Signals for You!

"For two years I had suffered from disorders of the kidneys and bladder. Distressing pain in the back and hips, depression and extreme nervousness. Many nights every hour or so I would have to arise, as the pressure in bladder region was unbearable. My ankles swelled and my skin became dry and harsh. After using Balmwort Tablets I noticed relief and continued taking until now I feel wholly relieved of pain and suffering. I am glad to recommend Balmwort Tablets as a most reliable beneficial medicine."

Thus writes Mr. W. E. Goff, prominently connected with the D. L. & W. R. R., Syracuse, N. Y., just one of thousands who have found

For kidneys Balmwort and Bladder TABLET

Eczema Specialist for 15 years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

Send this notice to some poor sufferer from eczema. It will be a kind act indeed.

SEASIDE RESORT WHERE ONE CAN REST

Mardel Plata, in Argentina, Knows No Merry-Go-Rounds or "Mermaids."

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, March 1.—To the American accustomed to the hilarity of Coney Island, the gayety of Atlantic City or the furious sport of the California beaches. Argentina's principal seaside resort, Mar del Plata, is a surprise, for one can really rest there.

He sees no merry-go-rounds, no scenic railways, no thrilling devices of any kind. He catches sight of few "mermaids" disporting on the sand. He is charmed, or shocked, by no frivolous or scant bathing togs. He sees no running about, no leapfrog, no surf-riding, no dancing on the sand to the strains of distant music.

Instead, he finds a sober multitude quietly promenading or lolling in chairs decorously chatting, or sipping drinks. He sees a smartly dressed crowd, both of men and women. When fashionable Miss Argentina hies her for the beach city she equips herself with a trunkful of Paris gowns.

She usually takes an ocean dip every morning between 11 and 12, attired in a bathing costume that falls modestly below the knees, and seldom tarries between the surf and her bath house. She may sometimes play tennis in the morning, too, and in the afternoon try a round of golf on the excellent links up the beach. In the evenings she will dance at the hotel or at the villas of friends, but always chaperoned by her mother.

She dresses often and effectively and strolls along the "Rambla" looking wistfully out to sea, sometimes having her picture snapped by one of the many ambulant photographers with quick developer outfits who need only a discreet nod as an order.

Mar del Plata has a permanent winter population of about 30,000, but throughout the southern summer its expensive hotels and costly villas shelter several thousand of Argentina's fashionable folk, mostly from Buenos Aires, while there are numerous cheaper hostelries for those of lesser means.

HANNA THEATER IN CLEVELAND

House Built by Son to Be Named for Former Senator.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., March 26.—Dedicated to the memory of the late United States Senator M. A. Hanna, who was the drama's most liberal patron in Cleveland, the Hanna Theater will be opened here Monday night. It is built by Senator Hanna's son, Dan R. Hanna. The new playhouse is in the great new Hanna building and annex at Euclid avenue and East Fourteenth street.

The policy of the new theater, it is announced, will be the presentation of strictly high-class offerings, the kind Senator Hanna always insisted upon during his 25 years' ownership of the Euclid Avenue Opera House. William Faversham and his company will open the theater with a dramatization of Mark Twain's "The Prince and the Pauper."

The Hanna Theater is architecturally distinctive among the many new theaters that have recently sprung up in Cleveland's new rialto district. Lee and J. J. Shubert and Crosby Gaige are lessees and manager.

OLD KENTUCKY
HOMESPUN TOBACCO
Cream of the Finest Crops Direct to You

RIPE, RICH, OLD-FASHION LEAF

The choice of Kentucky's finest crops direct from our farms to you. This FAMOUS OLD KENTUCKY HOMESPUN is no more like the manufactured tobacco than day is like night—free from chemicals and all other adulterations that undermine the health, that conceal imperfections and delude the sense of taste. Grown and nurtured in Kentucky's finest soil, cut at the proper time, carefully selected, aged and mellowed for chewing and smoking. Like old wine in the cellar, its rich, rare fragrance permeates the air. Cured and "sweated" by the same method as employed in the early days, the method our grandfathers used in preparing tobacco for their own use—every trace of harshness leaves it—nothing to "bite" your tongue or parch your mouth; nothing to tire your taste. No fancy packages, no decorations—just QUALITY and lots of it. Throughout the country—North, East, South and West, men have tested this fine old tobacco and spread the news of its inimitable quality. Grown right here in the greatest tobacco producing district in the world. We bank on it you have never tasted a finer flavored, more satisfying tobacco in all your life. Give the old "cob" a treat—"load 'er" up to the brim. Cut off a "hunk" as big as your fist and slip it between your teeth. Smoke or chew it will give you the keenest joy since the days of Old Bourbon.

"I have used the best tobacco they have in Canada, England and Ireland, but have never tasted any as good as your Old Kentucky Homespun."—J. P. O'Connor, Gold Beach, Oregon.

"I am a retired physician, 82 years old. Have used tobacco ever since I can remember. I chew but do not smoke. None gives me such satisfaction as Old Kentucky Homespun Leaf Tobacco. It is not only the most pleasant and agreeable but goes farther than any other kind and produces no ill effects."—S. S. Sutton, Kirby, Ark.

"Your tobacco is everything a person can desire. Even my wife enjoys its pleasant aroma in the house."—A. C. Evering, Grand Center, Ia.

"The tobacco came in good shape and I like it fine. Have been imposed upon long enough by the makers of high priced, 'doped up trash called tobacco."—C. L. Gates, Morrisville, Vt.

KENTUCKY NORMAL HAS STUDENT "VILLAGE"

Plan Enables Attendants at School to Obtain Lodging for Four-Year Term at $1.50 Monthly.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., March 26.—The housing problem for students at the Western Kentucky State Normal here has been solved, college officials assert, through a unique plan conceived by President T. C. Cherry which has resulted in building on the campus what is known here as "The Village." Forty-two houses have been finished during the last year and the total cost for four years' residence in them ranged around $1.50 a month per resident for each room.

"The Village" is electrically lighted, has macadamized streets, water, central bath houses for men and women, and a Mayor.

The origin of "The Village" came about last year through certainty that unless something was done to better housing conditions here the normal would be forced to curtail its work and the size of the student body. Rooms in private homes were not available and there were frequent embarrassing raises in rents.

There was plenty of room on "Normal Heights," so it was decided that houses should be constructed here with the students paying the cost. There are three types of houses, one room, one room and kitchenette and two rooms and kitchenette. The cost is around $200 for the first type; $300 for the second and $500 for the third, according to college authorities.

The students occupying the house pay the cost of construction to the college. There are no further assessments and they may remain in the house for four years. Should the student decide to leave at the end of one year, one-half the purchase price is refunded; at the end of two years one-fourth, and at the end three, one-eighth. The building reverts to the normal at the end of the fourth year.

Four persons may occupy the larger type of houses and two or three the smaller. Owners are permitted to sublet houses to students and their immediate families.

"An analysis of the cost of these rooms," said a normal school official in speaking of "The Village," will reveal a rate surprisingly low per person. For instance, three occupy a one-room house. Each pays around $67 for the entire four years, or $17 yearly or $1.50 monthly. In addition he pays at cost rates for fuel, electricity and water which in extreme cases will hardly bring the gross cost above $3 monthly. Suppose the house is given up at the end of the first year. The cost to each person is around $34 for the entire 12 months.

"Say a family of four engages a two-room and kitchenette type of building. Each pays $125 for the four years. For this sum he is provided with a home, comfortable and beautifully located. He is assured that he may remain therein during his entire time in school. He is relieved of the uncertainty which frequently attends his residence in a private home. There will be no embarassing raises of rent. For married students the village affords an opportunity for satisfactory living heretofore unavailable. The school has no dormitory space for married students and private homes generally prefer unmarried men and women. The village is a positive blessing for married students with children.

"The social atmosphere of The Village is entirely wholesome. No house has been sold until the applicant's record has been thoroughly canvassed and the administrative staff of the normal convinced of his eligibility. The residents of the village bring together into one compact unit common purposes, ideals and the spirit of democratic living."

AUTO NEWS and GOSSIP

PAGEANT CHOSEN HEAD OF TRUCK MEN'S ASSN.

At a meeting of the Commercial Car Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Manufactruers and Dealers' Association, held Friday noon, Charles E. Pageant, branch manager for the General Motors Truck Co., was elected chairman of the bureau for the coming year. C. A. Cole of the F. C. Meyer Motor Co. was chosen vice chairman.

In recounting the activities of the past year and forecasting the problems which would confront the bureau during the coming year, L. H. Amrine, the retiring chairman, laid special emphasis upon the necessity of better educating the drivers of motor trucks to the end that owners would secure more efficient and economical operation. Special attention was called to the work along this line now being carried out by the Packard Drivers' Institute and the Chauffeurs' School of the Safety First Council. T. B. Fogg, branch supervisor of the Garford Motor Truck Co., told of conditions prevailing in other cities.

The advisability of holding another truck tour this spring was discussed at length and referred to a committee to work out the details of some effective demonstration of the efficiency of motor truck use. It was decided that there would be weekly meetings of the Commercial Car Bureau held each Wednesday.

CHEVROLET REFUND MAY REACH $4,000,000

The announcement made by the Chevrolet Motor Co. that it will make a cash refund to all purchasers of Model "Four-Ninety" automobiles is proving very popular with those who are in the market for cars. The commanding position of the company in the automobile world naturally inspires confidence in the plan and more than usual interest in the buying public. The logic and fairness of the announcement makes a peculiar appeal to the business common sense of the discriminating buyer.

In the light of the Chevrolet sales record, it is regarded as certain that 50,000 Chevrolet "Four-Ninety" cars will be sold by Aug. 1, in which event the refunds of $70 on open cars and light delivery wagons and $100 on closed cars will reach the total of about $4,000,000.

Worrell With Southwest Nash.

R. F. Worrell, for seven years connected with the motor car industry in St. Louis, both in wholesale and retail departments, has been appointed assistant manager of the Southwest-Nash Motors Co., where he will give his attention to both the wholesale and retail end of the business.

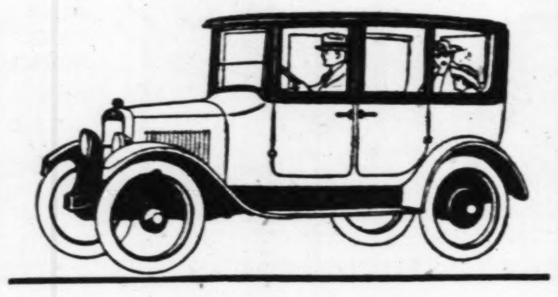
MISSISSIPPI VALLEY TO RETAIL OAKLANDS

The Mississippi Valley Motor Co., wholesale distributors for the Oakland in this territory, will on April 1 add a retail department for the sale of the Oakland in the St. Louis metropolitan district.

"This expansion in our business," said E. A. Hatfield, president of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co., "will enable us to keep in closer touch with Oakland owners than we have been able to do heretofore when our business was wholesale exclusively.

"Our observation of the needs of the owner of an automobile based on our five years' experience is prompt, efficient and fair service, and our retail department will be organized to render that sort of service."

Hatfield states that this expansion of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co. does not contemplate any change in the number of dealers who are now handling the Oakland in this district.



THE FOUR-DOOR SEDAN is a good investment, yielding large returns in health, business and home life. Luxurious in riding ease, it is unrivaled in fuel economy. Seven hundred and fifty thousand Overland motor cars guarantee and acclaim its quality.

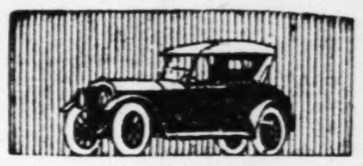
When You Buy A Diamond



You are pretty likely to go to a firm in whom you have confidence. You may not know enough about diamonds to trust your own judgment, therefore you pick the house you buy from.

—Same way with cars. Buy your used car from an established automobile dealer. A company which handles one or two established lines of new cars will try to make the sale of a used car the first step to the sale of a new car to you later on.

That is why we guarantee satisfaction with our used cars. You cannot buy one until you have tried it for twenty-four hours.

A splendid variety to choose from and the lowest terms on which cars should be sold.

PAIGE

We are intensely proud of the fact that our "Daytona 6-66" model broke the world's stock car record for speed. But speed we consider a mere by-product.

What we wanted to establish was enduring strength and stamina. We knew that any car strong enough to win a world's championship would be strong enough for all amateur demands —in years of service.

And now, we say, test the 6-66 for yourself. Test it in comparison with any other car—at any price —and draw your own impartial conclusions.

Our dealer is ready to give you a demonstration.

National Speedway Tires
6000-Mile Guarantee
BUILT UNDER INTERNAL HYDRAULIC EXPANSION

After the mould is in the vulcanizer, water heated to vulcanizing temperature is pumped into the fabric bag through a connection extending through the mould. The pressure of the heated water is 200 pounds to the square inch—from within—the pressure best adapted to obtaining perfect adhesion of all the layers, insuring a tire of long life, freedom from tread separation and guaranteed to resist blow-out, rim-cut and stone-bruise.

You will see that in the Speedway Process there is no excessive strain on the tire—nothing to tear or break down its different parts. On the contrary, the process produces a tire of uniformly united parts—a tire of one piece, in fact, every inch of which is in perfect condition when, after vulcanizing, it is taken from the mould.

MOERSCHELL TO HOLD TESTS ON RAY BATTERY

Officials of the Ray Battery Co. of Ypsilanti, Mich., will be in St. Louis this week to conduct a series of tests with Ray batteries. The tests will be made by a well-known engineer—member of the S. A. E., Roy Fisher, president and general manager of the company, and Thomas Lavier, chief engineer, will personally supervise these tests.

The tests will be made at the Moerschell Electric & Supply Co., 2944 Locus street, on Monday and Tuesday. The first day the demonstration will be made for dealers. The public is invited to witness the test on the second day.

The Ray battery has proved itself almost indestructible and the makers challenge manufacturers of any other battery to subject their battery to similar tests.

During their stay in the city the Ray Battery Co. representatives will be at the Statler Hotel. More than 40 out-of-town dealers have accepted Moerschell's invitation to visit the tests on Monday.

OAKLAND DEALERS IN SALES CONVENTION

A convention of all wholesale salesmen, branch managers and distributers of the Oakland organization will be held at the Oakland factory at Pontiac, Mich., March 28, 29 and 30.

More than 200 are expected to be in attendance, considering the various sales problems which are confronting the automobile industry during the coming spring. An elaborate program of sales helps has been prepared by the factory.

TO DISTRIBUTE TWO NEW TIRE PRODUCTS

Announcement was made last week by the Bartling-Doering-Powers Tire Co. that they had been appointed distributers for the South and Southwest of the Prudential and Meyer tires. The former is the product of the Prudential Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron, O., and the latter that of the Meyer Rubber Co. of Columbiana, O. Business conditions are reported as greatly improving throughout the South, especially in the district known as the cotton belt.

Tire Dealers Reduce Fees.

A reduction in the annual dues of the association was decided on at a meeting of the St. Louis Tire Dealers' Association held Thursday. It is planned to greatly increase the membership by this reduction with a view to stronger affiliation with the National Tire Dealers' Association, of which Joseph Roberts of St. Louis is a director. Roberts is also president of the St. Louis association.

BIXBY SITE HOTEL PROJECT LEADS IN REALTY INTEREST

Development of King's Highway and Lindell Boulevard Corner Said to Involve Approximately $5,000,000.

AMBASSADOR TYPE STRUCTURE PLANNED

Broad Scale Activities in Real Estate Attributed to Enactment of the Mortgage Tax Recording Law.

By Berry Moore.

Operations in real estate are developing on a larger scale for building purposes and investment, professional and otherwise. The expansive activity is regarded as a reflection of the salutary effect of the enactment of the mortgage tax recording law, which virtually exempts deeds of trust or mortgages from taxation, thus making a larger capital volume available for use in the real estate realm. Building projects are being widely revived, ranging from cottages to mansions, and from stores and apartments, to towering office structures, according to Chas. Kunz of Franciscus & Kunz.

The most important of these projects is that for a hotel for the block on the east side of King's highway, from Lindell boulevard to Maryland avenue, occupied by the home of W. K. Bixby. The site extends 440 feet on King's highway and 500 feet on Lindell boulevard, and on Maryland avenue, York avenue being its eastern boundary. According to report in real estate circles, a hotel of the Ambassador order is projected for the Lindell boulevard and King's highway corner. This is a type of hotel found in other large cities erected under the auspices of a Chicago and New York concern that specializes in financing large building operations. As contemplated the enterprise will entail an expenditure of about $5,000,000.

Option Outstanding.

As the story is told, the promoters have obtained an option on this quarter of the block, Chase Ulman, builder and owner of the Branscome apartments, on Pershing avenue, being mentioned as having plans for the upbuilding of the site. While Bixby admits that ambitious plans have been submitted for the improvement of the ground, he declared that, so far, nothing has been done in that connection. Bixby, it is understood, desires to dispose of this property, but will surrender it only for an improvement commensurate with its worth and importance as to location, it is said. The story was the foremost topic of discussion in real estate during the last week.

Without exception, the Bixby block is regarded as the most eligible site in the West End for a hotel on an imposing scale, facing as it does the main entrance to Forest Park, situated at the intersection of two of the principal highways of the city, and enhanced by a combination of individual advantages. The site originally embraced 440x700 feet, extending through to Euclid avenue, but several years ago 440x200 feet on the east were acquired by F. A. Banister as a site for the Argyle apartments, comprising a group of seven handsome buildings. This subdivision of the block is known as Argyle place. York avenue was constructed from Lindell boulevard to Maryland avenue, west of Argyle place, thus preserving the exclusiveness of the Bixby home.

Valuation Contrast.

The King's highway frontage of 440 feet is valued at more than $1,000,000, according to real estate authorities, exclusive of the York avenue frontage of 440 feet by a depth of 200 feet on Lindell boulevard and on Maryland avenue. These figures, however, are relatively lower than those mentioned as being quoted for other King's highway sites in the vicinity of Forest Park, notably the big vacant lot at the southeast corner of Lindell boulevard and King's highway, for which is asked, it is said, $2500 a foot. This plot, which is owned by a client of the J. E. Kaime Real Estate Co., now serves as a lawn for Vrooman's St. Regis apartments, occupying the adjoining ground on the east, and for the Buckingham Hotel to the south.

A hotel of similar magnitude to that projected for the Bixby site was promoted a year or more ago by Chase Ulman for the northeast corner of Maryland avenue and King's highway, but was dropped because of the prohibitive cost of construction. As a builder of apartments on a large scale Ulman has met with notable success.

REALTY INVESTORS SHOW PREFERENCE FOR APARTMENTS

Speculators Also Busy in Absorbing Such Properties, Sales of Which Are Said to Set New Record.

15 TO 25 PER CENT RENTAL RETURN

Flats and High-Class Residences Also Said by Agents to Have Large Place in Spring Realty Activities.

Absorption of apartment buildings for investment are the dominant force in the spring real estate movement in St. Louis. There are also many properties of this type being bought as a speculation. As a matter of fact, the number of such buildings being acquired by both investors and speculators is eclipsing all previous records.

At prevailing price levels properties of the type named offer an unusual profit, the rentals in many cases yielding from 15 to 25 per cent, according to Edward L. Bakewell, who makes a specialty of apartments. Purchase prices of these buildings are exceptionally low, in view of the high rental returns, he declares.

"For instance," Bakewell said, "I am offering for $34,000 an apartment building in Washington Heights, the annual rentals of which aggregate more than $6000, while there is still latitude for increasing the rentals so that they will aggregate $8000 per annum, taking rentals in many other instances as precedents."

Bakewell ventured the prediction that the purchaser of the property in question at the price mentioned will be able to sell it in the near future for a profit of $6000. Buildings of this character have a speculative feature which is a factor in the demand for them, he says.

Present prices of apartment buildings, as well as of flats, for which there is also an unprecedented demand, are not only assured for a long time, but are destined to be higher in view of the continued pause in construction, due to the excessive cost in building material and labor, J. M. Levi of J. M. Levi & Co., contends.

The demand for high-class residences is only secondary to that of apartments, the number of such buildings being acquired being extraordinary. The market of a year ago embraced principally medium-priced houses, while there was slight demand for the more expensive ones.

There is also a healthy market for lots eligible for high class homes, especially sites in the West End, dealers state. During the past week the Albert T. Terry Real Estate Co. disposed of three lots in Skinker Heights, while the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. sold one in the Catlin tract east of Skinker road, facing Forest Park, all being purchased as sites for homes. Many lots are also being bought in the northwestern and in the southern parts of the city for medium-priced houses. This refers especially to the Southampton addition, on King's highway, which is being marketed by the Mercantile Trust Co.

DITTMEIER SALES FOR WEEK SAID TO AGGREGATE $178,500

The Frank L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co. has effected sales during the last two weeks aggregating $178,500. They included an apartment building at 4147-55 Laclede avenue, containing 10 suites of four and five rooms each, on lot 100x213 feet, rents totaling $5200 per annum; 3214-16 Lawton avenue, single flat, lot 35x145 feet, to a client of the M. B. O'Reilly Realty Co.; block of vacant ground on west side of Mecklenburg avenue, south of Gravois avenue, to builders who contemplate improving the plot with bungalows; 1921 Papin street, building arranged for two families, lot 25x135 feet, to Wm. G. Goodenough; 2926 Madison street, single flat, lot 25x135 feet, to Anthony Brandt and wife; block in Fox place, Webster Groves, fronting on Fox and Farm avenue; 3026-28 Madison street, single flat, lot 30x125 feet; southwest corner of Burd and Terry avenue, 100x190 feet; 5000 acres in Wayne County, Mo., partly farm, balance in timber; 1919-21 Glasgow avenue, double flat, lot 40x135 feet.

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. reports the sale of the residence of Morris Schweig at 5174 Cabanne place to Dr. Warren R. Rainey. The house has nine rooms, reception hall and bath and there is a garage. Dr. Rainey was represented in the transaction by John A. McDowall.

NEW BUILDING FOR UNDERTAKERS AT DELMAR AND LAKE AVENUES

The Mullen Undertaking Co., of which Lawrence Mullen is general supervisor, has arranged with the Yeckel-Feydt-Earickson Realty Co. for the erection of a building for an undertaking chapel and parlor on the north side of Delmar boulevard, opposite Lake avenue.

The main building will have a front of 70 feet on Delmar boulevard and there will be a spacious lobby floored with white and gray flint tile. At the end of the lobby will eb a chapel and funeral parlor in Gothic architecture. The main facade will be faced with smooth stucco. The main entrance will be protected by an ornamental canopy leading to the street. The second floor will contain a living apartment.

Plans were drawn by Saum Bros., architects, and the general contractors will be B. J. Charleville and H. M. Edmunds.

SEVERAL SOUTH SIDE SALES BY FEDERER-ARENDES COMPANY

The Federer-Arendes Realty Co. reports the closing of several deals on the South Side, including:

For the Jehle estate, a single flat, at 3308 Halliday avenue, to Charles H. Boss.

Single flat on a 50-foot lot at 3151 Neosho street, to Ida and Emma Boehm.

Cottage at 3728 Gustine avenue, to Louise Elder. Bungalow at 3702 Gravois avenue, to Walter Evers and wife. Four-family flat at 3434-36 Ohio avenue, to Charles Hoyle. Factory property on Chouteau avenue, fronting 40 feet, between Second and Third streets. One hundred and fifty feet of ground on east side of Grand avenue, between Bates and Eiler streets.

MEETING CALLED OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF R. E. BOARDS

Fred E. Taylor has called a meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards of, which he is president, to be held in Hartford, Conn., April 27 and 28, and all executive committeemen are requested to be present, as it will be the last meeting before the convention.

The Boston Real Estate Board has invited all of the visiting delegates to Boston to spend April 29 as their guests, seeing the city and attending a luncheon and banquet that night. As a committeeman, James M. Franciscus, who is chairman of the President's Achievement Trophies Contest, will attend the meeting, representing the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

TWO LEASES AND SALE REPORTED BY MARTIN-BREITT COMPANY

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. reports having leased to the Mineral Colors Co. of Tulsa, Ok., the two-story building at the northeast corner of Eighteenth street and Cass avenue, as a plant for the manufacture and storage of paint color. The lease was made for Charles J. Wangler.

The company also sold the four-story building at 2304 South Broadway for William H. Thompson of Hannibal, Mo. Also leased to Hugh F. Brey part of the upper floors at 414 North Seventh street as a photo studio. The lease was made for Dr. A. F. Johnson.

POULTRY PLANT OPERATOR BUYS BIG SITE AT WEBSTER GROVES

The Webster Groves Trust Co. announces the sale of 18 acres owned by W. L. Vaughan, between Selma and Lilac, north of Glendale road, to C. F. Overfield of Overfield Egg Farm at Poplar Bluff. Overfield has sold the latter property and will improve the acreage with a home and a $10,000 poultry plant, where he will continue to specialize in whit. leghorns.

APARTMENTS AND RESIDENCE SOLD BY EPSTEIN FOR $53,500

J. I. Epstein reports having sold the apartment building at the northwest corner of Waterman and Rosedale avenues, embracing four six-room suites on lot 65x130 feet, for George Sokel for $35,000. The property's annual return in rentals is $5160.

He also reports having sold the 10-room residence at 6101 Kingsbury boulevard, lot 50x130 feet, for Lillian M. Dye, for about $18,500.

DRUG COMPANY LEASES STORE ON DE BALIVIERE AV. CORNER

The Judge & Dolph Drug Co. has acquired a 10-year lease of the large store room at the northeast corner of Kingsbury boulevard and De Baliviere avenue, with plans for a drug store on a large scale.

The lease was effected by the Rhodes Realty Co., as agent for the Winter Garden and Ice Co. The drug concern is expending $7500 on the interior of the store.

B. A. Ballou, former organizer of agencies for the Traffic Motor Truck Corp., in Missouri, has joined Albert Wenzlick's sales force.

CADY TAKES NEW POST AS SALES MANAGER

Will Become Manager of That Department With Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

The appointment of William R. Cady as sales manager of its real estate department was announced by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. yesterday. Cady is now connected with the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., and his official connection with the trust company will date from April 1. He is a native of St. Louis and has been active in real estate here for 22 years, 14 of which were with Weisels-Gerhart and eight with Cornet & Zeibig. His business career opened in the service of the Hydraulic Press Brick Co., whom he represented for eight years. He is single and resides at 377 North Taylor avenue.

Discussing his new connection, Cady said: "Friday, April 1, seems to be my lucky day. I joined Cornet & Zeibig on April 1. I changed over to the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. on Friday, April 1, and my duties as realty sales manager for the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. will start on the same day of the week and month.

"In all my 22 years of experience with St. Louis real estate, I cannot remember a time when the opportunities for big success in the field seemed greater than today. St. Louis is in many respects a new-born city, and the spirit of optimism and iniative which pervades all its business circles is not lacking among its real estate men. I do not expect a boom, because St. Louis never was and never will be a boom town, but I look for activity, particularly in transfers of vacant properties and erection of new buildings that will commence this spring and hold its own steadily for some time to come."

$50,000 PAID FOR EACH OF THREE APARTMENTS

Former Gov. Major Purchaser of One of Buildings, All in Same Lindell Boulevard Block.

Former Gov. Major has purchased an apartment building at 4319 Lindell boulevard, through the Dyas-Shelp Real Estate Co., for $50,000.

The Dyas-Shelp Co. also effected the sale of two other apartment buildings in the same block, one at 4315, to Mrs. Lottie Clymer, and the other, at 4317, the price paid in each instance being $50,000.

Each of the three buildings comprises four apartments, two of seven rooms and two of eight rooms. The annual rentals from the three buildings aggregate $28,500, or an average rental for each apartment of $132 a month.

The seller was Roy Holder, who recently expended $20,000 on the interiors of the buildings, which are of a high order of construction.

The Dyas-Shelp Co. reports having closed contracts during the week for the sale of three other apartment buildings, at prices approximating $195,000.

FRANCISCUS & KUNZ REPORT 10 SALES CLOSED IN WEEK

The Franciscus & Kunz Realty Co. report having closed ten sales the past week, including the southeast corner of Second and Locust streets, lot 61x93 feet, improved with a three-story building, for Mrs. Elizabeth Rush Porter of Washington, D. C., to Oscar E. Schaefer.

Wear Reports Sale of Two Farms.

Earnest Wear effected the sale of 2301-15 Lynch street, eight attached residences, to Caroline Faehnle; also 200-acre farm, near Catawissa, Mo., for $7000, and 10 acres on King's highway S. W., near Morganford road.

JOHN J. HORAN SELLS HIS PARKVIEW HOME

Residence at 6338 Waterman Avenue Bought by J. S. Laurie —Price Said to Be $26,000.

John J. Horan, a broker, has sold his Parkview home, 6338 Waterman avenue, to Joseph S. Laurie, general manager of Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney. The house is modern in every detail and the large garage contains servants' quarters.

Mr. and Mrs. Horan will travel for several months and Mr. and Mrs. Laurie will take possession immediately. The consideration was not announced, but is said to have been about $26,000. The Hewson Realty Co. represented both parties.

The same company sold the residence at 7108 Kingsbury boulevard, in University City, for the account of Walter J. Pattee of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway, to John A. Yung, president of the Yung Bakers' Supply Co. The consideration is said to have been $20,000. The Hewson Realty Co. represented both parties in this transaction.

SALES AGGREGATING $300,000 REPORTED BY DUBINSKY COMPANY

The Dubinsky Realty Co. reports having made sales during the last 10 days aggregating $300,000, as follows: 5250-58 Delmar boulevard, 16 apartments; 4867-69 Cote Brilliante avenue, double flat; 3741 Delmar boulevard, residence; 1460 South Grand avenue, residence; 4873-75 Cote Brilliante avenue, double flat; 1923 South Ninth street, dwelling; 1619 Missouri avenue, residence; 2922 Henrietta street, residence; 4430 Enright avenue, residence; 2635 Pine street, residence; 2335-43 Randolph street, residence; 2809 Howard street, church; 3028 Bell avenue, residence, and 1917 Papin street, residence.

Just Completing Two West Maryland Place Homes for Particular People

(Also Have Two Other Homes, Now Occupied, for Sale)

These are indeed climatic houses, only one room deep, and very wide; ideal arrangement for St. Louis' wonderful out-of-doors climate.

Very modern in design, beautiful architecture; window and door openings, roof lines worked out to beautiful proportions. Roomy, yet compact, with batteries of double French doors on three exposures of living room, with four French doors and four Whitney casement windows on the north and south exposures of dining room.

If you enter a friend's home in Pasadena, Cal., when his French doors and casement windows are flung wide open, you at once realize that the home was built to take the fullest advantage of the climate. Maryland Terrace homes are being built so that we can eliminate hot rooms, so that the air and sunlight reach the ceiling and the floor and circulate freely through the entire house. Such a home adds to a business man's efficiency, is a joy to the wife and children, is always commented on favorably by friends and people passing.

These houses are 50 feet wide, presenting a wonderful facade to the wide drives. The kitchen and maid's room form a T, preserving the privacy of the entire second floor for the family.

On the second floor are four ideal bedrooms and two baths. The bedrooms in each wing have three exposures, the south bedrooms have two exposures; they are roomy, unusual. We are also very proud of the two bathrooms, each having a large linen closet and all the little knick-knacks so convenient and handy.

The yards have been beautifully landscaped, so carefully has the planting been done that the shrubbery looks as if it already had five years' growth.

And yards! Think of it! 100 to 120 feet wide by a depth of 219 feet. Think of the possibilities of such a yard. The grape arbor, fruit and ornamental trees, the room for play, and beautiful roses and flowering shrubs. The pergola covered with Dorothy Perkins or Clematis and a bed of old-fashioned flowers, like in mother's yard. How the child's health improves when turned loose in such a yard. The surrounding houses, too, must also occupy wide, large yards.

In West Maryland Terrace there can never be any congestion. When you live here you forever solve the home question.

These homes are not expensive. If you pay $175.00 a month rent you are more than paying the carrying charges.

Some of St. Louis' most prominent people, bankers, manufacturers, merchants, professional men now live or are buying homesites and will soon be living in Maryland Terrace.

SPECIAL PRICES

We are still making Special Prices on Maryland Terrace lots.

During the past ten days $33,000.00 of lots alone have been sold for spot cash.

We make reasonable terms, however, for those whose money is now tied up.

If you are not ready to buy a home, then take advantage of the special prices and secure your homesite on which you can later build. You get advantage of both location and prices.

COME TO MARYLAND TERRACE TODAY

Drive through its wide streets, note how the houses set back 62 feet from the wide drives. They do not crowd the sidewalks. Take plenty of time and study the architecture of the different homes, no two alike. Talk to your friends who live here; ask them if they would again move into the congestion of the city and have their families live amidst its noise, dirt and smoke.

Drive to Pennsylvania avenue (western boundary of the campus). Maryland Terrace extends west on both Maryland and Westmoreland drives. The University car comes to our front door.

WEBSTER GROVES

You Can't Help Liking It

It is purely Dutch Colonial. It has the sunshine colors—white and cream stucco, with red roof, in setting of shade and fruit trees. There is an attractive pergola and garage, wren houses and a chicken house that the boy of the house says has a seating capacity of 35 hens.

The diamond light doors, the bookcases, the red fireplace, the ivory and gray of the color scheme, the rich, dull gloss of the floors, give to the living and dining rooms an air distinctly Colonial.

The owner's room is large and has three exposures and two roomlike closets. Both the other bedrooms open upon a large sleeping porch.

The bath sets down to the floor pedestal lavatory and shower.

There are all the accessories, such as shades and screens.

The price has just been reduced from $9000 to $7800 at 35 Sylvester av. This is a 9-room frame dwelling, hot-water heat, all improvements, lot 86x299, together with an orchard adjoining 61x150. We are open for an offer and urge an inspection.

Lockwood and Sylvester, attractive story-and-a-half bungalow of 8 rooms, tile and stucco, is just being completed; lot 65x160. Reasonable terms. Price $9750.

An especially well-built frame bungalow, with 5 large rooms and bath on the first floor, 2 rooms and sleeping porch on the second floor, hot-water heat, hardwood floors and finish in both living room and dining room; beautiful lot, 100x216, with considerable fruit, rare shrubs, large shade trees, garden, garage and chicken house. Price $10,000. This property is 524 Sappington rd.

No. 12 Oak Terrace is a brick and stucco bungalow of 8 rooms and sleeping porch. There are 2 bedrooms and bath on first floor and 3 and sleeping porch on second floor; lot 70x180. Price $10,500. All improvements are made.

There are few houses available (close-in) in Webster, as these properties move quickly. At 219 W. Cedar av. is a semi-bungalow with 7 rooms, hardwood floors, steam heat, sleeping porch, lot 83x157, all improvements made. This property is priced at $11,750 and can be inspected at any reasonable hour.

An inspection must be arranged by anyone interested in 4 Oak ter., which is the corner of Oak ter. and Elm av. This is one of the prettiest homes in Webster, containing 7 rooms, hot-water heat, hardwood floors, garage and a beautiful lot. This property is priced at $13,000, and will make an ideal home for anyone interested in a house of this size.

A recently remodeled home of 9 rooms is located at 164 S. Maple avenue. The property is in splendid condition; white enamel finish, double sleeping porch, screened and glazed, garage; beautiful lot, 125x190. Price $15,000.

An inspection must be arranged if you are interested in 404 Park road, Webster Park; a beautiful little home of 8 rooms, sleeping porch, hot-water heat, hardwood floors; a well-built, attractive home, in a splendid location, offered at $16,000.

A Webster Park home of 9 rooms, situated on an acre and half of ground, is offered for the consideration of the man with a family. There are hardwood floors, hot-water heat, copper screens in metal frames, Chamberlain metal weather-stripped throughout, garage for two cars; the commanding location and privacy afforded by the size of the lot add to the attractiveness of this location, which is 35 Glen rd., Webster Park.

Beautiful 10-room bungalow; two baths; all conveniences; splendid condition; 313 Big Bend rd. Inspection must be by appointment, which we will be glad to arrange.

The chicken fancier should be interested in the 7½ acres and 5-room cottage at Old Orchard and Landscape av. We will be glad to furnish additional information. Price $17,000.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

A READER.—See answer to Kekeris.

MRS. B. J.—The Soldier's Bonus Bill has not yet been made a law in Missouri.

M. J. M.—Consult the moving picture magazines for the information you wish.

ARGUMENT.—Senator Harding voted for the Eighteenth Amendment and for the Volstead Act.

UNCERTAIN.—Apply to one of your Masonic friends to submit your name as a candidate for membership in the lodge.

KEKERIS.—The population of New York City, 1920 census, is 5,620,048; the population of London in the last census is given as 4,522,964, while the population of Greater London in the present census is estimated at 7,258,623.

W. A. G.—A dime of the year 1853 with arrows is worth from 10c to 15c while a dime from 1829 is worth from 10c to 20c. A bronze small cent of 1863 is worth from 25c to 50c, while a copper-nickel cent of the same year is only worth from 1c to 2c. The prices paid for rare coins are chiefly regulated by their state of preservation, the number of pieces issued of a certain date, and the demand for the same. But neither the metal out of which the coin is made, nor the age has anything to do with the prices paid. "Proof" coins are especially struck from polished blanks and dies and finished by hand, which gives them a mirror-like, smooth, reflective surface which is the most perfect condition known. The mint makes a small charge for the proof coins, and they can only be had during the year of the issue.

ANXIOUS.—Water glass is the popular name for potassium silicate, or sodium silicate, the commercial article often being a mixture of the two. The commercial water glass is used for preserving eggs, as it is much cheaper than the chemically pure article. Water glass is commonly sold in two forms, a syrup thick liquid and a powder. According to results obtained, a solution of the desired strength for preserving eggs may be made by dissolving 1 part of the syrup-thick liquid in 10 parts of water. If the water glass powder is used, less is required for a given quantity. Only pure water should be used in making the solution, and it is best to boil it and cool it before mixing with the water glass. The solution should be carefully poured over the eggs packed in a suitable vessel, which must be clean and sweet, and if wooden kegs, or barrels, are used, they should be thoroughly scalded before packing the eggs in them. The packed eggs should be stored in a cool place. Do not wash the eggs before packing, as this removes the natural mucilaginous coating on the outside of the shell. One gallon of the solution is sufficient for 50 dozen eggs if they are properly packed. Be sure the eggs are absolutely fresh before packing.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(Prepared by a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

LONE WIDOW.—The company can sue you on the contract for the magazines.

BUM LAWS.—You cannot compel your employer to pay you for the time spent in court.

WILL.—You have no right to trespass on the neighbor's land in order to paint your house.

B. S.—A person can remarry immediately after obtaining a divorce in Missouri, but it is better to wait until the end of that term of court.

W. A. B.—There is no such book published covering the real estate laws of Missouri, or those for the city of St. Louis alone. See Silver's on Missouri Land Titles, at any book store.

WIDOW.—Ask any Protestant minister for the name of some orphan home and any other information concerning the placing of the children.

POST-DISPATCH READER.—If you wish to paint the fence on which your neighbor's vines are growing, and you are not on speaking terms with him, we advise you to have someone else act as your agent and notify the neighbor.

VICTIM OF THE RICH.—Your rights are determined by the contract and mortgage that was made. If the transaction was a conditional sale, they cannot take the furniture without refunding three-quarters of the purchase price less the rental for the same.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

A. D.—There is a college of midwifery in St. Louis. Communicate with Mrs. Anna J. Byrnes, 3824 North Eleventh street, on the subject.

BELIEVER.—Very often it is not possible to increase the weight of one naturally thin, but it is always well to try. Cod liver oil is about the best agent in small doses, a teaspoonful three times a day. The oil should be of the best quality and kept in a cool place, carefully wiping the neck of the bottle and the stopper at each using, to prevent the oil becoming rancid.

CEADOR.—The tablet mentioned is a patent medicine supposed to stimulate the secretion of the kidneys. It probably has that quality, although we do not know the ingredients. We would not, however, advise the use of that, or any other patent medicine, where there is a swelling of the feet and ankles. Such a condition is strongly suggestive of some formidable organic trouble. See a physician, be examined, and get intelligent advice.

MRS. W. L. M.—Most uninformed persons seem to consider variations from normal in blood pressure as a disease of itself instead of a diagnostic method in aid of diagnosis, and demand a specific remedy. The procedure, properly estimated, is of importance and value not only in diagnosis but also in prognosis and treatment. One blood pressure reading means little, as it often is dependent on many factors, many times of themselves unimportant. This often misleads. Among the laymen of today blood pressure may be said to be a fad, and he wants to know what his reads. If it happens to be above normal he begins to worry, which worry helps to make it higher. Fear, worry, self-consciousness, intense mental application all tend to raise blood pressure. Exercise has a similar effect, so has sudden or unusual prolonged labor, so that the high single reading may only mean a strenuous day in making garden. It is only when, on repeated taking, the pressure registers above or below normal that it should be viewed with suspicion. It then serves as a warning to prevent trouble to come, threatened but not yet here, or may confirm a suspicion, when considered with other symptoms, that serious trouble exists, or, by its variation, indicates response to treatment. Briefly then, blood pressure persistently abnormal calls for a careful search for conditions which will account for it and treatment of such, if found.

THE BEREAVED FAMILY (c)

We herewith tender our sincere thanks and appreciation to relatives, friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy as well as the beautiful floral offerings presented to us during the sad hour of bereavement caused by the death of our dear mother, Mary Strele. We also wish to thank the Rev. Father Winkler and Rev. Father Weiber for their kind and consolatory words, and Miss Helen Welmering, for her beautiful vocal service, the pallbearers, for their assistance, and Mat Herman Undertaking Co. for their courtesy and excellent service rendered.
GEO. STRELE AND FAMILY.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our relatives, friendes and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings, during the hour of our sadness in the loss of our dear daughter and sister Helen. We also wish to thank the Rev. Frank L. James and ladies of the Maplewood Christian Church, the pallbearers and the little girls who sang, for their kind service, and the undertaker, Arthur J. Donnelly, for his prompt attention and efficient services.
MR. AND MRS. CHARLES J. STEWART AND FAMILY. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Minnie Heitert, who died March 28, 1919. From her loving SISTER EDNA.

In loving remembrance of our darling child, Loretta Judge, who departed this life one year ago March 26, 1920. Sadly missed by JUDGE FAMILY.

In memory of our dear husband and father, John J. Lee, who departed this life, March 26, 13 years ago. Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN

To the memory of Mrs. Louisa Murdack, who passed away, March 26, 1920. Sadly missed by all who loved her.
SIDNEY, EDWARD, MABEL.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Catherine Thorwegen, who departed this life one year, March 30, 1920.
Sadly missed by daughters, sons, grandchildren and great-grandchildren and friends.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Catherine Holdener, who departed this life one year ago today. Sadly missed by her DAUGHTER, MRS. CLARA MEYER (c)

Sweetest memory of our darling father and husband, Eddie Le Roy, who departed this world suddenly March 29, 1916. Sadly missed by wife and daughter.
EDNA AND NORMA LE ROY. (c)

In loving memory of my beloved daughter and our dear sister, Frances Senf, who departed this life, three years ago, March 23, 1918. Sadly missed by MOTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

In memory of my beloved wife, Mrs. Lillie Haeusler, who died March 29, 1920:
You are gone but not forgotten,
Nor shall you ever be;
As long as life and memory last
I shall remember thee.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND.

In memory of Mary Boundy, who died March 27, 1920:
Sleep peacefully, dear Mary, in your lonely grave.
The ones who love you dearly think of you each day.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTER AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Henry C. Gerwiner, who died suddenly March 22, 1914.
You shall never be forgotten by the ones who love you dearly.
Sadly missed by PARENTS AND LITTLE SISTER.

In loving memory of John Robert Fehr, who departed this life March 28, 1920:
Today recalls sad memories of our loved one, gone to rest.
Those who think of him today are the ones who loved him best.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our darling, Colette W. Stoppelkamp, who departed this life one year ago, March 25, 1920:
There was an angel band in heaven
That was not quite complete,
So God then took our darling, Colette,
To fill the vacant place.
Sadly missed by father, mother, sisters and all who loved her. (c)

In memory of Leroy L. Kruckemeyer, who departed this life, March 30, 1920:
Surrounded by friends, we are lonesome;
In the midst of pleasure, we are blue.
A smile upon our face, still a heartache—
Aching and longing for you.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

In loving memory of our dearly beloved son and brother, Otto A. Obmann, who departed this life March 29, 1918:
Today recalls sad memories
Of our loved one, gone to rest,
And those who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
Sadly missed by,
MOTHER AND BROTHERS.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and father, Bruno Albrecht:
Often our thoughts do wander
To that grave so far away,
Where we laid our dear father
Five years ago today.
Sad our hearts, but sweet the memories
As we think of you each day.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Gottlieb Meyer, who departed this life March 26, 1917:
Days of sadness still come o'er us;
Tears in silence often flow;
Fond memory keeps you ever near us,
Though you died four years ago.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND DAUGHTER, AMANDA.

In loving memory of our darling mother, Celia Schmitt, who died March 27, 1920, one year ago today:
It's a wonderful thing, a mother! Other folks can love you, but only your mother understands. She works for you, looks after you, loves you, forgives you anything you do, understands you, and then, the only thing bad she ever does to you is to die and leave you.
Sadly missed by
HER CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving remembrance of Henry C. Tinnemeyer, who died April 1, 1920.
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon his love had given
And though the body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in heaven.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In remembrance of my dear husband and father, Edward P. Perrot, who died 15 years ago, March 25, 1906.
Silently the shades of evening gather round our lonely door,
Silently they bring before us the dear face we see no more;
So often do we go to his grave, lingering there and trying to be brave,
To our hearts there comes a longing if he only could come home,
But some day we shall meet the face we loved so dear.
From loving WIFE, SON AND DAUGHTER.

In loving memory of Nicholaus Miller, who departed this life two years ago, March 31, 1919.
Two years ago since you left us and we miss you more and more.
Our hearts are filled with sadness, for the smile we see no more;
You are gone but not forgotten, nor shall you ever be,
As long as life and memory last we shall always remember thee.
Sadly missed by his dear mother, sisters, brother and a dear friend.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Mr. F. G. Kessling, who departed this life March 23, 1920:
When evening shadows are fading in the West
We think of our loved one gone to rest,
Our thoughts go beyond the grave,
But, oh! 'tis hard to be brave;
In a bright and better land,
'Tis there sometimes we'll understand.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, SISTER AND BROTHER.

In memory of Mrs. Carrie Priesmeyer, who departed this life March 28, 1920:
We saw you suffer and heard you sigh;
Could do nothing but sit and cry.
We saw you sinking hour by hour,
Yet we did all within our power.
But now you calmly sleep the past,
While our sorrow for you will last.
Sadly missed by sons, sisters, daughter-in-law and grandchildren.
High mass at St. Nicholaus' Church, at 8 o'clock, March 28, 1921.

In memory of beloved Fred W. Karches, who departed the 23d day of March, 1920.
In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly,
In his silent lonely grave.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear father,
It is sweet to breathe your name.
In life we loved you dearly;
In death we do the same.
Just one year ago you left us;
How we miss you, father, dear.
And remember of your kindnesses,
As we drop a silent tear.
Never from our memory forgotten;
Loving hearts will always linger
Round the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM. (c)

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear husband, James C. Anderson, who died March 27, 1920:
In a lonely grave, he's sleeping,
As the shadows onward fall,
And our lonely hearts are weeping;
No more his presence can we call.
Do not ask us if we miss him;
Oh! there's such a vacant place.
Oft we think we hear his footsteps,
Or see his smiling face.
Sadly missed by his loving
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving remembrance of Georgia Jellison, who died March 27, 1920:
The month of March is here,
The saddest of the year;
One year ago she passed away,
We grieved when she departed.
Time was too short to say farewell
To those she knew and loved so well.
We miss her coming footsteps,
We miss her everywhere,
Home is not what it used to be,
Since Georgia is not there.
Sadly missed by,
PARENTS, BROTHER AND SISTERS.

In loving memory of our darling daughter, Eileen Westernberger, who departed this life one year ago, March 27, 1920.
In the graveyard softly sleeping where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we love so dearly, in her silent, lonely grave.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear Eileen; it is sweet to breathe your name.
In life we loved you dearly, in death we do the same.
Just one year ago you left us; how we miss you, Eileen, dear,
And remember all your kindness as we drop a silent tear.
Never from our memory forgotten, loving hearts will always linger
Round the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by broken-hearted mother, father, sisters, grandparents, aunts, uncles, cousins and all who loved her.

THE "MONKEY-WRENCH" THROWER—You have seen this "bird;" he stops the "wheels of progress," telling you it "can't be done;" that "high prices are still here." The "crash in high prices" are here. Your dollar now buys more than 100 cents here. We can save you 40 to 60 per cent here. $15, $18, $20 and $25 will buy you a spring suit here. "We are with you" for 10 years; have led the way fighting for low prices, assisting thousands to "help keep up that prosperous appearance," which "means everything today." We have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. "We're out of the high-rent district." "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you money. All we ask you is to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." "Buy more, pay less." Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. We again announce our "Trade-In Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "Abrams," "The Place to Buy Clothes," 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau av. (c)

TO MOTOR CAR BUYERS

Do not buy any so called 1921 models of Buick cars until you are sure of the factory serial number. This should be on a plate in plain sight on the frame.

If, for any reason, this number is not available, insist on having the motor number and if you are in doubt at all, telephone us for verification as we have complete records of every Buick Car.

If the number is covered up, blurred or marred in any way, you will be safer in not purchasing.

AUTOMOBILES—MISCELLANEOUS

Easter Lilies

Are going to predominate today; they serve to awaken our senses to the fact that Eastertide is once more with us. Also will the fair sex take advantage of this most august event to exhibit their new frocks and straw bonnets as advance agents to warn us that Spring is really here. But most important of all, cast your eye up and down the crowded boulevards and highways and our beautiful parks and behold the myriads and hosts of cars gliding along. Doesn't it make you feel sick to see a nice shining car go whizzing by you, while yours is just barely navigating on one lung and looks like it came over in the Ark?

Come up to our used car department and let us show you our assortment of reconditioned cars, and let's talk things over.

Here's your chance, Mr. Buyer, to get some real bargains. We are offering the biggest assortment of high-grade used cars ever placed on sale in the city of St. Louis. Don't miss this opportunity; get yours while getting is good.

Look these over. Select the car you like, pay a small deposit. We will give you free storage until wanted.

Every car guaranteed to be as represented. Our responsibility is your guarantee.

RENEWED CAR DEPARTMENT

Packard Motor Car Co. of Missouri

Bomont 900. 2201 LOCUST ST. Central 2300.

WE are in position to make you an exceptional allowance on your car toward a Rebuilt Cadillac, provided you can let us have it now in time for the April rush.

Since January 1st, this year, we have sold nearly 200 used and new cars, leaving us now with the Spring demand at hand, and a stock of practically no miscellaneous used cars for our large clientele of customers.

Just stop at our salesrooms, 3910 Olive Street, ask for Mr. Van Buskirk, tell him the make, model, condition of your car, and he will give you the answer.

Cronin finished the game before he learned of his mother's illness. Mrs. Cronin is survived by her husband, John Cronin, and three sons and three daughters. She was a member of the Columbian Circle.

COL. ELIAS B. BALDWIN DIES

Kansas Pioneer Succeeded Phil Sheridan in War Post in Missouri.

By the Associated Press.

OSWEGO, Kan., March 26.—Col. Elias B. Baldwin, Kansas pioneer and Civil War veteran died here early today at the age of 86.

He was born in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and when a young man was principal of a school in Auburn, N. Y., where he formed a lasting friendship with William Seward, who afterwards became Secretary of State.

Baldwin helped to organize and was made a Captain with the Thirty-sixth Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and later succeeded Capt. Phil H. Sheridan as Quartermaster at Springfield, Mo. Later he was advanced to be Lieutenant-Colonel of the Eighth Missouri Cavalry, and was chief of staff under Gen. Frank Herron.

Col. Baldwin was the father of Evelyn B. Baldwin of Washington, Arctic explorer, who accompanied Peary on his Greenland expedition, and was second in command of Walter Wellman's expedition to Franz Josef Land, built posts and depots in the Arctic zone, and later headed his own expedition into the Polar regions.

You Can Grow Better Chicks if you start them right. They need—at first and for at least three weeks—a true "baby food." One that contains in correct amounts and proper condition all needed food elements. One that is practically free from indigestible fiber, that is easily digestible.

Pratts Buttermilk Baby Chick Food

exactly meets these requirements. It raises every good chick—raises them right. Not a cereal mill by-product, but made of choicest materials carefully prepared and blended.

The first brood you feed it to will show you why Pratts Buttermilk Baby Chick Food—the original "baby food for baby chicks"—is the best on earth.

PATRONS LEAVE SCHOOL BOARD CONTEST OPEN

Alliance at Lively Meeting Declines to Indorse Any of the Candidates.

The Board of Control of the Public School Patrons' Alliance, at a special meeting last night at Central Public Library, decided not to indorse candidates for the Board of Education, five members of which are to be elected at the forthcoming election, April 5. The constitution of the Alliance was amended recently in order to permit such indorsement if the organization so desired.

The meeting was a lively one, and it was apparent that among the delegates and alternates present from 29 schools there were ardent supporters of more than one of the 16 candidates who have been nominated for places on the Board of Education. The meeting closed, however, without the name of any candidate having been mentioned.

An attempt was made to adopt a motion to indorse only one candidate. Supporters of this motion hoped to put the Alliance on record in favor of Dr. W. D. Aufderheide, the general president of the Alliance, who was placed in nomination by members of the Patrons' Association of Grant School. This motion was defeated, 16 to 13.

A general motion to indorse candidates was then put to vote. The roll call gave 14 for and 14 against it. Dr. Aufderheide, the presiding officer, voted "No" and the motion was lost. In the discussion which preceded the voting many of the delegates said they believed it was too late for the Alliance to accomplish anything by making indorsements for this election.

CHICAGO BUILDING "GRAFT MONEY SPLIT FOUR WAYS"

Investigating Commission Chairman Says "Operations of Fearful Agency Is Unfolding."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 26.—The legislative joint commission which is here to investigate alleged building price combinations among material men and alleged graft in the building trades unions, announced tonight it had obtained the names of members of an "educational committee" composed of four men who, according to the commission's informant, "split the graft money four ways, between three business agents and one material man."

Senator John Dailey, who is chairman of the commission, said today that "more rapidly than we had expected, the secret operations of a fearful agency of graft is unfolding before us." The Senator said this alone was responsible for the building stagnation in Chicago.

A. E. Jossurum, president of the Chicago Tenants' League, which has started a fight in the Legislature to curb excessive rent prices, submitted to the commission a letter, signed by a former Chicago contractor, whose name is withheld, who charges that the Chicago Real Estate Board in 1909 drove him out of business "because I refused to sell my bungalows and cottages at a figure, higher than my own, suggested by the Real Estate Board." He wrote that the cost of those dwellings was from $1800 to $2000 and that he placed the sale prices respectively at $3800 and $4800.

Held in Barton Murder Case.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 26.—Fred Roberts, charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of Florence Barton, local society girl, was ordered held without bond for trial in criminal court by Justice M. H. Joyce late this afternoon. Roberts is accused by the State of driving the car on the night of the murder on which bandits held up Miss Barton and Howard Winter, her fiance, killing the girl and wounding her companion.

SURVEY OF ROADS AWAITS APPROVAL OF THE COUNTIES

State Highway Engineer Designates Missouri Thoroughfares That Will Receive $1200 Per Mile.

TO HEAR COMPLAINTS AT MEETING MAY 10

Basis Is Laid for a Connected System of Routes Linking the County Seats With Other Points.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 26.—The 6200 miles of State roads to receive $1200 a mile, appropriated under the McCullough-Morgan amendments to the Hawes road law, were designated in a complete survey of the State, made public today by A. W. Graham, State Highway Engineer.

The State Highway Board has tentatively approved the Graham survey, but it will still be subject to slight changes until May 10, when the highway department will hold a meeting in Jefferson City for the purpose of hearing complaints of the various counties.

After that meeting the contracts for the construction of the 6200 miles of roads will be let and the work rushed to completion. Graham said today that the engineer system would be well under way by the end of this year.

Under the law, the State Highway Board is compelle dto submit blue prints of the survey, with pamphlets, explaining the project in minute detail, to each county highway engineer and all county clerks, and these were mailed out today. With these went a warning that all remonstrances must reach the board before April 26 to receive a hearing at the meeting on May 10.

Survey Is Comprehensive.

The survey made by Graham shows not only the 6200 miles that are to receive the $1200 State aid, but also nearly 2000 miles of road designated under the original Hawes road law of 1917, under which local funds are to be matched with an equal amount of State and Federal aid money. The $1200 a mile roads are shown on the survey map by heavy solid lines and the Hawes roads which are eligible to receive State and Federal money, to an amount equal to that voted by the respective counties, are indicated by double lines. Heavy shaded lines are used to designate the boundaries of the several State highway districts.

The map provides each of the 114 counties with two roads, at least one of which touches the county seat. It also lays the basis of a connected system of State highways linking the county seats, the centers of population and industry. Because of the geographical obstructions the roads do not in every instance cross the counties near the center, but when possible both intersect as near as possible to the county seat, and are therefore known as the inter-county seat highway system.

In general, the roads cross the counties from east to west and north to south, but deviations from this rule are necessitated in some instances by the topographical conditions. Approximately 500 miles of roads now in use in various parts of the State have been linked with the general road system in Graham's survey and these roads are recommended for construction with local, state and Federal funds, when available.

Does Not Prescribe Routes.

It is expected that a part of this survey, at least, will be offered as a basis for the system of roads to be constructed under the $60,000,000 road bond issue, when the special session of the Legislature convenes the latter part of next month. Graham made it plain, however, that the Highway Board had no desire to offer his map as a suggestion to the Legislature in fixing the routes to be fund voted at the general election last November, but said it might be done.

Certain members of the Legislature, however, have inspected the Graham map with a view to using a portion of these roads in the hard surfaced system which will be designated by the Legislature in special session. Those who favor the adoption of a part of the Graham highway system say the $1200 a mile allotted by the State under the McCullough-Morgan act would be sufficient to cover the preliminary work, and that the amount prorated from the $60,000,000 fund would be ample to finish them with hard surfaces.

Out of the appropriation of $1200 a mile provided by the McCullough-Morgan law, $100 a mile is set aside to cover the cost of the survey, leaving $1100 to be actually expended in the construction of the roads or a total of $6,820,000 for the entire system of 6200 miles.

Strikers Quit Wage Hearing.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 26.—Striking employes of the Atlanta, Bormingham and Atlanta Railroad withdrew from the wage hearing in Federal Court here today after Judge Sibley had ruled that the receiver of the railroad should not discharge 900 men employed to replace union men on strike.

POLICE SEIZE 40-GALLON STILL AND DESTROY MASH

Distilling Equipment Found in Rear of Minnesota Avenue Garage.

Eight barrels of corn mash were destroyed and a 40-gallon still was seized by policemen from the Wyoming street station in a raid at 11:30 a. m. yesterday on a garage in the rear of 2321 Minnesota avenue. Policemen on the beat had detected the odor of fermenting mash and had been watching the place since 8 o'clock Friday night.

When Bernard H. Heger, 27 years old, of 4301 Minnesota avenue, a machinist, entered the garage at the time of the raid and asked the police what they were doing there, the police arrested him. He told them he knew nothing of the still, and had entered the place out of curiosity.

Later, Anthony Cordes, 29, of 4102 Michigan avenue, a pipefitter, surrendered at the Wyoming Street Station and informed the police that he had rented the garage from Mrs. Elizabeth Funger of 2517 Minnesota avenue to use as an automobile repair shop. He denied knowing anything about the presence of the still or mash. He and Heger were released on bond.

Road Deal Confirmation Held Over.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, March 26.—Formal confirmation of the sale of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad to the Western Pacific Railroad Co. for $5,000,000 to satisfy a judgment of the Equitable Trust Co. of New York was put over until 10 a. m. Monday.

NONPARTISANS DENY APPOINTMENT RUMORS

School Board Campaign Committee Takes Exception to Statements.

The Nonpartisan School Board Campaign Committee, which is supporting a School Board ticket composed of Mrs. Catherine I. Bush, Mrs. Rachel S. Michael, Christopher W. Johnson, Henry A. Rosskopf and W. Palmer Clarkson, yesterday took official cognizance of a whispering campaign against these candidates to the effect that they are pledged to elect a woman Superintendent of Instruction or to recall Dr. John W. Withers, former superintendent, who resigned. It was said in an official statement that the candidates were not pledged to support any particular candidate for Superintendent of Instruction, and it was not likely that Dr. Withers could be induced to give up his present office as dean of the University of the City of New York should an attempt be made to recall him.

The rumor has been persistently circulated in the last month and has served as a morsel of gossip in some groups of women voters. It was given impetus and some credence by the visit of Dr. Withers last Monday to his family in this city, while on his way to Minnesota, and it was said he had come to confer with the Nonpartisan Committee and had made a contribution of $2000 to the committee's campaign fund.

As a matter of fact, according to the statement of the committee yesterday, Dr. Withers did not confer with the committee at any time, nor did he make any contribution.

The committee denounced the rumors as mere gossip and probably designed to distract attention from other issues of the campaign.

A speakers' bureau organized Friday will assign speakers this week to meetings throughout the city, and speakers will be supplied by request made at the headquarters, 701 Washington avenue. "Keep politics out of the Public Schools," is the paramount issue of the campaign, it was announced, and this is being used as a slogan on placards and signs for automobiles which may be had at the headquarters.

MOTHER OF FORMER SENATOR SARTORIUS DIES AT AGE OF 75

Mrs. Mary Sartorius, 75 years old, died at the residence of her son, former State Senator John Sartorius, 2026 South Ninth street, yesterday afternoon. Death was due to the infirmities of old age.

She was born in Bavaria and came to this country in 1855 with her parents, who settled in Belleville. She was married to Martin Sartorius in 1860. She is survived by several brothers and sisters. E. J. Sartorius, business manager of the Amerika, is a grandson.

The funeral will take place Tuesday morning from the residence and interment will be in the SS. Peter and Paul Cemetery.

Today You May Realize Your Dream of a Home

NO THOUGHT is graven deeper in the heart of man than that of home. It is the ultimate object for which he toils. No matter how devious is the daily trail, when the sun sinks low in the western sky his thoughts turn homeward.

Although shelter is found in modern apartments and flats, discontent stalks man until he lays his head in his own home. What renter do you know who does not hope some day to realize his dream of a home? Many there are who have fixed a time for their final exodus from flats and apartments. Their opportunity is dependent upon prices.

Prohibitive costs of materials and labor have forced them to remain unwillingly in rented houses, buoyed up alone by visions of a home of their very own. A place where the children may have joyous freedom, building memories to be cherished through life; a place where one may do as he pleases and keep with him always the charms and associations of fleeting time, growing old happily with his family about him.

How many know that today their dreams of a home may be realized economically, that the longed-for time is now? The home of wood may be built today at a cost approximating closely pre-war figures. Lumber prices have dropped 50 per cent from the peak prices of wartime and are now normal.

Labor cost is conserved in constructing homes of wood through the requirement of less time for building. What the renter continues to pay waiting for still better conditions will more than exceed the indefinite sums he hopes to save.

Somehow, the average dream of a home is set amid trees and open fields, the house of wooden construction. Just such dreams have been visualized all about you. Homes of wood—bungalows, cottages and mansions, dot the vicinity of St. Louis. Many are to be found within the outlying western, southern and northern districts of the city. These homes of wood were not all built because of economical reasons, but rather through choice, through the desire for beauty combined with durability, which wood alone can give.

The artistic desires of the home builder are more easily and economically realized in the home of wood. Wood readily expresses comfort, warmth and the true spirit of the home.

Our forefathers built of wood and their homes remain with us well preserved to this day.

Every mother wants her children to be rugged and sturdy. Give the youngsters plenty of Karo—spread on bread.

Here are facts that interest the mother and father of every child in America

Do your children get sufficient energy food—so necessary for growing youngsters?

FOOD EXPERTS have been finding out many new things about how we are nourished. One of the most important is about Dextrose, the great energy food—the sugar that is absorbed right into the blood, to build up your strength and energy.

You could not live long without Dextrose. Most of the food you eat—such as bread, starchy vegetables, and all forms of sugar—has to be changed into Dextrose before your system can use it as energy food.

This interests millions of women who have Karo on their table almost every meal—in some form. Karo contains a very large percentage of Dextrose.

Karo—A Predigested Food

So Karo may almost be said to be a predigested food. These are scientific facts, supported by the very highest medical authorities. This undoubtedly explains the wonderful popularity of Karo as a national syrup—used by everybody. Send for the free booklet mentioned below and read all the facts.

Every mother wants her boys and girls to be rugged and sturdy. Give the youngsters plenty of Karo—on cakes and spread on bread.

Karo is a great energy food—pure, wholesome, and economical. It can be used so many ways—for cooking, baking, candy making. Or as a spread on bread, pancakes or biscuits. Many use it instead of preserves; or to stew prunes and dried fruit with it.

BLUE Karo
The standard table syrup. Also for cooking, baking and candy-making. Light brown color, delicious flavor—a heavy-bodied syrup.

RED Karo
The Ideal Syrup for every use—for cooking, baking, candy-making and preserving. Because of its honey-like appearance many prefer it as a spread for cakes, biscuits, breads.

GREEN Karo
Flavored with highest grade real maple sugar. Very moderate in price—absolutely pure. The makers of Karo are the world's largest users of the highest grade maple sugar—over a thousand tons used annually.

Which attracts men most—

Blond beauty or the charms of dusky hair and skin?

"BRUNETTE" one man will insist, and then belie his statement by displaying an intense interest in the fairest blonde. "Blonde" another will claim unwaveringly as his preference, and then promptly reverse it by succumbing to the graces of a dark-eyed olive-skinned brunette.

The truth of the matter is that men are attracted by distinct types—by young women who stand out definitely in their general coloring, whether fair or dark. The Parisian woman has long since realized this—and has gained world-wide renown for her distinctive charm because she concentrates her energies on emphasizing her own individual type of coloring.

Intensify your type of beauty

The coloring of your hair, eyes and skin is so subtly blended by nature that to disturb the color scheme by the slightest shade, detracts from the beauty of your type.

So closely does the smart Parisienne observe this, that she selects the shade and texture of her rouge and poudre with the utmost care. Even the occasional dabs on the shiny nose from her compacte must leave no jarring note.

The touch of color that she applies so artistically—to hide the wan look of a strenuous shopping day or to meet the demands of the brilliant social fete—must harmonize perfectly with the tint of her poudre—must be unobtrusive in itself, yet so becomingly tinted that it makes her eyes appear more brilliant, throws into relief the gleam of her hair, accentuates her individual type of beauty

Study your own coloring

It is only natural that the study of skin colorings and skin textures has reached its zenith in the century-famed ateliers of Dorin of Paris—in the heart of France. There, poudres and rouges, of exquisite softness and refinement, have been perfected for the many types of brunettes and blondes—for the "indefinite" type (the brune-blonde)—for the Titian beauty.

These poudres and rouges are imported from Paris and sold throughout America—in the better drug and department stores in the handy-sized compactes (originated by Dorin) for all sizes of vanity cases and your dressing table.

As an aid in selecting the tints that will emphasize your particular kind of beauty, we have prepared a booklet, "What is Your Coloring?" It defines the various types of beauty and recommends harmonizing combinations of poudre and rouge for each type

For 25c. in stamps or coin, this booklet, together with two miniature compactes (La Dorine Poudre and Dorin's Rouge) will be mailed you. Tell us the color of your eyes, hair and skin, so that we can select the exact shades for you.

Or send 10c. in coin and you will receive the booklet with two Dorin packets (one of poudre and one of rouge) en poudre (loose powder form). (Remember to send description of your coloring.)

Made to grow or stunted at will—by adding or subtracting one single element in food

Thousands of men and women, it is now known, lack this vital element in their daily meals

Pimples and boils corrected

Pimples and blackheads (acne) and boils, are, as a rule, the result of lowered vitality. In leading hospitals yeast has been found successful in treating these common ailments. Usually cases of boils were either cured or greatly improved within two weeks. Acne cases also cleared up quickly.

For pimples and boils eat from 1 to 3 cakes a day. In cases of boils and acute cases of acne do not fail to see your physician.

Laxatives replaced

It is known that laxatives bring temporary relief—they cannot remove the cause of the trouble. Fleischmann's Yeast is not a laxative, but a food—by its very nature better suited to the system than either drugs or oils. It should be taken regularly over a period of time. It tends to restore the normal condition of the bowels. And it cannot form a habit. For constipation eat from 1 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day.

"A SCRAWNY, lethargic animal, rapidly dwindling in size, will completely change its appearance in a few days at most on a diet unchanged except for a tiny bit of yeast."

This is how one noted scientist describes the almost incredible results of experiments with yeast, the richest known source of the newly discovered water-soluble "vitamine."

One mysterious element of food on which we are dependent for full vigor!

Primitive man secured an abundance of vitamine from his raw, uncooked foods and green, leafy vegetables. But modern diet—constantly refined and modified—is too often badly deficient in this vital element.

This explains why it is that so many people have "nothing the matter with them," yet never enjoy full vigor and health. Physicians say they are vitamine-starved. Day after day, they are failing to get enough of this single food element which supplies vigor and zest.

Vitamines exist in various common foods—notably in the leafy vegetables; but we seldom get enough to give us the vigor and store of surplus energy we all should have.

But in yeast we have a food that will help us out of the difficulty—a food that is always ready, always in season and always cheap. Yes, just plain, everyday Fleischmann's Yeast—rich in the water-soluble vitamine.

Already yeast is being eaten by thousands

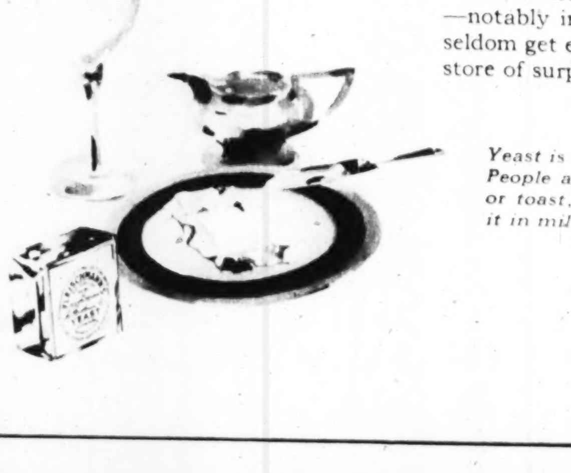
Thousands of men and women are now eating yeast—not only those who feel the effects of undernourishment; but the many who are only occasionally conscious of a lack of energy.

As a result, many are being freed from minor ailments, are building up increased resistance to disease; and—best of all—are feeling a bounding sense of vigor and energy they have not known for years.

Yeast may be eaten at any time with or between meals. One precaution: Those who are troubled with gas should dissolve yeast first in boiling water.

Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast; but not more than two or three days' supply at a time, because yeast, like milk, should be fresh to be palatable.

To learn many interesting facts about the health-giving properties of Fleischmann's Yeast, write for the booklet on this subject. Address THE FLEISCHMANN COMPANY, Dept. 128-R, 701 Washington St., New York, N. Y.



Yeast is excellent as a sandwich filler. People also like to eat it on crackers or toast, or just plain. Some prefer it in milk or fruit juices.

Why Dad Quit the Club

"I'M going to cut out the club this year, Lucy," Dad remarked as he slid into his slippers. "I don't go there once a month, so what's the use?"

"Why Dad," I exclaimed, "you don't need to economize like that. If you get any pleasure out of the club, don't give it up!"

Dad was meditative. "Remember I joined the club in the days when you used to upset things with that infernal house cleaning. It wasn't any fun to come home and find the rugs up, the furniture in a heap, and the easy chairs full of marble ladies. You remember it too."

Sure I remember it. It was worse for me than for Dad. Why, after one of those house cleaning sprees I couldn't get my hair clean for a month.

"Since you bought your Premier," Dad went on, "I haven't seen any upsets. What's the use of a club? It's more comfortable in the den at home if I want a quiet smoke; and for a conference it's got the club skinned forty ways for privacy."

Incidentally Dad's resignation saved us a couple of hundred dollars a year.

CHENEY SILKS

FASHION DEMANDS ARTISTIC INTERPRETATION

THE realm of Fashion seems to have reached that stage of development where, so far as the silhouette is concerned, there is "nothing old, nothing new." The highwaisted slimness of the Empire, the delicate grace of the Tanagra, the quaintly-snug bodice and exaggeratedly-bouffant skirt of our grandmothers' day—may achieve all the chic and smartness of modernism, provided they concede to Fashion's demand for artistic excellence of interpretation, which depends primarily upon the beauty and appropriateness of the material.

To answer the widely varied requirements of Fashion, Cheney Silks may be found in an amazingly diversified collection; subtly textured from the filmiest crêpes to the crispest of satins, and pastel tints to the gayest summer sports shades.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be quite sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready to wear.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

For your special type of skin— there is a special treatment

Skins differ widely—are you using the right treatment for your type of skin?

If your skin is a constant problem to you—if you cannot keep it smooth and flawless—then you may be sure it is because you are not using the right treatment for your special type of skin.

Skins differ widely—and each different type of skin needs a different kind of care.

The girl whose complexion is of an oily type should use a special form of cleansing to counteract the tendency to become disagreeably shiny.

The girl with a pale, sallow skin needs a treatment that will rouse and stimulate the delicate pores and blood vessels.

No matter what your type of skin happens to be—you can overcome its defects! By the right treatment, followed persistently, you can give it the natural charm, the fresh loveliness and color that come from a healthy, well-cared-for condition of the skin itself.

Remember that your skin is constantly changing—each day old skin dies and new skin takes its place. Even if, through neglect, or the wrong kind of treatment, you have allowed your skin to lose its attractiveness—by giving the new skin which forms each day, the special care suited to its needs you can actually make it over—make it as clear and smooth as you want it to be.

Study the special needs of your skin—find out just what its weaknesses are, and begin, now, to use the treatment that will overcome them. Three of the famous Woodbury treatments for improving the skin are republished on this page. You will find additional treatments for each different type of skin in the booklet of treatments, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today and find in the booklet the treatment recommended for your skin. Begin using it tonight.

The very first treatment with Woodbury's will leave your skin with a slightly drawn, tight feeling. Do not regard this as a disadvantage—it is an indication that the treatment is doing you good, for it means that your skin is responding in the right way to a more thorough and stimulating kind of cleansing. After a few nights this drawn sensation will disappear and your skin will emerge from its nightly bath so soft and smooth that you will never again want to use any other method of cleansing your face.

You can get Woodbury's Facial Soap at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake will last for a month or six weeks of any treatment, and for general cleansing use for that time. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

For the girl with an oily skin

If you are continually embarrassed by that most common of troubles—an oily skin and shiny nose—begin tonight to use this simple treatment:

FIRST cleanse your face thoroughly by washing it in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp.

Now with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion.

Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice.

This treatment will make your skin clearer and fresher the first time you use it. Make it a nightly habit, and before long you will see a marked improvement—a promise of that lovelier complexion which the steady use of Woodbury's brings.

Special treatments for each type of skin are given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around each cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Use daily—to keep your skin in good condition

If used regularly, Woodbury's Facial Soap has a markedly beneficial effect on the skin as an organism. It stimulates the little blood vessels, keeps the pores in an active condition, and gives the skin tissues firmness and tone.

The power of Woodbury's Facial Soap to benefit and improve the complexion is due to the fact that it is based on a special formula, the result of years of scientific study of the skin and its needs. Only the purest and finest ingredients enter into this formula. In consequence Woodbury's Facial Soap can be used with extremely sensitive and tender skins which often react unfavorably to other toilet soaps.

Use Woodbury's daily in your toilet and see how instantly your skin will begin to respond to its tonic qualities—what a new feeling of softness and smoothness your skin will have.

You will find Woodbury's one of the most economical soaps you have ever used. A 25-cent cake lasts for a month or six weeks—almost twice as long as an ordinary toilet soap of the same apparent size.

For the girl who is troubled with blackheads

APPLY hot cloths to the face until the skin is reddened.

Now with a rough washcloth, work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear, hot water, then with cold—the colder the better.

If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Dry carefully.

To remove blackheads already formed, substitute a flesh brush for the washcloth in the treatment above. Then protect the fingers with a handkerchief and press out the blackheads.

Woodbury treatments for each different type of skin are given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

For the girl who is pale and sallow

If your skin is pale and colorless, try this new steam treatment for it:

ONE night a week fill your bowl full of hot water—almost boiling hot. Bend over the top of the bowl and cover your head and the bowl with a heavy bath towel so that no steam can escape.

Now lather a hot cloth with Woodbury's Facial Soap. With this wash your face thoroughly, rubbing the lather well into your skin with an upward and outward motion.

Rinse the skin well, first with warm water, then with cold.

Finish by rubbing it for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Dry very carefully.

The very first time you use this Woodbury steam treatment, your skin will begin to show more color. The other six nights of the week, cleanse your skin thoroughly in the usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water.

Woodbury treatments for each different type of skin are given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch."

EASTER MORN.

Recipe for Renewed Youth as It Has Been Discovered in an Illinois Town

Feat of turning time backward for the night is successfully performed at Belleville, where residents meet in a democratic assembly, free of all formalities, to play childish games and forget their dignity for the time :-: :-: :-:

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

TOO BAD old Ponce de Leon couldn't have continued his search until he reached Belleville. On certain Tuesday evenings in the year 1921 he could, for a couple of hours, at least, rejoice in the delusion that he had discovered the recipe for renewed youth.

Not his eyes, perhaps, would be entirely tricked by the deception, for the participants in the antics he would witness might have gray hair and be burdened with the years' accumulation of avoirdupois, or angularity, as the case might be, but his other senses would persuade him to believe the actors in the scene before him were not by any means as old as they looked.

He would see "fat and forty" dames and burghers behaving as if, and enjoying themselves as if, they were kids again. He would see dignity and sedateness fall away as a cloak from bespectacled professors and school ma'ams, gravity or pompousness desert bankers and merchantmen, cares and responsibilities left at home by mothers and fathers. He would see affairs of state or county or township abandoned for the time being by officials and politicians; he would see the supposedly heavy-footed sons of toil become surprisingly nimble-footed; and, most miraculous of all, he would see the overly sophisticated youth of today leave its dress and manners of sophistication in the cloakroom and become jolly and simple, frank and free as it wouldn't dare be, popular report to the contrary notwithstanding, at petting parties and modern dances.

He would see a group of some 200 persons, real personages or mere dwellers in the community, the prominent and the obscure, the delicate and the horny handed, the young and fair, the hale and hoary, romping through rough and tumble, riotous games such as usually are reserved to the hoyden or the gamin of the playground or the pavement.

Here to all appearances is youth renewed. "Make me a child again, just for tonight" is a wish that apparently has been granted to some 200 Bellevillians, or at least they are "playing like" it has.

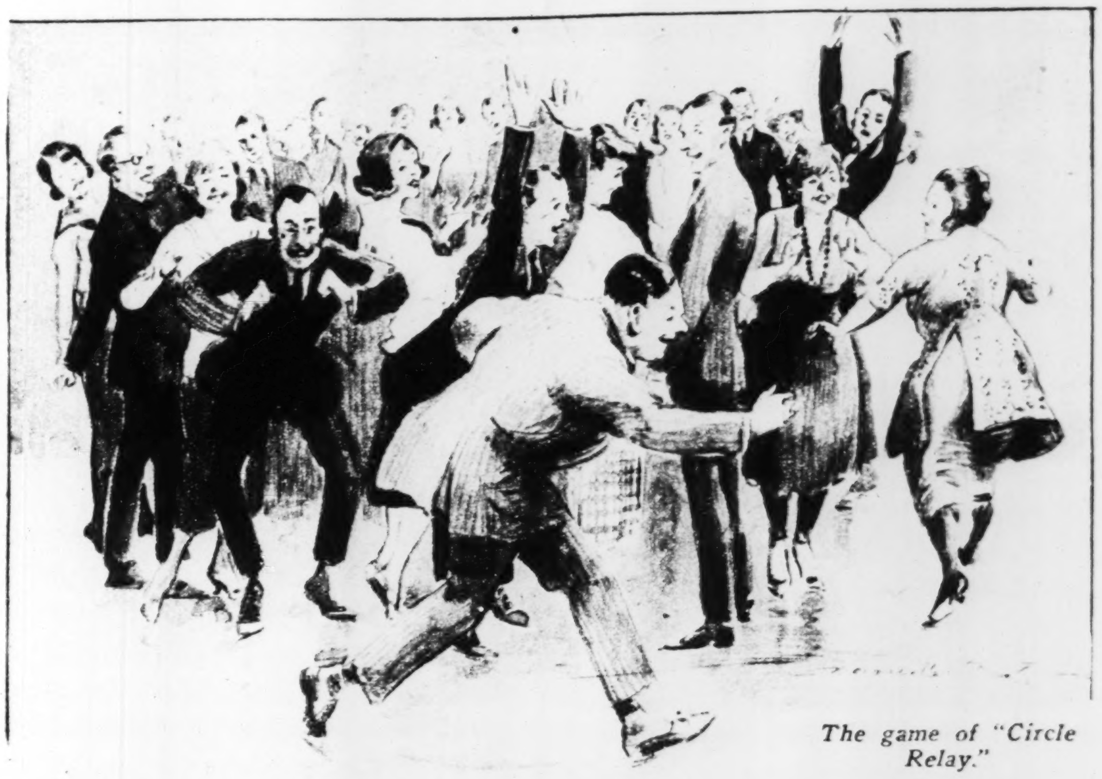
Whereupon Ponce de Leon or any other earnest questor after the secret is entitled to the cause behind this effect, the reason or object of this far from conventional scene.

The excuse for a community's wishing to be or to seem young, if any excuse were needed, is the wonderful gymnasium of the new Township High School, which group of buildings is said to be the best designed, best equipped, latest improved of any of their purpose in the State of Illinois. They are located some distance east of the center of the county seat, in the midst of broad, tillable acres, which are to provide extensive agricultural experiment stations to meet the needs of the rich surrounding farming country of its patrons.

The gymnasium, larger than any such building in St. Louis, it was plain ought not to be allowed to remain dark and idle when abandoned by students hurrying away from school. It ought to be used as a recreation center by those of its supporters who have no opportunity for recreation during the day. Accordingly, this free for everybody recreation club was organized.

The character of recreation was the only point to be decided, and this point was put up to a recreation expert employed by this community. She is Miss Adelaide Enright and she may be said to be the immediate cause behind the effect witnessed.

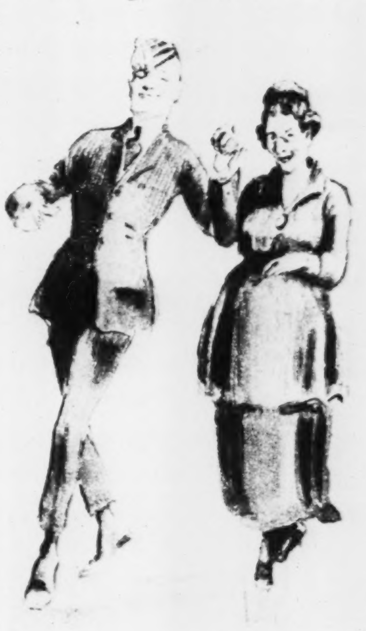
Belleville people, one is told, lend themselves very readily to any kind of co-operative community activity. Everybody knows everybody and has known everybody's folks for generations in the quaint old town which antedates St. Louis. Community service work, fostered by the Government and instituted in many cities during the war, flourished amazingly in Belleville, and though disbanded elsewhere, still flourishes here, the civic organizations of the town having combined to retain permanently the services of the former war camp community organizer, Miss Enright.



The game of "Circle Relay."

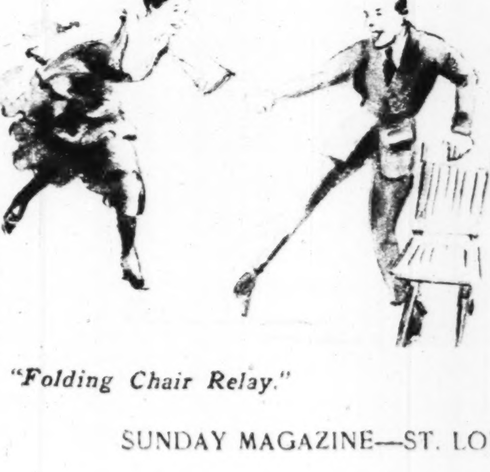
Whether staid business men and their sometimes portly wives, self-important business women and sophisticated youth would alone have voted the forgotten games of their childhood as their favorite forms of diversion, one doubts. Probably they would have favored penuchle clubs or dancing parties. But either of these forms of recreation would exclude one element or another, and the community expert insists upon entertainment in which there shall be no wall flowers, in which everybody, great and small, shall take part.

Significant it is, though, that only a bit of leadership was needed, and when Miss Enright decided on game playing, all elements fell in line, and the play parties proved a rousing success. It has been necessary to issue orders excluding all under 17 years of age, and the hall having become more and more crowded at each of the four frolics that have been held, it is probable the parties will have to be increased from one to two a month.



"Virginia Reel."

Miss Enright is an exponent of the National Play Institute, which, she says, is successor to the War Camp Community Service organization, the purpose of this agency being "to make good citizens through a wholesome use of the leisure time of the people." Her immediate mission, she says, is to develop leaders in the community who will be able to direct the recreation of smaller groups to which they belong or continue the community play party without her.



"Folding Chair Relay."

Some of the leaders already developed apparently are B. W. Tilman, County Agent, who is the present chairman of the club; E. S. Helms, a farmer from out in the "Turkey Hill" district, whose popularity and leadership outweigh his handicap of avoirdupois, and that is saying a good deal! Raymond Yaekel, who apparently needed no development of social blandishments, likewise Carl Baumgartner, who needs no encouragement to become the life of the party, and who might better be described as irrepressible. Miss Hilda Yaekel, Miss Mildred Butler, Miss Leona Wiechert, Miss Ida Krug and many other young women whose business cares and responsibilities may weigh heavily upon them by day but who seem not to have outgrown their knowledge of childish games by night; Mr. and Mrs. George Knoblock, who are the parents of a rising young newspaper reporter no longer to be stigmatized as a "cub."

Mrs. Evans Owens may not be a leader, but neither is she a trailer, for all her acknowledged 60 years. "It is so nice for us who live in the west end of town to have some place to go in the evening, since everything else seems to have moved to the east end," she remarked in one of the very few breathing spaces allowed her during the evening.

Some of the games that were played on a recent Tuesday evening were the "snake dance," which is similar to "crack the whip" and scarcely less violent; "Jolly is the miller," which is a sort of grand march with everybody changing partners at a given word in the song which accompanies it; "Circle relay," which is a variation of "drop the handkerchief," groups forming in large circles, one player in each circle tagging the player on his right, then chasing her around outside the circle, with a penalty attached if he tags her again, and the circle completing the entire circuit first being declared winner in the general contest. "Overhead relay," where the groups form in lines, passing a ball overhead from one to another, the player at the end or the foot of the line, when the ball reaches him, racing to the head, and so on, until each player has stood at the head, the group completing the entire circuit first being declared winner over the other groups; "folding chair relay," on the same order, two partners, hand in hand from each group racing from one end of the room to the other, the man unfolding a chair, the woman sitting in it for an instant, the two racing back, the object being to see which group can be first to complete the performance with every player taking part; "Cschbogar," a folk dance and song for the women, while the men are indulging in the "wagon wheel" game, a rough and tumble sort of blanket tossing sport brought back from the army; "Transit," a game something like "Going to Jerusalem," the en-

How It Feels to Watch Approach of Certain Death - Told in Diary as Trapper Slowly Expires -

Fate of A. O. Rinehart, whose body was found in his lonely cabin in Northern Canada, 200 miles from nearest post, recalls similar ends that must have come to prehistoric man and to pioneers who died alone in cold, hunger and solitude -o- -o- -o- -o- -o- -o- -o-

SHELTERED residents of great cities, supported on all sides by the presence of friendly human beings, and warmed, fed and cared for by elaborate appliances of civilization, rarely preserve any recollection of the hardships and tragedies of the primitive lives led by their forefathers. But occasionally, in the twentieth century itself, our race memories are stirred by some occurrence which for a moment brings home the terrific battles fought by mankind in prehistoric days against solitude, cold, hunger and disease.

A. O. RINEHART.

Such a story comes now from the "barren lands" of Manitoba, Canada; that of an American trapper who, alone in his hut, 200 miles from the nearest post, was stricken down with scurvy; who for months watched the steady progress of his malady, unable to understand it or treat it; who saw no human face for eight months, and whose body lay another eight months in the shack until trappers happened to find it. The imagination alone could reconstruct the loneliness and despair of these weeks, during which he saw death approaching step by step over the horizon. But the victim also left letters and a brief diary which enable us to penetrate into his very thoughts and feelings.

It was in August, 1919, that A. O. Rinehart of Shawano, Wis., left The Pas, Manitoba, setting out with two other trappers for the "barren lands." A relative who had promised to accompany him withdrew at the last moment. Rinehart parted from the trappers at Churchill River, and continued alone to North Indian Lake, where he built a shack and set out a trapping line.

All went well until November, when the solitary man was taken sick with swellings in his legs. Evidently he was much mystified by the ailment, and could not define it or administer treatment for it. He was unable to walk to the trading post, 200 miles away, and feared, if he tried, to fall prey to the bands of wolves which were following the great herds of caribou.

But he made a heroic struggle to survive the bitter winter which was coming on. While he still had strength to do so, he dragged half of his supplies into the hut, cut many cords of firewood and piled it in all the available space in the cabin, against the time when he might be forced to bed. Thus, in the midst of the blizzards, darkness and murderous cold of winter in the northern wastes, the solitary man, fighting against disease and elements both, contrived to keep the lamp of life fickering.

January came, and found Rinehart scarcely able to feed himself and keep the fire alive. But he struggled through the month, and likewise February and March. At the beginning of April he gave himself up for lost; it was evident that no one would come to his aid, and that he must perish. He had been informed that he would see plenty of Indians, who, if he fell sick or were injured, would care for him and take him out of the wilderness. But since Aug. 22, 1919, he had not seen a human face. It was now that the dying man set about writing his last messages to his fellow beings.

First, he wrote a letter, dated "April, 1920," to the relative who had failed him; and in this missive Rinehart could not help letting his bitterness creep forth.

"For your special benefit," he wrote, "I shall explain the situation in which I find myself at the present time. Having corresponded with you while overseas, and your apparent one desire being to see this north country, why, of course, I made the foolish promise to come north upon your return.

"Upon your return home, I notified you of my intention and left for Northern Canada, after spending considerable time and money. I had decided that from The Pas north was as good a country as would be to your liking, and was on the point of notifying you to meet me there when I received your letter stating plainly but firmly that you were not going to join me on any trip.

"Having spent considerable time and money and having secured part of an outfit, and being both disappointed and provoked at the dirty trick you had played upon me, I decided to continue the trip alone. Everything went well until about Nov. 1, when I began to be troubled with pains in my legs. My condition continued to grow gradually worse, and since January I have been unable to take proper care of myself.

"At the present time it is with the greatest difficulty that I am able to get snow so as to have something to drink. My supply of wood, which I have in the cabin, is getting very low, and it is a physical impossibility for me to cut any. Some days the pain in my legs is so great that I am unable to get up and build fire and do any cooking, and must spend most of my time rolled up in the blankets to keep warm.

"I had a fellow at Duluth that wanted to come north with me, but having promised to take you for a partner, you—you dirty, lying little skunk—quit me when I was depending on you.

"If someone does not come along, and that very soon, and take care of me and help me out of here, it will be only a matter of a short time when I shall need no help of any kind. Thanks for your kindness of the past, which I shall remember to the last.

"A. O. RINEHART."

Directions for mailing this letter were found in a note in a biscuit tin, which hung down from the rafters of the shack, directly in front of the door, on the inside. It was also dated "April, 1920," and read as follows:

"Whoever opens this will find in it a letter, upon the back of which you will find an address. Send the letter to that address.

"My condition is such that I will last but a few days longer. The disease which started in my legs is gradually working up in my body. My lungs are affected, and the action of the heart is becoming irregular. When I was coming up into this country, nearly everyone told me I would see lots of Indians, and if I became sick or got injured I would be able to get someone to take me out. Since Aug. 22, 1919, I have seen no one.

"If I could have got out, I should have left here for the outside in the early part of the winter. But here I am, and here it seems I must remain."

Close to Rinehart's bed, where he had dropped it, was found a diary of his last days. In the margin he had written down the days to the end of April, thus indicating, perhaps, the span of life which he estimated still remained. But he miscalculated, for the final entry is on April 9.

On April 1 an entry of seven words states that the temperature was 5 below zero, that the wind, from the north, was blowing 20 miles an hour, that the weather was cloudy, and that he baked bread. On the following day he wrote: "10 below; wind N. W., 30; cloudy;" and on Saturday came the en-

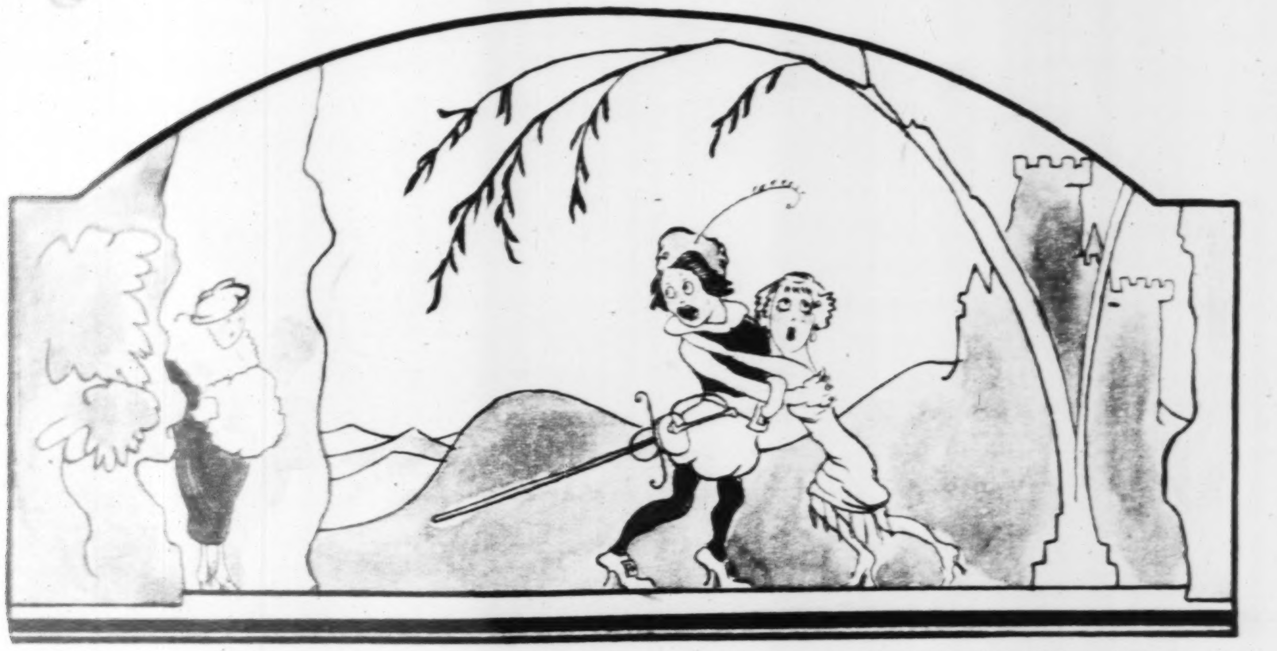
What Marriage Does to the Artistic Career

An enslaved artist-husband and the spoiled or jealous wife are familiar phenomena. But there are notable exceptions on either side.

BY NATALIE DE BOGORY



The great tenor's wife knows his failings—and watches his love scenes from the wings.

THE question of [illegible] should an artist marry [illegible] is one that [illegible] the public, the [illegible] whether in the concert hall or on the stage, is of prime importance. But the actor [illegible] is the prey of those who are quite indifferent to the [illegible] and careers. [illegible] nothing [illegible] the immediate task, and the [illegible] do not concern him. So the best answer to the question is to observe the artists and their lives and then draw one's own conclusions.

A prominent and well known actor has been seeking for a play in which to act. He has needed it for a long time. There are plenty of playwrights in the United States able to provide a vehicle for a star, and there are still more aspirants. But in spite of all these efforts this particular actor is still without a play.

The trouble is not with the playwrights nor with the actor. It is centered in the person of his wife. She is just simply jealous.

"The play must give him a wonderful part," she announces in speaking to a playwright. "He must be the hero. But he can have no love scenes. I simply can't stand it. Now, please, get a good play."

This was a year ago, and the play without love scenes for the hero has not yet been found.

And this wife is not just a plain little woman, married to a famous star. Quite the contrary. She is a singer of international fame, noted for her beauty and for a wardrobe which is the envy of both Paris and New York.

Then there is a violinist, one of the many new ones that this country has seen and heard this season. He has been married for many years, but still, whenever the telephone rings and he answers it, his wife stands ready at hand to dictate the answers.

When his manager wants him to come downtown for a conference—on business, of course, for managers are not inclined to spend time in pleasant philandering—he asks his wife's permission before making the appointment. And when the problem of an American tour came up, the tussle was long and obdurate. The wife insisted on coming, too, and the manager was equally determined he wouldn't pay her traveling expenses. Of course, the manager won, but then he was not married to that particular wife.

The men artists domineered and absolutely enslaved by their wives are so numerous that no statistics are available. One famous cellist was even forced to divorce his wife solely on the ground of her unbearable jealousy.

Despite all the charming tales woven by men around women, women are very practical and not at all sentimental. So the wife of an artist, having usually married him as the result of a platform or stage infatuation, realizes that other women might be similarly attracted. Of course, there is also the possibility that artists are emotionally flighty, or that perhaps they are of the type that must be handled firmly. The possibilities are many, the results astonishingly monotonous: the enslaved artist-husband is an accepted phenomenon in artistic circles.

A well-known tenor, who sings in one of the established opera companies, has a wife who is an equally famous opera star. Herself a product of the stage, she keenly realizes the dangers, and having sung in the same company with her husband before her marriage, she is also cognizant of his failings.

So when he has his ardent love scenes in "L'Amore dei Tre Re," or in other operas, she stands in the wings to watch. She gives him no chance for unnecessary or indiscriminate love making. She stands as a stern guardian over his conduct. It just happens that in this case this censorship has been to the tenor's advantage, for with no opportunity for foolishness he is concentrating on his voice and on music. But his wife was prompted to take these stern measures by plain, common jealousy.

Not all men have the fortune, however, to profit by such discipline. The long list of men lost to art through imprudent marriages is almost endless and in most cases, where the talent was still very young, its snuffing out has not attracted general attention. But there is one violinist whose genius was so pronounced, and whose playing had conquered the world so completely, that when his violin became silent everybody wondered.

Gradually the truth came out. He had married at the height of his career, and it was but a very few years before he suddenly left the concert platform, where his strong personality and extraordinary technique had won him world-wide fame.

He sank into history. Everybody spoke of him in the past tense. Many years later he returned to the concert stage. The public flocked to hear him, but the fire was gone. Those who flocked because of the magic name he bore left disappointed and disgusted, for only the shell had remained.

The woman artist, on the other hand, has every reason to feel encouraged in plunging into matrimony, for the men who have given a leading hand to their ambitious wives are numerous enough to attract attention. The woman artist usually has more than respect alone from her husband; he worships her, and is often glad to do all in his power to further her career.

There is a prima donna known on both sides of the ocean who owes her entire success to her husband. When she married him as a young girl, nobody had even suspected that she had a voice; but when the gift was discovered he encouraged her to take lessons. He worked hard for years and paid the exorbitant prices demanded by the great masters of the voice.

Her debut brought her immediate success. Art became her prime passion, and she left her husband to give all her time and energies to singing. When she decided that it would be better to obtain a divorce, her husband made it possible. Those who know say that he still loves her, and his greatest pleasure is to slip into the opera when she is singing to listen to her pearly trills.

In one of the established opera companies there is a very tiny prima donna whose husband is a collector of valuable manuscripts. He helped her study; he traveled with her to the great European masters that she might take lessons. When she was singing in the United States he made special trips to see her and to hear her, and when she sang he never failed to occupy the best available seat. He hates society, but when his wife gives box parties he is always present in immaculate evening dress—a figure remote from the gay surroundings. His appearance is scholarly and his manners most timid. But everybody can see that he admires his vivacious and talented wife, and that her word is law to him.

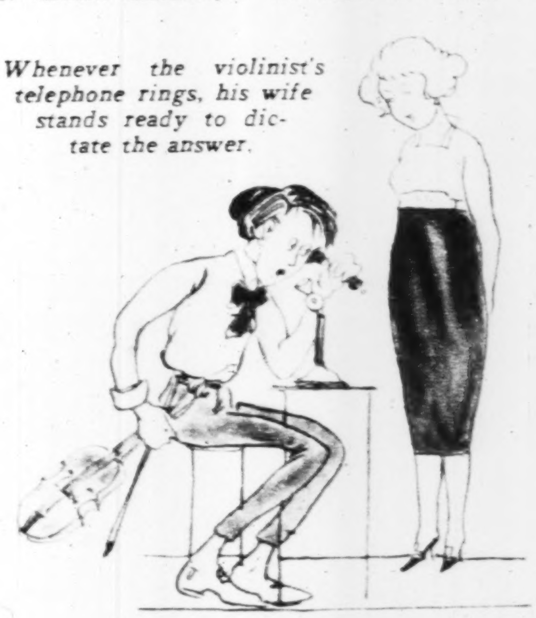
But, after all, these men and women of the artistic world may only be the living proofs of woman's superior wisdom in selecting her husband and man's proverbial blindness in love. Women artists, with their greater world experience, know how to avoid the male tyrant, whereas a man always remains a man, and a pretty face may be his undoing, whether he is a store clerk or a great virtuoso.

In a beautiful apartment in New York, facing the Hudson River, there lives a blind woman. Once a week, sometimes twice, the calm so characteristic of the blind is disturbed. At midnight she sits waiting anxiously for the sound of the latchkey in the door.

"How did you sing tonight?" she asks of the man, who comes in hurriedly and kisses her so gently.

Long ago, when this man and woman were young, she sewed in the day from 8 in the morning to 6 at night, and then took more of the fine needlework home to do, that her husband might take lessons from the great maestro, who had told her that, given the training, he would some day become a great tenor.

Years went by. The man made his debut and attained the longed-for success. But the young girl had become a blind woman. She sacrificed her eyes for his career.



Whenever the violinist's telephone rings, his wife stands ready to dictate the answer.

Admiral Bullard's Radio Forecast

IN A RECENT lecture before the Franklin Institute, Admiral W. H. G. Bullard, U. S. N., said:

"There will come a time when ships will be without chronometers and will be in constant wireless touch with New York until they reach the British Channel. This is not a dream; it is near at hand.

"By means of the radio compass a ship can get her bearings, when she calls for them anywhere along the coast of the United States. This instrument has already saved ships which were headed straight for the shore.

"The depth of water under the ship can now be accurately determined by the hydrophone, which works on the reflection from the ocean bottom of the sound of the ship's propeller. By this device shallow water can be avoided and even the proximity of icebergs detected. Ships also can communicate with each other by under-water waves, sent out by oscillators.

"By means of a cable laid along the bottom of New York Channel and energized with current, a pilot blindfolded guided a destroyer safely to port, never getting more than 50 yards from the line of the cable. The waves sent out from the cable were detected in the telephone receivers, one in each ear, telling him whether he was to right or left of the guiding cable.

"Hurricanes can be detected by sensitive radio telephones, and even the general direction of storms is now sent broadcast by coastal stations, and the time given for wireless receiving apparatus. By wireless methods the ship can tell its location. Weather warning and location of wrecks, derelicts and icebergs are given out."

VANISHED VILLAGE WHICH IS BEING BUILT AGAIN IN MEMORY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

The primitive log cabins of Old (New) Salem, Illinois, duplicated on their original sites, will show later generations the scene of six years in "Honest Abe's" early life—There he was clerk and storekeeper, postmaster and member of the legislature, and there he won and lost Ann Rutledge DISTANT from St. Louis only a few hours, by railroad train, a unique memorial is being established. The plan of this memorial, already built to a substantial extent, does not resemble any other which has preceded it.

Yet the prophecy is made that, before many more years have passed, the people of the United States and of foreign countries, too, will flock there annually by thousands. For this memorial will attract persons of all ages and all classes. Reasonable, indeed, appears the belief expressed by its founders that in time it will rival Mount Vernon itself as one of the national shrines.

Two miles south of Petersburg, in Menard County, Illinois, an organization of men and women is doing no less a thing than to resurrect an entire village, in honor of Abraham Lincoln. Upon the site which he trod as a youthful inhabitant of New Salem, and which had been bare of buildings for half a century, they are putting up replicas of the primitive log houses and stores.

More than that, these new cabins, like ghosts of the old buildings, are being erected on the original sites and as nearly like their predecessors as ingenious and tireless study of the past can achieve. Those actively in charge of the matter have ransacked old legal records, conferred with the few persons still living who either resided at New Salem or had visited there before the town was abandoned, have weighed references to the village in the yellowed pages of letters and books.

Five cabins, including the famous Rutledge Tavern, where Lincoln boarded while clerking in a store and where he fell in love with Ann Rutledge, whose death after their betrothal was the great tragedy in Lincoln's life, have been completed. As funds are available, replicas of the other buildings which made up the village of New Salem will be erected. The total probably will be 22, as considerable doubt exists whether there ever were 23 buildings, as some people believe.

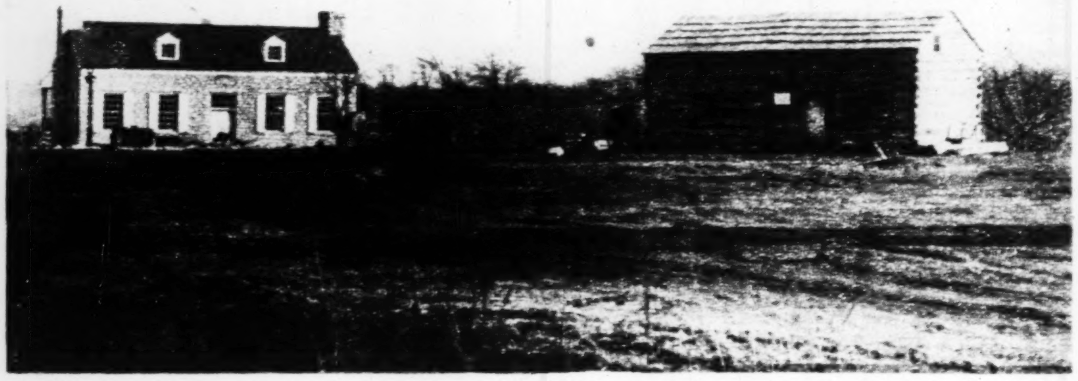
Although Lincoln lived at New Salem from the summer of 1831 until the summer of 1837, at the formative period of his life (being 22 years old on his arrival), earned there the nickname of "Honest Abe," served as Postmaster and was twice elected to the Legislature, the town subsequently was but a memory for many years.

After the founding of Petersburg, the site of which Lincoln surveyed in 1836, the people of Salem began to abandon their town, some moving to Petersburg, some to other towns or to farms. By 1840 but 10 houses remained on Salem Hill, in 1845 but two were left, and in 1874 a sketch was made of the ruins of the Rutledge Tavern, first house to be built on the hill and the last to perish.

For almost half a century before the Old Salem Lincoln League, Inc., of Petersburg began its work, all of the old buildings had disappeared and the site was used as a cow pasture, with nothing to indicate that a busy little village had stood there except the cellar depressions, the stones and bricks which had been used in foundations and chimneys and the traces of the old roads.

At the base of the hill, where the placid Sangamon flows past, were the remains of the dam and mill built by Hugh M. Cameron and his uncle, James Rutledge (father of Ann), the first settlers at Salem, in 1828. This mill afterwards was rented by Denton Offut, who opened a store at New Salem in September, 1831, with Abraham Lincoln for one of his clerks. Lincoln also worked at the combined grist and sawmill as needed.

Although New Salem suffered the fate of many another small frontier town, and passed out of existence almost as quickly as it had sprung up, when the time came, yet it was during Lincoln's six years as an inhabitant of the village that he developed from "a strange, friendless, uneducated, penniless boy, working on a flatboat at ten dollars a month," as he afterward described himself in those days, into a recognized leader with a devoted following among the other young men and the older ones, too. A great career was being predicted for him even before he had left New Salem.



Another interesting glimpse of Old Salem: (left to right) rear view of $30,000 stone museum building, and front view of the famous Rutledge Tavern, conducted by the parents of Ann Rutledge.

How the builders of the resurrected village went about their task is not the least interesting part of the story. Although all the cabins had disappeared—for time, the elements and souvenir hunters left not one log upon another—yet the top of Salem Hill was widely known to be the site of the town.

George N. Kelly of Springfield, a middle-aged man who lived for 21 years at Petersburg, recalled that when he was a boy a popular expedition for the young folks was to go to the beautiful grounds of the Old Salem Chautauqua, a mile or two outside of Petersburg, launch boats in the Sangamon River and row to Salem, where they would climb the steep grade from the river to the site of the vanished village, whence the Sangamon valley to the east furnishes a vista of wonderful beauty.

So the site was known, and there is a plat of the town, on the records of Menard and Sangamon counties, Salem having been in Sangamon County when established. But the plat had no fixed monuments or landmarks from which the place of beginning or ending could be determined, and the Committee on Sites, Relics, Mementos and Memoirs were obliged to work out the problem as best they could. The names of this energetic committee, by the way, are Thomas P. Reep, a Petersburg lawyer; C. W. Houghton, a commission merchant, and J. Colby Beekman, also of Petersburg.

The location of the Offut store at the northeast corner of the town was definitely known, because of three trees growing out of the cellar, on one of which, many years ago, an admirer of Lincoln named Frank Philips had carved a portrait of Lincoln. This portrait was preserved by recutting as necessary in later years, and the section of log bearing the bas relief will be exhibited in the Salem museum.

The dimensions of the Offut cellar, and consequently of the ground plan, were determined by soil experts through study of the color and condition of the dirt which had filled it, and which by them could be readily distinguished from the dirt which never had been disturbed by pick or shovel. In this way, and by the discovery of the chimney foundation, the building was found to have been 14 by 16 feet.

The records show that Offut bought lot 14 and as far as could be determined he owned no other land there. The plat already showed the lot numbers, as well as dimensions of blocks and lots, and also the compass bearings. So the fixing of lot 14 gave the committee a chance to approximate, at least, the location of other sites in the village.

With the aid of old settlers and the few recorded deeds, and using the old plat as a basis, together with other maps and perspectives drawn

WHEN PROHIBITION FIRST CAME TO THE OZARKS . .

The gobbler hunter recalls a tender romance of forty years ago when "Pod" Lively, owner of the finest still in the hills, got sweet on the new school teacher and how she convinced him of the error of his ways. -:- -:- -:- -:-

By ALICE CURTICE MOYER-WING.

"'PEARS like ever'body more er less is a-talkin' about prohibition these here days, don't it?"

I nodded my agreement and the Gobbler Hunter paused to light his pipe.

"Well, sir," he said, "I remember the fust temperance speech I ever heerd as well as if it was yisterday, though I hadn't thought of it fer 40 year, I reckon, till this mornin'. Was minded of it on the way up here and have been a-bustin' myself a-laughin' ever sence. You know where the road forks this side of Bear Creek? Well, I met a feller there who axed me if this was the part of the country where Pod Lively used to live and if the old still site was anywheres around. Said he'd heerd it was one of the originals of the country and that he kinder wanted to see it. Said his father used to know Pod down in Dunklin County after he'd left these here parts and that he'd heerd about the still.

"I jist busted out a-laughin' right in his face and axed him if he'd ever heerd Pod say anything about havin' a quare visitor there once upon a time. He busted into a laugh himself and said he didn't reckon that anybody ever knowed Podhammer Lively without hearin' something about how he happened to quit the still business. I pinted him on his way to the old still site and laughed all the way up here jist frum thinkin' about it all—haw! haw! haw! I reckon, seein' it's so big on my mind, I jist better tell you'n's about it and git it off. I ain't thought of it, hardly, fer 40 year.

"It was this here way: Podhammer Lively was a few years older than me and my crowd of fellers and was so all-fired popular with the girls that we used to kinder wish that he'd git married and git out of our way, so to speak. The Lively fambly was about the wellest-to-do people around. They owned a big farm and a right smart of stock and it wasn't no secret about the still that Pod and his father owned and run. We all knowed about it and all kept it quiet. We didn't all believe in makin' money that-a way, but we didn't say much about it them days. That was before women got to workin' any much, fer prohibition and sich. They jist put up with anything that come along them days, and done the best they could. I reckon the schoolmarm was the fust—but I'm a-gittin' ahead of the story, as it were.

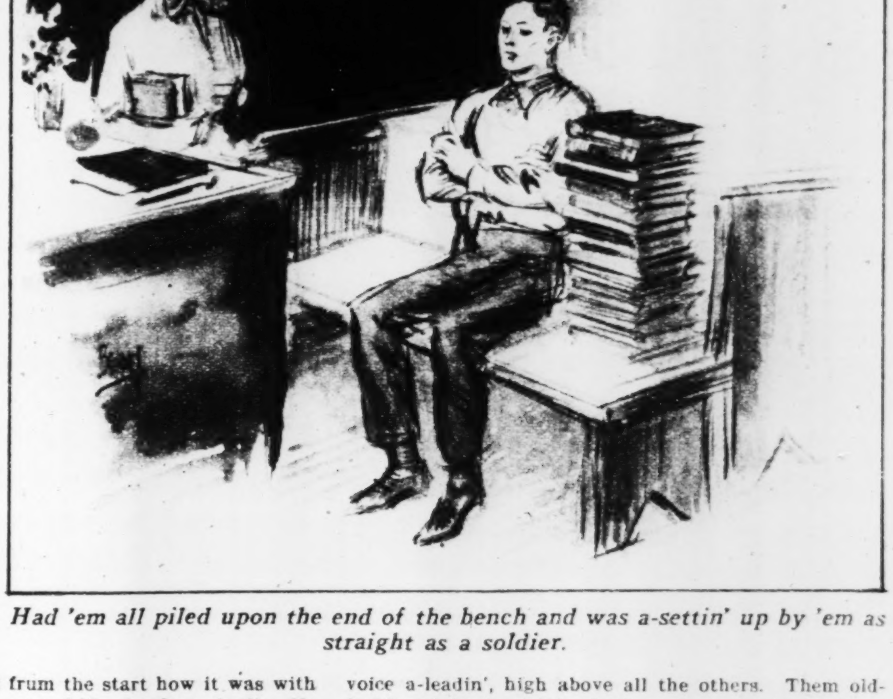
"But as I was a-sayin', Pod, he wasn't in no hurry, 'peared like, to git spliced and jist kep' on bein' the best fiddler and dancer in the neighborhood and a-likin' the gals all alike, when one winter it was all changed quicker than you could say scat.

"The big boys in our deestrick had been a-whippin' out the teacher right reg'lar, and the directors, not knowin' what else to do, 'lowed they'd hire a gal and see what kinder effect it would have, as the sayin' is. Haw! haw! haw! Pod had been over school age fer a right smart spell, but he had saw the teacher the day she got to Deacon Tubbs' for to board the fust week, and that settled it.

"Them days the school teacher boarded round, fust with one fambly and then with another, jist owin' to who would take her in fer a week or two fer nothin' so as that she wouldn't have to pay out none of her $10 a month fer something to eat and a place to stay, which was awful good of 'em, they 'lowed. The teacher, she ginerally washed the dishes and done the milkin' to sorter pay fer this free boardin'. If it was a man, he got in the wood and done the feedin' to pay fer his't.

"Well, the very next Monday, fust day of school, Pod was right there with a whole passel of books, dictionaries, histories, and ever' old thing he could gether up round over the neighborhood. Had 'em all piled up on the end of the bench when the teacher got there and was a-settin' up by 'em as straight as a soldier.

"Some of us younger fellers wished we was a mite older, so as to have a chance along with Pod. That is, all but me. I reckon I never seen the day when I had time to think of anybody in the whole world except Tillyannie. That is, in the gal line. The thing that worried me about 'em most was the skeer of thinkin' how turrible it would be if some other feller was to git her. But the schoolmarm shore was purty, if a person could say that black eyes was purty, Tillyannie's bein' blue. But they was big and soft and her cheeks was red, which was plumb proper, seein' that Tillyannie's was always a-shinin' like two red roses in full bloom. And her hair was black and curly, as purty, I reckon, as that kind could be—Tillyannie's bein' yaller. Ever sence I was knee-high to a duck I had compared everybody in the gal line with Tillyannie, and somehow Tillyannie always come out plumb ahead.



Had 'em all piled upon the end of the bench and was a-settin' up by 'em as straight as a soldier.

"Well, we seen right frum the start how it was with Pod. He was plumb gone—hide, hoofs and all. He belonged all over to that black-eyed schoolmarm. And it 'peared like her week to stay at the Lively's come around plumb often, as it were. Pod, he got on the good side of his mam and got her to ast her, and when they was a spell of weather, Pod, he brung her to school ridin' behind him a-hossback.

"Gen-tull-men! Them school directors was wise old fellers.

"And good! Why, butter jist wouldn't a-melted in our mouths, hardly. And if anybody had told the schoolmarm that we'd been in the habit of lickin' the teacher and bustin' up the school, she'd a-looked at 'em with them big eyes of her'n and would a-reckoned that they shore didn't mean this here school of her'n in Punkin Holler and they wouldn't nobody a-tuck her up on it.

"And we learned. Gen-tull-men! Not bein' into meanness any, hardly, we got into our books. Knee deep. Why, when we got to studyin' right good, all together, you couldn't a-heerd a earthquake—Pod's voice a-leadin', high above all the others. Them old-fashioned loud schools don't seem to be in style no more, much, and I reckon they's objections to 'em, but as soon as the teacher learnt their different voices, she shore could tell who was a-studyin' and who wasn't.

"'I'm 17,' I says, 'and I'm big enough to settle with Pod Lively, if you want him licked er anything,' I says."

"And we was all a-watchin' to see how her and Pod got along. Of course, we knowed that Pod was done fer, but, if she was set on him, she didn't show it none much, it not bein' considered proper, I reckon, fer the teacher to keep company with one of her scholars. But Pod didn't seem to see how it was and he was shore down in the mouth a right smart, most of the time, that winter. But when school was out and she kept a-stayin' in the neighborhood, we all had our suspicions and Pod, he perked up right away. She was a orphan, the teacher was, and when she wasn't a-teachin' school and boardin' round in some school deestrick, she was a-workin' out in famblies fer 50 cents a week and her board, and that's how I got so well acquainted with her. She come to our house to work that summer, till school would begin agin, and reg'lar, ever' Sunday night and ever' Wednesday night, Pod rid over to see her, and jist as reg'lar, ever' Monday and ever' Thursday, Marthy—that was the teacher's name—went round with red eyes and swelled face like she'd been a-cryin' all night—only I 'lowed that schoolmarms didn't cry. Then by the next day she'd hope up and be jist a-waitin' fer him to come agin.

"And then, one Monday, they was a change in her. My pa and ma was a-goin' to town that day and I was a-goin' to stay at home and he'p Marthy with the washin'. They hadn't hardly got out of sight when I found out what the difference was.

" 'William,' she says, 'William, you've jist shore got to he'p me.' The teacher was like Tillyannie—she didn't like 'Gob' fer a name, me bein' knowed fur and wide as the Gobbler Hunter, count of bein' so lucky in gittin' wild turkeys. The fellers called me 'Gob' fer short.

" 'William,' she says, "will you? You're most growed,' she says.

" 'I'm 17,' I says, 'and I'm big enough to settle with Pod Lively, if you want him licked er anything,' I says. 'I don't believe he's a-treatin' you right, teacher,' I says.

"She straightened up frum the suds that she was a-squashin' the clo'es around in and looked at me with them big, black eyes of her'n.

" 'You're wrong, William,' she says. 'Pod's all right. I am to marry him if I can.'

" 'If you can,' I yells. 'Why, teacher, he would give his eyes fer you any day,' I says. 'Ain't the blamed fool never axed you yet?'

" 'Oh, yes, he's axed me,' she says, the roses flamin' a little redder in her cheeks.

" 'Then if you aim to marry him and he's axed you, I reckon it's all settled,' I says, wonderin' what the Sam Hill was the trouble.

" 'No,' she says, 'it ain't settled, William.'

"She went on with the washin' and I waited fer her to git ready to speak agin.

" 'You see, it's this way,' she says. 'I reckon, maybe, I feel different about some things frum what you'n's do—like Pod and his pa feels.

" 'Do you know what I'd ruther do than anything else in all the world?' she says, lookin' up frum the tub of clo'es. 'I'd ruther go around with a ax and bust up all the stills in the world,' she says. And then I diskivered that schoolmarms could cry, after all. She put her head down on her arms and—and—fust thing I knowed I was purty nigh cryin', too, jist frum feelin' sorry fer her, as it were. But it was soon over and she was as ca'm as ever. 'William,' she says, 'it was a still that made me a orphan,' she says, awful quiet.

"It was my first experience in hearin' a temperance speech. I throwed several rocks into the creek, not knowin' jist what else to say, and then, after waitin' awhile says: 'Why don't you tell Pod?' I says.

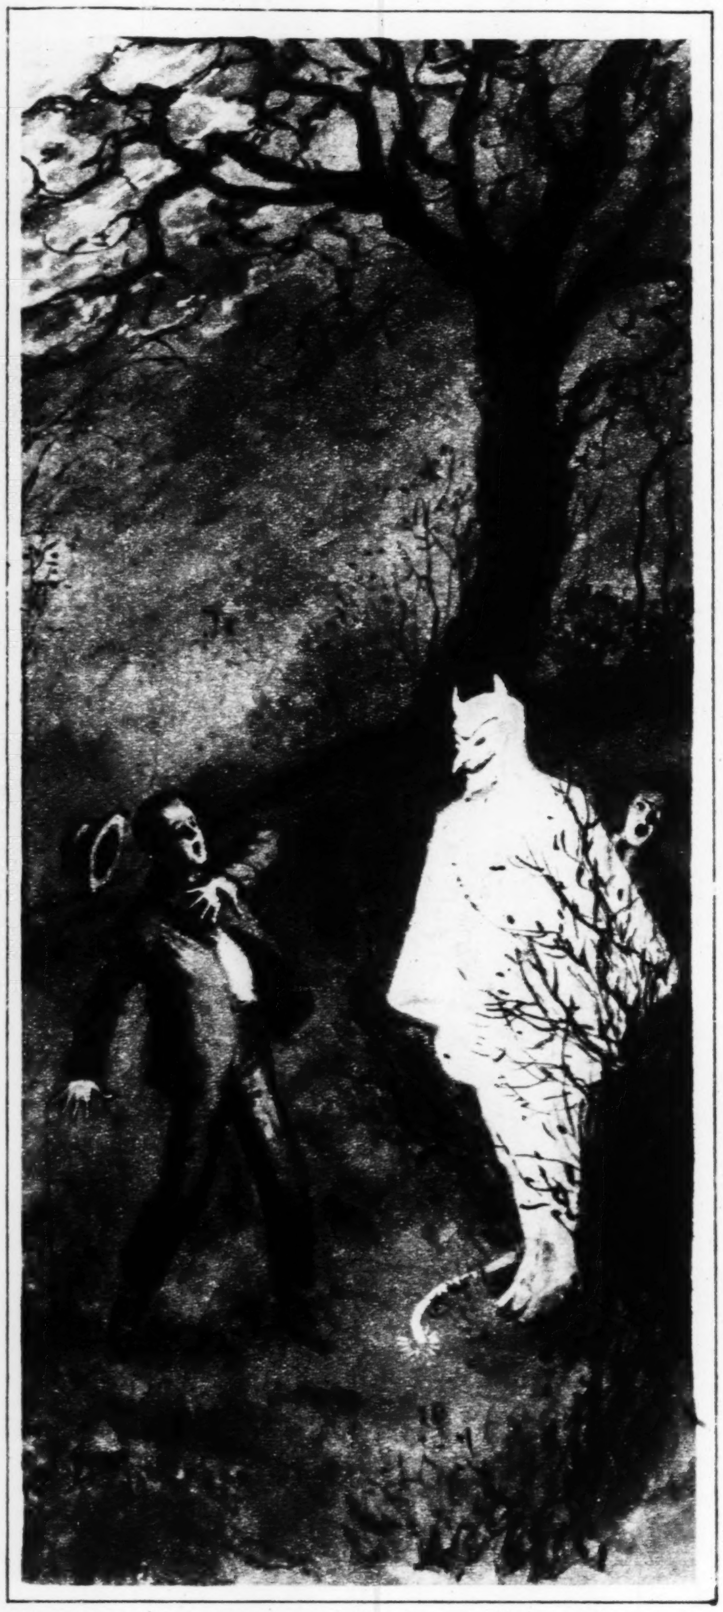
" 'That is jist the trouble,' she says. 'I have told him—and told him—and told him. And it don't do no good. He jist cain't see it the way I do. And if I marry him and he stays with the still, they might—be other—little children sometimes—left orphans—account of a still,' she says.

" 'William, the plan hit me all of a sudden last night,' she says, 'after Pod was gone—somethin' he said about ha'nts and bein' out of nights. They's a lot of people that believes in ha'nts,' she says, trying to excuse Pod. And I told her they shore was.

" 'William, we've got to skeer him plumb out of that still business,' she says. 'You and me. That's what I want you to do fer me—and fer Pod.' And by the time we had the washin' out, our plans was all made. 'I'll write fer the paper likeness,' she says, 'the balloon, you know, right away. I worked fer some folks last summer who had a store with all them kind of things fer the Fourth of July, and some of 'em was left over. You can figure it out fer yourself how you can git him to burn, right before Pod's eyes. The big meetin' will be goin' on soon at Turkey Creek and he'll likely pass right by the still ever' night. And it'll be moonlight.'

"Well, the big meetin' was goin' full blast when the devil balloon reached us. Me and Marthy tuck him out behind the barn to make shore he was all there and could be blowed up into shape without leakin'. I had it figured out jist how I would git him to ketch afire after he had ha'nted Pod a spell. The fuse and ever'thing was all ready.

"The meetin' was a-hittin' a heap of us, and among them that was under conviction fer their sins was Pod. Ever' night he was a-wrastlin' at the mourners' bench, but somehow it seemed like he couldn't quite git plumb through. 'Son,' the preacher told him, 'if you air a-holdin' onto some secret sin by the skin of your teeth or toenails, you must shore jist shake yourself loose. Remember, the devil never sleeps,' he says. 'Go home and think it over and come back tomorrer night.'



Right by the path was a sight that no living person ever expects fer to behold.

"It was the purties' moonlight night I ever seen. Pod was too heavy-hearted to take Marthy home. He went off by hisself, walkin' slow along the short-cut path across the big gully by the still, while I streaked it ahead to a certain p'int and was hid behind a little bunch of bushes. He come along with his head down, when all of a sudden he looked up and was froze by what he saw. Right by the path was a sight that no living person ever expects fer to behold. They was a candle inside of him that lit up his eyes. It was the 'sight' that had the candle inside of him, you understand. And as Pod described it afterwards, it made his old hooked nose look like a live coal. Also, his old long tail jist twisted and twisted, Pod said. He 'lowed that he didn't ever need to have saw the devil to know who he was when he met him face to face, as it were.

"I groaned out what I thought would be like a voice ha'nted by the devil. 'Here,' I cries. 'Right here, Podhammer Lively; here is your secret sin,' I says. 'This here still,' I says. 'Shake yourself loose, Podhammer,' I begs, 'before it is everlastin'ly too late,' I says. 'Even if it takes your toenails plumb off,' I says. Which was shore plumb strange advice to come from the devil, if Pod hadn't been too skeered to think. And then he commenced to burn hisself up. 'Slow like, and snaky,' was the way Pod told it later on. While it was a-happening he didn't stop to tell nobody nothin', Pod didn't. He jist run screechin' like a wild Injun or somethin'; and somehow he got headed round the long way fer home, while I tuck the short cut across the gully, and before he got round to the p'int where the path comes into the big road, I was a-walkin' up to meet him, jist as if I had been goin' a piece of the way with Tillyannie.

" 'G-G-Gob,' he stutters, "I-m-m-m sh-shore'—— And then he draps in his tracks. Couldn't stand, he was that shaky. I sets down by him and talks to him and by and by he gives me the fust installment of his experience, whichupon I says: 'What in the Sam Hill are you hollerin' about? Why, Pod,' I says, 'you ort to be proud that the old boy has gone and burnt hisself up. I'm plumb tickled,' I says, 'that the old cuss has gone and committed suicide.'

" 'You don't know him, Gob,' Pod says. 'He could cut up the same old shine, all over ag'in, just any time he wanted to.' You'd a-thought frum the way Pod spoke, that him and Satan had gone to school together, when they was boys. 'And he never sleeps, nuther,' Pod says.

" 'It must be right hard on the old feller, never to git a nap,' I says to him. But Pod couldn't be cheered up.

" 'I want you,' he says, 'to wake up Marthy soon as you git home, and tell her that she has been right all the time. Tell her I won't even have to go to the mourner's bench agin. I'll be plumb all right soon as I git this still business settled, which will be tomorrer. And, Gob, if I was you I wouldn't tell the fellers,' he says.

" 'And, say, Gob,' as I was a-startin' off. 'Tell Marthy to notify the directors that she won't want the school no more.

" 'And, say, Gob,' as I was a-startin' off ag'in. 'Tell her we'd better git the knot tied while they's a preacher in the settlement.

" 'And, say, Gob'—— But I pertended I didn't hear. I couldn't be bothered all night with a feller who'd saw the devil, who had got religion and was about to git married all at one whack. But Pod was shore a-pickin' up right peart after his skeer.

"I didn't have to wake Marthy. She was waitin' up fer me. And, do you know, it didn't seem funny to her, somehow. Blame me if it did, though I told her all about it. And she was jist that happy that she put her head down on her arms like she did that day she was a-washin' at the creek and I saw she was cryin', same as she done then. But this time she was cryin' jist because she was glad. Too glad to hold in. She jist natcherly had to cry er bust. Some people is that-a-way, I reckon.

" 'Well,' she says, when she could talk agin, 'I reckon it was kinder a mean trick to play on Pod. But I don't keer! I don't! I'd do it agin. And about the preacher bein' in the neighborhood, Pod is shore fursighted and forehanded, and I reckon he's right.'

"Somehow, the story got leaked out, mostly because Pod was too dumfoundered by what he had saw to keep frum tellin' it. And when it come out that it was jist a trick, Pod was so dawg-awful satisfied with the way it had turned out that he didn't git mad ner keer a darn. He got so he told the joke on hisself as the funniest thing ever happened to him.

"But it cured him of the 'still' habit. Also, it got him 'through' at the meetin'. And it got him Marthy."

Amazing Progress of Wireless Development

WRITING of the future for amateur radio-telegraphy in the Radio News, Pierre H. Boucheron gives the advice to "go easy on the purchase of spark equipment." The reason is that such great improvements are taking place in vacuum tubes and their arrangement that what you buy as new today may be obsolete tomorrow.

He shows a photograph of the latest vacuum tube, no thicker than a pencil, or cigarette, which "is destined to revolutionize radio, and it will not take many years, either," he says. This is a practical instrument and not a mere toy.

Mr. Boucheron foresees the day when people will carry wireless outfits as they carry cameras today, and H. Gernsback, editor of the magazine, remarks:

"The chances are that during the next decade most of the radio apparatus will be sold by all up-to-date drug stores, the same as photographic cameras and supplies are now. By that time a radio receiving outfit will have been compressed into a space as small as the present-day cameras, pocket cameras not excepted. These outfits will comprise a one or two-step amplifier, and there will be no phones with such an outfit, but very likely the sounds will come right from a horn similar to our phonograph today, only built along miniature lines.

"The aerial will probably be of the loop type, collapsible, and made to fit right into the box itself. Such a loop aerial could be extended into its full shape within a few seconds. The vacuum tubes used in the outfit will possibly be even smaller than the ones made now. These vacuum tubes are about the thickness of a fountain pen and are from one to one and one-half inches long. There is no doubt that in time vacuum tubes will be made even smaller.

"Amateurs want a compact apparatus these days, particularly for receiving. When you can take a neat little box fashioned along the lines of a kodak, set it up in your parlor, and when dance music, originated some 500 miles distant, begins to pour forth from it by radio, then we can truly say that the heyday of amateur radio has really arrived."

Some of us feel things more keenly than others. Probably Elbridge is no more sensitive than the general run who set out to be chatty in a bright, entertaining manner, but it certainly was a blow to be interrupted in the midst of telling Miss Simmons all about his indigestion, and how the bicarbonate of soda didn't do a bit of good, by a late arrival who butted right in to ask if dear Ethel had been playing any auction lately! Elbridge's feelings are too badly hurt to say another word.

OVERLOOK HOUSE

By WILL PAYNE

FOURTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

DANFORTH was pleading his case with earnestness and emotion, although his heavy voice was controlled; but whatever was formidable in him came out as he spoke, and his father recognized it with a disquieting sort of shock—so to speak, beholding his own cub, whom he had brought up and taught to fight, standing squared across his path. He pulled his rough dewlap between thumb and forefinger. Very few things in life could be less welcome to him than a fight with his son; so he spoke in a mild and reasonable tone:

"Well, I'm bound to protect these other people—say nothing of myself."

So there was the issue indubitably joined between them.

"I'm afraid of him, father," said Danforth. "If the actual evidence is gone he'll lie about it. Of course, he's lied to her about it already. She's only a girl and romantic. He'll think up some plausible fable and bluff it out with her. It's one chance in a million for me. I may be foolish—at my age—but I can't help it. Say I'm mad about her, if you like. I am mad about her. The body mustn't be moved just now."

His father looked him in the eye and inquired: "Mad enough to throw me down, Dan?"

It was a hard question, but Danforth, likewise looking his father in the eye, replied at once: "If it had to come to that I'd be mad enough for it. But there's no need. You can afford to take the chance of letting it rest a day or two. It must."

There was no doubt about the conclusiveness of that, and Judge Crane replied grimly: "In that case there's nothing more to be said." Not that he gave up his own plan, however; already he was prepared to consider what steps he might take independently of his son.

Danforth got up, saying, simply: "Sorry, but I can't see it any other way." He knew well enough that his father was not likely to give up easily, so he added, gravely: "Please don't start anything tonight; it would be foolish." With that quiet and final challenge he moved toward the door.

With a certain sense of strangeness, Judge Crane watched his son's burly figure move toward the study door. They were antagonists; a covert declaration of war had just passed between them. Who could have imagined that such a thing would happen?

Then the Judge witnessed an odd little pantomime. Danforth opened the door and stepped into the hall, but halted, the doorknob still in his hand, and so stood for a moment; then he stepped back into the study, pulling the door to after him, but leaving a crack so that he could still look down the hall. For a minute he stood that way, and then went into the hall, briskly, closing the study door behind him. Of course, the little pantomime struck Judge Crane as odd.

Opening the study door, his mind somberly full of this clash with his father, Danforth's eyes had traveled mechanically down the hall and at once lighted upon an arresting object—namely, a new and distinguished traveling bag. It was of pale yellow leather, with stout straps over the top and metal fixtures of dull wrought iron—an uncommon sort of bag. A fortnight before Ted Pennell had exhibited exactly such a bag to him, in the new pride of ownership.

The bag stood on the hall floor, near the wall, not, however, near the door to Ted Pennell's bedroom, but on the opposite side of the hall and some distance this way from Ted's room. But it was close to the door of Edith Hilton's bedroom. So much Danforth took in at a glance and halted in his tracks. The next moment he saw the door of Edith's room opening. A man, clad in light-colored summer flannels, stepped partly out and turned, as though to take another look backward into the bedroom. The partly disclosed man looked like Ted Pennell and Danforth withdrew into the Judge's study, keeping a crack to peer through.

When the man came wholly into the hall Danforth saw that it was Ted. Having put a key into the lock. Ted locked the door, tried it to make sure that it was fast, then, with the key in his hand, picked up his bag and went to his own room, which he entered.

Of course, Danforth wondered, and his wonderings were of a dark tone. He went down the hall and listened at Edith's door, but all seemed still within. He had seen the door locked a moment before and so didn't bother to try it. But the bedrooms there on both sides of the hall, were constructed in suites of two, with a dressing room and bathroom between, so that a man and wife might have each a separate bedroom, but the use of the same dressing room and bath. Danforth stepped on to the door opposite Ted's—the door of the bedroom which, just now, was assigned to Lester Hilton.

When he tried the door it yielded to his touch and he entered. There seemed nothing uncommon in the aspect of the bedroom. He crossed it, listened at the door of the dressing room, tapped very gently upon it, and got no response. He then entered the dressing room, found it empty and crossed to the door to Edith's bedroom. This might prove embarrassing; but when he had listened a moment and hearing no sound, he gently tried the knob, found that it yielded, and pushed the door open a bit, peering in. An instant later he was crossing the room to the bed on the further side.

Edith Hilton lay on the bed, a folded towel partly concealing her face, and what of it he could see was white as the pillow. But when he had nearly reached the bed she heard him and lifted her head, with a wild look. In that action the folded towel, which had been wrung out in water, fell from her face. There was a bruise on her left cheek where she had been struck savagely; blood still oozed a little from it. Her right eye was swelling and turning black from another blow. Her hair was disheveled, but that might have been from the towel and pillow. On either side of her white throat were long, purpling marks, where undoubtedly she had been choked hard. As Danforth saw her, another face arose upon his mind—a sweet face, too, with soft, disordered hair above it; bruised by savage blows, brute marks of fingers on the white throat.

As Edith raised herself, with that wild look, a shudder ran through her body; then she recognized Danforth. Her hurt face puckered and she gave a weak, plaintive cry:

"Dan? Why did you come in? Go away, Dan. I can't talk now. . . . I'm too hurt. Go away. I'll talk by and by."

The weak, plaintive voice wrung his heart in pure sympathy.

"What's happened to you, Edith?" he asked.

She stared blankly at him an instant, as though he should have known what had happened; then dropped back on the pillow and moaned: "I fell and hurt myself. Go away, Dan—please. I can't talk."

He felt it would be mere brutality to stay after that, and apparently she was not in a condition of any danger. So he withdrew by the way he had come, through the dressing room to the bedroom now assigned to her husband. There he sat down on the arm of a chair for two or three minutes, trying to think, although the stuff that was in his mind didn't yield itself to thinking very well. Leaving the bedroom then, he crossed the hall and entered Ted's room without bothering to knock. No man who could have seen his mind would have cared to stand in his way.

But Ted's room was empty. The distinguished traveling bag stood on the floor, where its owner had dropped it. A light-colored flannel coat lay in a heap on a chair, where it had evidently been tossed. It was the coat Ted had been wearing when Danforth saw him in the hall five minutes before. Danforth picked it up. A sleeve and shoulder were dabbed with blood.

But its owner couldn't be far away. With that idea Danforth started down the stairs. The hall down there was empty. He walked over to the living room door, glanced in, and all the arrows in the hunter's quiver struck him at once.

Ted Pennell, in light trousers and a darker coat, which he had evidently put on in a hurry after discarding the blood-stained garment, sat in a big armchair, humped over, his elbows on his knees, his head bowed. And Peggy was sitting on the arm of the chair, her arms resting lightly over his bowed shoulders, comforting him.

Naturally, Peggy saw Danforth first and at once got up from the arm of the chair, advancing to meet him—a slim figure in a brown traveling suit, with a little three-cornered brown straw hat on its shiny head. The sweet image of her which haunted Danforth's mind would have had subtly to take on some age and care in order to correspond exactly with this advancing figure, as though in the few days since he had seen her she had some way left off being a girl and become a woman. She was smiling at him, holding out her hand—not the bubbling smile, like a burst of bird song—for there was some age and care in it; but it was not less sweet for that.

"Hello, Dan!" she said, in a quiet note.

As his hand closed over hers all that was most dear and fragrant in the old image seemed there; he thought it impossible that anything could have happened.

"Hello, Peggy!" he rumbled, noticing that she didn't offer to kiss him this time, as she usually did when they met after an absence, but there was no other sign of reserve or withdrawal from him. It seemed to him that the omission was not because he had fallen to a lower place in her regard, but because she was occupied with weightier things and forgot it. But he didn't wish weightier things than himself to occupy her mind.

She murmured to him, in a half-whisper: "I don't know what's the matter with Ted. . . . Upset; nervous, I suppose."

Ted was looking at them then and Danforth observed that the young man's eyes were somewhat dim, as though he had been shedding tears. Apparently he had come down from Edith Hilton's room to Peggy to blubber and be comforted.

For once Peggy was tremendously in the way and Danforth could say very little. Something was choking him and bursting his throat; he knew that his hands were trembling slightly. There was something that he yearned, unspeakably, to settle immediately. Peggy was in the way, and now that she had come up to him and he had one full look at her he took care to keep his eyes averted from her.

"My father is up in his study," he said. "We'll go up there."

And Ted immediately sprang up, saying: "That's exactly what I want!"

Danforth ignored that impudence and silently led the way up the stairs. Peggy moved beside him and he was acutely aware of her, as though the perfume of her hair filled his nostrils. . . . . Had anything happened?

But in one way it was immaterial whether anything had happened or not. A little while before he had said to his father that if Ted and Peggy were married he would help shield her from knowledge of the grave at Stony Cove. But that was before he had seen Edith Hilton. Now his feelings were quite different. Married or not, it should all come out. Marriages could be set aside. So resolved, he opened the door to his father's den.

Turning in his chair, the Judge saw them enter. One of them, for the moment, was his enemy, against whom he had been plotting as he sat in there alone. At sight of the other two a furrow appeared in his brow, for the first thought was that the thing which he feared in respect of them had happened. He gave them not even a nod, therefore, but sat still, frowning, the stubborn hair thrust up over his forehead, his brown face deeply carved, like a grim old chief sitting in judgment. It was Danforth who placed a chair for Peggy, and Ted who spoke first, looking the Judge hardily in the eye.

"Judge, Peggy tells me something or other happened here about that girl Katey. She says somebody saw Katey lying insensible in the laundry after she was supposed to have left the house for good, and next day a girl was buried up by Stony Cove on the strength of a death certificate signed by Dr. McKeon, and the next day I disappeared without saying anything to anybody, and it might look as though I had a hand in Kafey's disappearance and you'd covered it up for me, and I'd skipped out. When she told me, I proposed to go straight to the police, or Sheriff, or Coroner, or whoever would be the right man, and come here afterwards. But Peggy thought I ought to come here first. So I'm here and I want to have it out with you now."

His tone was not defiant, although it sounded bluntly uncompromising. But Judge Crane had heard many a man bluff and was not particularly impressed.

"You gave me your word that you'd stay down there in New Jersey until I sent for you. Why didn't you do it?" he asked.

That obviously confused Ted a bit, for to answer he had to blame the woman. So he said:

"When I heard Peggy was in New York I wanted to see her."

As though seeking the truth where the truth might be found, Judge Crane turned to her, saying, kindly:

"Tell me what's happened since you left here, Peggy—and why you left." He wanted to know that first, for, unlike his son, he had not said, "Married or not!"

"Ted wrote me a letter," she replied, simply. "I read it a good many times. I've known Ted a long time, you know. When I read it over, Judge, it seemed to me it wasn't possible that he could have done anything like that—what those circumstances pointed to. I felt it must be all wrong some way; there must be some explanation. I got a letter from a girl in the same mail—you know Nell Wheaton? She complained about having to stay in New York until the first of the month." She hesitated a moment, in a little confusion. "You see, I'd had a letter the day before from Alice Cotter asking me if I couldn't come there for a few days. I really don't know why I told mother I was going to Cotter's instead of to Nell Wheaton. . . . But it's no use explaining things to mother, ever. She might think it odd that I'd go to the city this weather, and I didn't want her to ask any questions. I just said I was going to the Cotters; but I went on to New York and telephoned Ted over in New Jersey. He came to see me and I told him. He insisted on coming back here at once. I thought he ought to, too. I met him at the station in New York at 6:30 this morning. We took the earliest train."

"You saw him at Nell Wheaton's last evening," the Judge suggested.

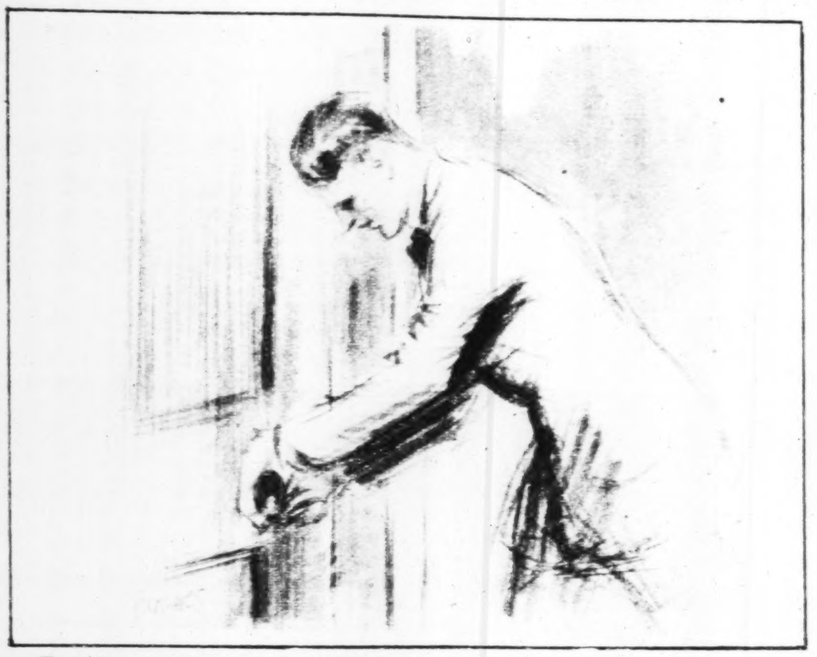
"Yesterday afternoon," she corrected. "He had to go back to New Jersey to pack up his things."

So evidently what he had feared had not happened. They weren't married. With a grim satisfaction, Judge Crane prepared for the alternate course of action.

"He says you sent him down there, Judge," Peggy added. It was not exactly an accusation, but it required an explanation.

"I sent him down there because he asked me to," said the Judge, grimly.

"Well, that's true enough," Ted admitted. "I wanted to get away. . . . Peggy was sore at me. . . . I was awfully dissatisfied. I wanted to go away somewhere for a while." The young man took an instant to get his story firmly in hand, and resumed resolutely: "I told Peggy and I'll tell you that there's one point in this thing I can't explain now. I said to her the day I left here that I didn't see Katey at all the day she disappeared. And Peggy says I did see her and had her in my car with me. I don't dispute her. We'll just have to let that stand as it is. You can say I lied about it if you want to. But aside from that one point the rest of this Katey business is all nonsense. Katey's no more killed than I am. I'll bet my head she's in tip-top health right now and I could find her in a few hours if I wanted to."



Ted locked the door, tried it to make sure it was fast, then picked up his bag and went to his room.

"Where?" the Judge demanded.

But Ted avoided that question, saying: "It seems there was a girl buried up at Stony Cove and somebody thinks it's Katey. The way to settle that is to look at the girl. It can be arranged through the police or Sheriff or somebody. I remember a case only a few weeks ago, probably you read it in the newspapers, where a man was dug up to identify him. That girl up there is no more Katey than I am. If you have any doubt about it the quickest way to settle it is to get the Sheriff. I'll go to him right now, if you say so."

That impudence was hard to bear. The Judge struck back:

"That girl up at Stony Cove is Katey. She was killed in this house—in your bedroom with your revolver. You killed her yourself and tried to hide the body!"

For a moment Ted only gaped at him and then muttered: "You're crazy!"

"I'm not crazy," said the Judge. "I've had some experience with courts and juries. You talk about betting your head. I'll bet my head I can convict you on the evidence I've got now. Katey is dead. I've seen her dead body with my own eyes. She was killed in your bedroom, with your revolver. I know it as well as I know that I'm sitting here."

Ted was still gaping as these asseverations sunk into his mind, and he declared, in a way that sounded fairly foolish, even to himself:

"Judge, I don't know any more about it than the man in the moon."

With that he ran his fingers through his hair and in the dead silence stared from Judge Crane to Danforth and from Danforth to pale, stairy-eyed, trembling Peggy. Then he leapt from his chair and seized the telephone on the table.

They heard him exclaim to the operator: "Give me the Sheriff's office. I don't know the number, but I want the Sheriff's office, quick!"

But at that Judge Crane sprang up, his face in a deep scowl, putting forth a menacing hand, and cried: "Wait!" He took a step nearer, leaned over and put the outstretched hand on the telephone which Ted was holding. "Give me that telephone!" he commanded. Ted still held the instrument and Danforth stood up significantly. Peggy's lips parted, but no sound came; her hands clasped in her lap. A struggle seemed imminent. Ted then released the instrument. A moment later Judge Crane spoke into it:

"What number is this? . . . That's the wrong number. Central made a mistake." He put the telephone back on the table—his side of the table, however—and resumed his seat; but it was evident that his temper was still agitated by the clash that had occurred. There was a rough and aggressive edge in his voice as he said:

"If you were the only person concerned, I'd be as ready to call the Sheriff as you are. But you're not the only person. I've taken some steps in this business myself. I did it to protect my wife. She can't stand such a shock as that. She ain't going to have to stand it. I helped cover this thing up for her sake. It's going to stay covered up for her sake."

The ailing woman came into Ted's mind and daunted him, for he, too, felt that she should not have to bear such a shock. He cried to the Judge:

"You tie my hands and strike me in the face! You accuse me of murder and won't let me go to the Sheriff. I had no more to do with Katey's disappearance than the man in the moon!" Angrily he blurted: "I don't believe she's dead!"

Judge Crane, so to speak, was resuming his judicial robe. Grimly he replied: "Let's see, now, if we can't try this case just among ourselves. Suppose you sit down."

Ted obeyed him; they had the feeling of a court solemnly convening.

"To begin with," said the Judge, "Katey is dead—I saw her dead body myself. She was killed in your bedroom—or, rather, in the dressing room off your bedroom. She had been shot through the heart with your revolver. The revolver was beside her. That's absolutely sure—beyond any question." He spoke with an aggressive deliberateness, driving the words in, his eyes holding Ted's.

"She had been attacked before she was shot—beaten and choked, her hair torn down. The marks were on her face and on her throat, where she'd been struck and choked."

Ted gave a gasp—"Oh!" and a look of comprehension swiftly dawned in his eyes. "Beaten and choked?" he cried.

"Beaten and choked," the Judge repeated.

Excitement shone in Ted's face. He sprang up crying: "Good Lord! I know, then—I know!"

But he did not finish the sentence. Instead he started pacing eccentrically across the room, his lips working together. "Good Lord! I know," he exclaimed again, but again he did not finish the sentence. Instead, having reached the other wall, he turned excitedly and paced back.

Judge Crane, Danforth and Peggy waited tensely for a further disclosure. But Ted seemed to have no further disclosure to make. He ceased his eccentric pacing for a moment and gave himself up to thought, compressing his lips hard. Then he turned to the Judge like a man saying a final word:

"Judge, we'll just have to let it rest for the present. It will all come out. It's bound to, but just now I can't say anything more. For the present we'll just have to let it rest."

As soon as he had spoken he was aware that this was a lame enough conclusion—after his fine heroice to Peggy to the effect that he would return at once to Overlook and clear the whole matter up in half an hour, and after his other heroics of seizing the telephone and demanding an immediate investigation—a very lame conclusion; he felt that the moment after he had spoken.

Looking at Judge Crane, he read in the old man's face stony disbelief. Looking at Danforth, he read something still more damning. They had already convicted him, and for the moment he could say no more; there was another face in his memory which forbade it. But in a way Judge Crane and Danforth hardly mattered. The true and final court lay elsewhere. In a deep agitation he turned to it—taking three steps across the room and falling on his knees beside Peggy's chair.

He put his arms around her waist and gave his case to her, with a cry:

"Peggy! My God! You don't think I killed poor

Your Apartment and Your Garden

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR.

Well, spring is here, as they say, and in spring a young man's fancy is supposed to turn to thoughts of love, but I guess they's a lot of people that is thinking about their garden and wondering what to raise and etc., and they's plenty of books that tells you what to grow if you got a big farm or a couple of acres, but they ain't no books where a person can learn about gardening if you only got a little piece of property, so maybe some of my admirers would like me to write a few idears about a garden for people that lives in a apartment or a hotel.

Well the 1st thing for the apt. or hotel gardener to do is get some dirt and one way is to tell all your friends not to use the door mat when they come in but wait till you can scrape them off, but in order to be sure of the right kind of dirt, why its best to wait till some day when its been raining and then go somewheres where they's some rich soil and lay down and roll over and then come home and get dry and brush yourself off in whatever size box you want to have your garden.

A cigar box makes a pretty fair garden for a family of 2 though a humidor is still better yet as it keeps in the moisture. Big familys needs more space and they's no better natural site for a garden than a bath tub a specially if you got a shower attachment so as you can make the plants think it's raining.

So when her dad kicked she planted a garden of daisies, which won't tell.

When a person is going to plant their garden in a cigar box, what you plant depends on whether you want flowers or vegetables and what kind of cigars they was in the box. When planting vegetables in a limited space like this the main idear is to plant a whole lot of different kinds so as they will be a few that both the husband and wife likes. For inst. they wouldn't be no sense in planting a whole bed of catnip when the husband didn't like it even if it was the wife's favorite greens.

Some people don't like onions, but if you are going to plant any be sure and plant two, as it's generally always only one person eating them that makes it disagreeable.

Another thing in a small box garden, the small size vegetables that don't take up much room is the ones to plant. A pretty good combination for a family of two is 2 onions, 2 shoestring potatoes, 2 noodles and say some broom straw.

If the garden is planted in the bath tub, however, a person has got to be careful to pick out vegetables like punkins, squash, mellons, baked potatoes, gourds and etc. that won't run out if the kiddies pulls the stopper.

But it's in the apt. flower garden that a person should ought to think twice before they sow. If you got 5 or 6 acres you don't half to pick and choose, but a box garden can't handle more than 1 or 2 kinds at least. Well, pretty near every flower has got a meaning and the best way to do is to try and find a kind that when a outsider seen it, they would think of you. Like for inst. the violet is suppose to be for modesty, and they tell me that you go in most of the moveing pitcher stars' houses and you will find cigar boxes, cuspidors and etc. full of violets.

Then they's also people that grows the kind of flowers that means something amongst themselfs, like for inst. they's a man that lives on Riverside Drive in N. Y. city and his wife has got every ash tray in the apt. planted with irises because his eyes was poked out in the war.

Then they's another couple where the wife use to go around in her bear ft. all the wile and her husband got sick of it and kept bawling her out but she always told him she couldn't remember to put on her slippers. So he happened to be reading in Hamlet where Ophelia says that pansys is for remembrance, so he planted a whole lot of pansys, but his wife kept right on walking around in her bear ft. and then he found out that Ophelia was crazy, so he tored up the pansys and planted lady slippers.

And then they's a couple that belongs to a bridge club and the husband is kind of absent minded and several times his wife led him a suit that she knowed he didn't have no more of them, but he would slough off and loose the trick till finely she cured him of the habit by planting a trumpet vine.

And I know a lady that don't grow nothing but wild flowers to remind her husband that he only got home 2 nights last wk. Then they's also a comical lady that had a big fight with her husband she raised some anemones and give him one for Xmas and says:

"Here's anemone from an enemy," and he couldn't help but bust out laughing.

If you plant in a bathtub be careful to pick out vegetables that won't run out if the kiddies pull the stopper.

The prettiest thought I have ran acrost in this line was thought up by some kiddies that every time they came home from school their mother had got married again. So they planted a lot of new popples.

But you got to be careful to not raise some kind of flowers that will get people sore. They was a family in N. Y. for inst. that one night the father went in the parlor and catched his daughter holding hands with a pool shark. So the old man run to the humidor and tore up all the rose bushes.

"Here, what's the matter with you, pa?" says the daughter. "Those is red roses and they stand for love."

"I don't," he says, "not with no pool shark."

So after that she done her spooning when her old man was down to the Loyal Order of Moose and she planted a garden of daisies which won't tell.

STARVATION, FASTING AND HUNGER

"WHAT is the longest possible period of endurance of absolute withdrawal of food?" asks the Journal of the American Medical Association, and proceeds to answer substantially as follows: Many persons are known to have lived without food for periods as long as 50 days without permanent detriment. In his elaborate monograph on inanition, Benedict emphasized the importance of distinguishing between complete abstinence from both food and water, and abstinence from food alone.

Experiments have shown that life cannot be sustained for any considerable period when both food and drink are withheld. Dogs have gone without food for 117 days, one individual exhibiting a loss of 63 per cent in weight. The "professional" fasters have frequently fasted more than 30 days under conditions of strictest scientific control, the latest carefully investigated "subject" being Levanzin, whose performance was under the supervision of the Boston Nutrition Laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington. In 31 days his body weight decreased from 132 pounds to 103 1-2 pounds. This affords an illustration of the extent of tissue loss which an adult may experience without restitution in the course of a month and without untoward outcome.

There are on record many authentic cases of persons who have been deprived of food (but not of drinking water) for 25 days, owing to accidents by which they have been imprisoned or otherwise prevented from securing nutriment. Physicians are familiar with the refusal of insane persons to take food or drink, and Desportes has described a patient who lived two months, consuming only a little water. Prolonged fasting has often been hailed as a religious rite. In addition to all these "categories" of starvation belong the instances of fasting in hynotic sleep.

Almost all cases of prolonged fasting indicate a tendency, before the lapse of many days, to avoid muscular effort. In general, the published accounts indicate a noticeable falling off in strength as the fasts progress. The metabolism reaches a relatively low plane, indicated not only in the decreased energy exchange, but also in the low pulse rate. It is not uncommon for the latter to drop below 50 beats a minute when suitable opportunity for complete rest is afforded.

There are also certain purely chemical changes which prove that the metabolism or assimilation of foreign material into the cells and removal of waste matter from them is proceeding abnormally, having become largely a matter of the breakdown of proteins and fats.

In the popular mind, Carlson writes, prolonged starvation is associated with great pain and distress, despite reliable reports to the contrary from many persons who have undertaken voluntary starvation. Such persons state, almost without exception, that after the first three or four days the sensation of hunger is no longer felt, or at least is not excessively painful or uncomfortable.

It is now well recognized that the feeling of hunger is accompanied by vigorous contractions of the stomach, if not actually dependent on them. Carlson and his collaborators have made careful observations on the continuance of these hunger contractions and found them to be undiminished during at least five days of fasting. Whether they persist a month or longer has never been ascertained. The sensation of hunger in the case of the starving physiologists was not lost during the first five days, though there was apparently some decrease in its intensity. Carlson insists that the absence of the sensation reported by so many fasters is due to a depression of the central nervous system.

That starvation in man will ultimately lead to marked weakening and eventual absence of the sensation of hunger, owing to the depression of the central nervous system and asthenia of the gastric motor mechanism, is not denied. According to Carlson, however, it is inherently improbable that prolonged starvation in the case of healthy individuals should completely abolish the sensation of hunger and appetite while the organism is still in a fair state of integrity. The complete absence of this sensation may be regarded as due to pathologic complications.

As observers agree that the hunger discomfort is greatest during the first few days of starvation, accounts of intense suffering from mere fasting where water is available must be accepted with reserve. Extreme emotion may, of course, alter the aspect of bodily sensations. "Voluntary starvation," says Carlson, "is in no sense a heroic act."

HOW THE GREEKS ARE DISTRIBUTED

WHEN Eleutherios Venizelos, recently Premier of Greece, was asked during the days of his ascendency why he wished territorial expansion for his country, he stated that only 55 per cent of the Grecian population lived in what was now actually Hellenic territory. He claimed the Hellenes numbered eight and one-quarter millions, of whom 4,300,000 lived in the kingdom of Greece, 151,000 in Northern Epirus and Southern Albania, 731,000 in Thrace and the region of Constantinople, 43,000 in Bulgaria, 1,694,000 in Asia Minor, 102,000 in Dodecanese regions, 235,000 in Cyprus, 150,000 in Egypt and the rest of Africa, 450,000 in North and South America and 400,000 in Southern Russia.

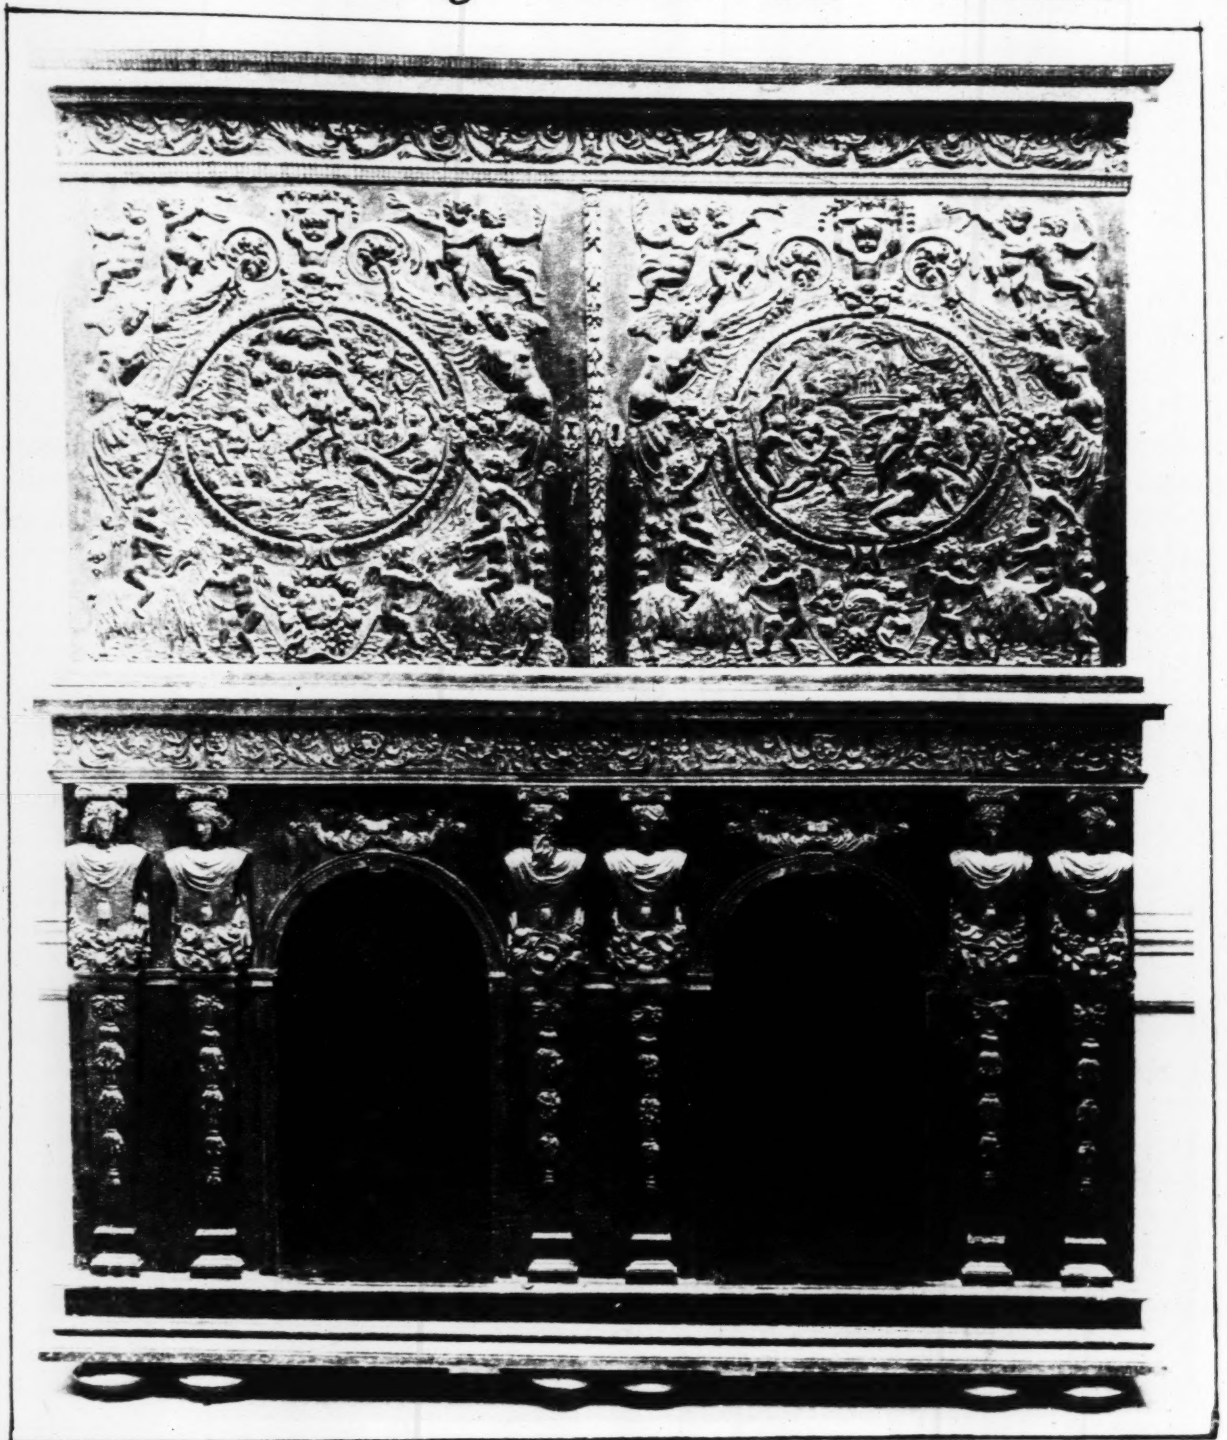
City Art Museum Secures Cabinet Which Conjures up Visions of Seventeenth-Century France and Richelieu

Remarkable specimen of intricate carving in ebony, once belonging to the famous Chabriere-Arles collection of Paris, is a notable example of the art of that transitional period in history of the country :: :: ::



Ebony cabinet of the period of Louis XIII now in the possession of the City Art Museum.

THE City Art Museum has recently acquired, through the generosity of an anonymous donor, an ebony cabinet of French workmanship, of the period of Louis XIII (1610-1643), whose reign was made notable by the accomplishments of his chief Minister, Cardinal Richelieu. The cabinet is of imposing proportions, being 7 feet 5 inches high by 6 feet 6 inches wide; and practically the entire surface is richly carved, both on the interior and the exterior. The piece was formerly in the famous Chabriere-Arles collection in Paris. It was exhibited by M. Charbriere-Arles at the Exposition Retrospective de Lyon in 1877, and is illustrated in Giraud's volume dealing with the exposition.

As a memorial of the artistic taste and the customs of the turbulent period when France was composing her religious dissensions and assuming a leading place among European nations under the able direction of Richelieu, the cabinet is a most valuable addition to the museum's collection. The use of somber-hued ebony wood, unrelieved by a single touch of color, was one of the whimsical tastes of the time. Though furniture constructed entirely of this hard, close-grained tropical wood was first made in Flanders, its employment in France became very popular during the first half of the seventeenth century. France had been passing through a dark and depressing period of religious wars, which reached a climax in the bloody massacre of St. Bartholomew's Day (1572); and certain writers profess to see in the use of ebony wood, with its funereal color, another manifestation of the morbid style of the time, which caused death's heads and other devices usually associated with death to become popular decorative motives.

The cabinet presented to the museum is of the conventional form, consisting of a stand of architectural design, upon which is placed a chest, opening at the front with two folding doors and containing numerous cleverly concealed secret drawers and compartments, echoes of the uncertainties and hazards of property rights in France 300 years ago.

The stand or underbase consists of a foundation borne on six very flattened balls, above which rise three pairs of carytids in the form of terminal figures, supporting on their heads an ornamented frieze. This frieze appears to be only a band decorated with conveniently arranged branches and grimacing masks. It is only after the closest scrutiny that one discovers that these decorations really mask the fronts of five concealed drawers which can be opened from beneath by inserting the hand through the large arched openings in the base.

The front of the body of the cabinet is inclosed by two large folding doors, in the centers of which are carved compositions dealing with events in classical mythology. That upon the right presents the exposure of the nymph Callisto before Diana, as described in Book II of the Metamorphosis of Ovid. This was a stock subject with artists of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, the version given upon the cabinet being almost an exact reproduction of one of the compositions of Titian. The subject of the medallion upon the left door has not been positively determined. Flanking these two mythological compositions are winged females, whose gracefully disposed bodies terminate in foliated scrolls.

The middle of the lower part of each door is occupied by a cluster of fruits and the corners are decorated with cupids and goats engaged in mimic Bacchic revels. Above the large central medallion, each door is ornamented by a cupid carrying a basket of flowers; two others frolic on each side among leafy scrolls. The upper frieze, supporting a cornice of projecting moldings, is carved with conventionally arranged branches among which cupids disport. This type of decoration was introduced into French art during the reign of Louis XIII and typical examples of its use for friezes, in an arrangement similar to that upon the museum's cabinet, may be seen in the Palace of Fontainebleau and in the chamber of Marie de Medici in the Luxembourg Palace.

The interior of the cabinet is elaborate and interesting in construction. When the two outer doors are opened, a second pair of smaller doors is disclosed, each decorated with a carved figure. Flanking these inner doors are numerous drawers having carved fronts framed in engine-turned molding like that upon the cornice. Gilded brass ornaments are freely used to enrich the carving of the interior. The opening of the inner doors reveals the interior of a miniature temple, executed in marqueterie of different colors. The center of the temple is occupied by a small statuette of a boy and a girl, carved from ivory. On either side are cleverly arranged mirrors which give the illusion of corridors extending indefinitely to the right and left. In this way the mirrors serve to mask in a most deceptive fashion a whole series of secret compartments, wherein, no doubt, the original owner was wont to conceal his jewels and money in the days when Huguenot and Catholic each regarded the goods of the other as legitimate spoil.

The carved decorations with which the cabinet is so lavishly ornamented throughout are executed with extreme care and the surface of the hard, close-grained ebony wood is everywhere highly polished. This finished technique and the deep black tone of the wood give the piece an effect of remarkable richness. This extreme richness would make the cabinet appear altogether out of place in the average well-furnished room of the present day; but in the seventeenth century interiors were decorated in a far more sumptuous style, and with a setting of elaborate carvings and brilliant tapestries, the effect was quite different.

The process of carving in ebony was taught to the French by the furniture makers of Holland. Carefully chosen workmen were sent to that country by Henry IV (1569-1610) to study the process of carving ebony and upon their return were given quarters in the Louvre and called menuisiers en ebene, the origin of the term ebenistes, now applied to makers of furniture in general.

The museum's cabinet belongs to a transitional period in French decorative art, when the robust designs current in the sixteenth century were becoming more refined and a finish and elegance was being introduced which was soon to result in the style to which Louis XIV has given his name. These changes are very well illustrated in the cabinet. The human forms introduced into the design—the caryatids, cupids and nymphs—have little of the robust virility which marked the grotesque satyrs and fauns upon the pieces designed by Sambin and Du Cerceau during the preceding century. The aim of the carvers of the period was to please by suave contours and graceful drawing rather than by strength or vigor.

The name of the donor who generously presented this important example of early furniture to the St. Louis Museum is withheld at his own request, this being the only condition attached to the gift.

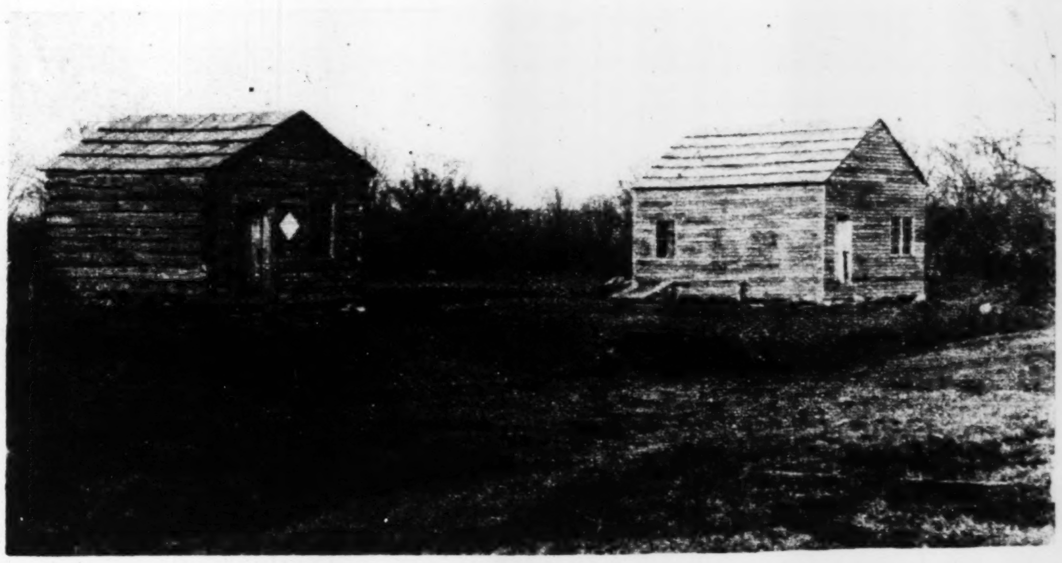
Building a Memorial Village in the past, but which vary a good deal as to the relative positions of buildings in Old Salem, a painstaking survey was made.

Another important discovery was the site of the old well known to have stood in the vicinity of the Rutledge Tavern and from which nearly all the inhabitants of New Salem used to draw water. Rubbish and debris were cleared away from the top and the rebuilders of Salem were preparing to install an old-fashioned well sweep when, in cleaning out the well shaft, the remains of an ancient windlass and bucket were found.

These will be put on display in the museum, and a modern pump enables present-day visitors to taste the pure, sweet water of which the well has a plentiful supply, although it must have been dug almost one hundred years ago.



Two of the new structures which replace vanished buildings on their ancient sites at Old Salem: (left) the Hill & McNeil store; (right) the Berry & Lincoln store.

Following the discovery of the old well, the Committee on Sites took "Aunt Louisa" Clary of Concord out to Salem Hill. Her parents moved to the village in 1840, when she was 6 years old, and the family lived there for two years. Using the well as a guide, she located for the committee the site of the Rutledge Tavern and then the site of Dr. John Allen's house, which later her family had occupied.

Mrs. Clary also located several other buildings, and informed the committee that the two buildings east of Samuel Hill's residence and store (still there in 1840 and called "Hill's Tavern") had been removed and left deep cellars, into one of which she fell when a child and broke her collar bone. One of these two buildings was the store conducted by Hill and John McNeil, and the second was the store conducted by Lincoln and William F. Berry, under the name of Berry & Lincoln, after Lincoln had left Offut's employ, served as a volunteer in the Black Hawk War and come back to New Salem, looking for a chance to earn his living.

John McNeil, whose real name was John McNamar, said he had come West to make his fortune and had changed his name to avoid being followed or annoyed by other members of his family He and Ann Rutledge were betrothed when Lincoln first came to New Salem. McNeil finally sold out his interests in New Salem, explained to Ann about his change of name and said he was going to New York and bring back his parents. But he was gone so long, and without writing to Ann, that her family and friends finally persuaded her he had proved false.

After she had promised to marry Lincoln, word came that McNamar was on his way back to Springfield with his mother and sisters. Worried by conscientious fears that she had not treated McNamar justly, Ann soon afterwards was taken ill and died of a fever. The effect of her death upon Lincoln was so terrible that for months his friends in New Salem feared for his reason.

Investigation of the sites proved that buildings had stood where indicated by Mrs. Clary. Incidentally, it upset a local tradition that an old boarded log cabin standing behind the gunsmith's shop in Petersburg was the actual Berry & Lincoln store, moved from New Salem many years before. But this old structure is only 12 by 18 feet, while excavation of the cellar on the original site, uncovering the stone foundation of one whole side and several feet of it at each corner, proved that the Berry & Lincoln store really was 20 feet square.

Other survivors of the early days have visited Salem Hill with the Committee on Sites, to reveal new facts about the vanished village or to corroborate the statements of others or of tradition. The committee now feel that each site has been accurately located, and appropriate markers have been set up where buildings are still to be erected. One of them, for example, reads: "Henry Onstott—Second Residence and Cooper Shop—Where Lincoln Studied at Night by Light from the Cooper's Shavings."

But the people who are rearing again the long-vanished walls and roofs of New Salem will not stop with that. Their next step will be to furnish all the cabins, residences and stores alike, in the style of the '30s. The twofold object of the Old Salem Lincoln League was thus explained by Reep:

"First, we want to reproduce exactly the little frontier town in which Lincoln, the boy, developed into Lincoln, the man, so that future generations may see the long, straggling village where he spent six important years of his life. Secondly, we want to preserve for the young people of the future a picture of how their forefathers lived. Already, the recollection of life in the primitive '30s is dim. But the resurrected Salem will preserve the lesson of those pioneer days and keep green the memory of those heroic men and women."

What could do so in a more graphic way than the village as it will appear when completed, extending nearly half a mile along either side of a road which was the "Main Street" of Salem, every house built of roughly squared logs or logs which had merely been "barked," with clapboard roofs, floors of rough lumber and open fireplaces built of stone or crude brick? Only one structure, that finally occupied by the Berry & Lincoln store, was boarded on the outside over the logs.

Reep told of another difficulty which, owing to the enthusiasm of certain loyal workers, has arisen over the general treatment of the site.

"We are struggling now, and I suppose always will have to struggle, against plans to beautify the old site," he said. "But it should not be prettified with fine roads or flower gardens or well-kept lawns. It should be kept strictly within the original plan to reproduce Salem Village. This means that it must be as simple and bare of ornament as the original town was. Otherwise, it would not be a reproduction of the village which Lincoln knew."

Which explains why the splendid new museum nearing completion there under an appropriation of $30,000 has been shouldered off to one side of the undulating hill top, so as not to spoil the picture. Built of native stone, with a ground floor 54 by 40 feet and a main auditorium 54 by 28 feet (the peak of the roof 26 feet from the auditorium floor), the building has quarters for a custodian on the ground floor, also a heating plant and public conveniences, while the next floor has a big veranda and the auditorium. From the village only this second floor is visible, the ground floor being below the brow of the hill, so that the museum does not tower unpleasantly above the cluster of little log cabins.

In this museum will be displayed early relics, of which the Old Salem Lincoln League already has a large collection and the promise of many more. One item is the Rutledge family Bible, and another the identical augur which Lincoln used to bore a hole in the bow of a flatboat when it hung up on the dam at New Salem, began to fill with water and was in danger of sinking.

The boat was unloaded and Lincoln, having first whittled a plug of the same size as the augur, bored a hole in the bow, while other young men raised the stern. The water thus running out and lightening the boat, it went over the dam with a splash, when Lincoln stuck in the plug and the cargo thereupon was loaded in the boat again and it continued down the Sangamon River.

Probably no section of the country is more thoroughly saturated with Lincoln stories and the lore of his early days, at least, than Petersburg and vicinity. Many of the prominent people there are descendants of pioneer families who knew Lincoln personally, and different families have their favorite anecdotes about him.

Most of the older people, by the way, pronounce his name as though it were spelled "Linkern," and there is a tendency also to shorten Abraham into

"Abram." But the early days are very real to Petersburg, a prosperous town of 3000 persons. For example, John H. Clary, the Mayor, is a grandson of "Jack" Clary, who gave his name to Clary's Grove, in 1819, and "Jack's" brother, William, had a store at Salem, near the one where Lincoln worked for Offut. Also, Mayor Clary's wife was Catherine Rutledge, whose father was McGrady Rutledge, a first cousin of Ann Rutledge.

Other married Rutledges living at Petersburg, daughters of McGrady, are Mrs. Mary R. Moore, a widow; Mrs. Houghton (Emma L. Rutledge) and Mrs. Andrew Park (Harriet Rutledge). McGrady Rutledge was the son of William, who was the brother of James Rutledge, Ann's father.

The 50 acres comprising the site of Salem were conveyed in trust a dozen years ago to the Old Salem Chautauqua. Following a pageant on Salem Hill two years ago, the property was accepted by the State and its official name now is Old Salem State Park. State appropriations will pay for maintenance of the park and museum, but the Old Salem Lincoln League will continue its work of resurrecting the cabins and building roads. Some $5000 already has been expended by the league and county authorities, and $20,000 is estimated as the total necessary.

Plans also are afoot to purchase Oakland Cemetery, which adjoins New Salem, and add it to the park. Many of the old pioneers are buried there, and the body of Ann Rutledge, first buried at Concord Cemetery in 1835, was exhumed some 25 years ago and reburied at Oakland Cemetery. The proposed addition to the Old Salem State Park will comprise about 20 acres.

The name of the town, incidentally, was not Old Salem, but New Salem, and it was as New Salem that Abraham Lincoln and his fellow townsmen knew the place. Therefore, a strong demand came from certain quarters that the ancient and correct name be given to the replica of the vanished village. But nowadays there is another New Salem, Ill., in Pike County, and a town of Salem in Marion County. To prevent confusion, it was finally agreed to call the resurrected village Old Salem. A sign upon one road leading up to the site reads:

TOP OF HILL
SITE OF OLD (NEW) SALEM
LINCOLN'S EARLY HOME

William J. Lindstrom, Assistant State Architect, drew the plans for the museum building, basing his design upon an old residence at Ste. Genevieve, Mo. Because of the high prices of materials and the necessity for keeping within the appropriation, the State of Illinois decided to eliminate all profits from the project by doing the construction work itself. The construction was supervised by C. E. Hadsell, Superintendent of Public Works.

The temporary caretaker is Winfield S. Bale, a grandson of Abraham Bale, one of the earliest settlers at New Salem, who purchased Hill's carding machine and storehouse for wool. Bale is also descended from one of the Trent brothers, who lived in the village during Lincoln's time there.

An interesting item already to be seen in one of the great open fireplaces in the museum is a pair of andirons which have come down from the earliest days of New Salem. There is no doubt whatever that young Abraham Lincoln often trimmed the blazing fire supported by these andirons. They have been presented to the museum by Bale.

Katey! You can't think that of me! You don't, do you?"

Her hands not moving in her lap, she bent her head to kiss his forehead and replied, low and grave:

"No, Ted, I can't think that; but you see it must be explained."

"Of course, it must be explained," he replied. "It will be explained. I know—but you'll give me a little time?"

"Yes," she said.

Then he stood up, looking at the Judge and Danforth as though he had somehow been vindicated, as he said:

"That's all, then. I need a little time. But if you want me I'll be right around here." With that he walked out of the room.

Which was bitter to Danforth Crane beyond anything he had imagined. Peggy had heard his father bluntly accuse Ted of murder. She had heard Ted's poor bluff that he knew Katey was alive, and had seen it collapse. She had seen this last comedy of declaring, "I know," and then stopping short. And, after all, at the end, he had held her in his arms and she had said she believed him.

Nothing whatever would serve, it seemed. Although she herself saw him pull the trigger, yet when he whistled she would go to him; he knew the tune. That was bitterer to Danforth than anything he had imagined. Yet, after all, she didn't really know. She didn't really understand; she was only a girl—she must know the whole truth for her own sake.

Peggy sat still a moment after Ted had left the room, musing. Then she raised her eyes to Danforth's face and said, low and sweet, as an audible continuation of the musing: "It's impossible he could have done it, Dan." With that she got up to leave the room, also, and some way as she arose a yet keener sense of her grace penetrated Danforth. For just an instant he found his throat too dry and tight for speech. Then, rising, he said: "Wait, Peg," and stepped toward her.

She waited, dutifully, and felt the emotional stir in him, before he spoke, huskily:

"You know my father and I love you very much."

That struck true on her heart, and she replied: "Why, of course, Dan! And I love you—both of you!"

A fond sense of what he had been to her all her life—a sure rock of refuge, whether her trouble was a broken doll or a murdered maid—moved her, and she put her hands on his thick arms, looking up at him, saying: "Good old Dan!"

"I want you to sit down and listen a minute," he said, in that oddly thickened voice.

She obeyed that, too. He lifted a chair over to sit close to her, taking her hand and holding her eyes with his.

"You know, Peggy, there's now and then a man with a bad spot in his brain. I used to know a man like that myself. I thought he was a very good sort—as good a man, say, and as normal as I was myself. Then presently I found out what he'd been doing in secret. It's a rotten subject, dear girl—but it seems necessary to tell you. A man of that kind, no doubt, ought to be pitied and put in a hospital for treatment. But you never can tell what they'll do. Probably they can't tell themselves. As long as they're at large they've got to be looked out for.

"You've heard my father say Ted killed Katey. He knows. We'll have to let that be for the present. But I know something else, Peggy, something else quite as bad as that. Ted can't be trusted. If any harm came to you I wouldn't know what to do. Until this business is cleared up, I want you to promise me—promise me solemnly—that you won't go anywhere alone with Ted. He can't be trusted; for today, at any rate, you must promise."

She comprehended, incredulously, what he had meant by a man with a rotten spot in his brain. He had meant Ted was such a man and could not be trusted. He had said he knew something besides the affair of Katey. They called such men degenerate.

She bent her head and dropped forward in the chair, making a little exclamation: "Oh, Dan—Oh, Dan!"—breathless and pulseless as though he had beaten the life out of her with his big fists until she could just gasp; but she clung to his hand.

"God knows I'm sorry to hurt you," he said, "but I'm horribly afraid, Peggy—you'll know why later. I'm horribly afraid. Give me the promise."

Her head bent, and, clinging to his hand, she struggled a moment and then murmured: "I promise." That was like condemning Ted, too; but at the moment she knew not what else to do. Having promised, she got up quickly and glided from the room, with a feeling that the sky had fallen on her.

When the door closed behind her, Danforth drew a heavy hand across his brow and shut himself up for a long moment. Turning to his father, then, he gave an explanation:

"This case puzzled me a bit up to today, father. I was satisfied the girl was killed in a scuffle. I could imagine easily enough how they might have come to be scuffling. But the choking and beating—usually white men, our breed of white men, don't do that; at least not when they're sober. That puzzled me a bit.

"You saw in here how his mind acted; first declaring he knew Katey was all right and he could find her in an hour and then as good as saying he knew who killed her, but couldn't tell. Then his sudden bluff of calling the Sheriff. If you look the case over, father, you'll probably see that it's a poor article of mind—cunning, in a way, but a poor article. I understand it now."

He observed the Judge a moment and added, lower: "The fellow's a degenerate. He was choking and beating Edith Hilton in her room half an hour ago."

"My God!" the Judge gasped.

"A fact, father," Danforth went on. "That happens once in a while, you know—good family and all that don't seem to be a protection. I knew a case myself. We've got that sort of a chap on our hands. So you understand why I made Peggy promise not to go away with him."

"I should say so!" exclaimed the Judge.

"I suppose he ought to be shut up in an asylum," Danforth remarked, "but I suppose that couldn't be done without a trial on this Katey case and conviction."

"No," said the Judge.

"You see, he's got us tied," Danforth went on. "We can't strike him on the Katey case. Probably we can't take up the case of Edith—you know how women usually feel about talking of such an affair. He's got us tied. If he's a mind to just sit and bluff it out, I don't know what we could do."

"Well, I don't," the Judge confessed. "Of course, I didn't suppose we were dealing with a lunatic—a moral lunatic, anyway. If he's a mind to just sit still and bluff it out, I don't see what we can do."

Danforth pondered in silence a moment and then seemed to continue the pondering aloud as he looked blankly at the wall.

"I don't know how another man might feel about it; but all I feel is just something to set my heel on—like a mad dog. I wouldn't give him much more consideration than that."

He looked over at his father. "I saw Katey—choked and beaten and dead. I saw Edith, choked and beaten—the marks on her throat"—he lowered his voice and it shook slightly, but his abrupt speech was like the charge of a bull: "Peggy's not going to make a third to them! That shall never happen—if I have to strangle him with my own hands!"

Judge Crane looked hastily away from his son's face; also he got up in an agitation of his own and began pacing.

"Dan, be careful," he said, earnestly. "I'm an old man—a pretty tough old man, too; but not as tough as I used to be. I know there are limits. You've got to draw the line somewhere. This business of Katey, now—I did it for my wife, and I'd do it again; but it really troubles me a lot. As a man gets older he don't want messes of that kind on his mind."

He stopped his pacing a moment, thoughtfully. "I've had an idea about this Katey business, too. It seemed safe enough, at the time. But we did go and stick the poor little maid under ground without her day in court—no chance to tell her little story and ask for justice. I've had an idea about that—sort of looks like she was getting back at us, you see; and I wouldn't be the one to say she hadn't a right to—I'm a pretty tough old man; but you've got to draw the line somewhere. There are things a white man mustn't do."

He moved toward his son and looked down at him. "Killing a man's one of them, Dan. I know you, son; probably I'm built more or less that reckless way myself. But I tell you, some things won't do. You've got to draw the line."

Danforth at once replied, rationally: "No doubt you're right, father. You must certainly draw the line somewhere. No doubt you're right." But that reasonableness was only on the surface; underneath the lava lay molten.

"We'll try to find the way out of it," the Judge went on. "Probably we can send him to Russia. But you keep yourself in hand, Dan."

"Well, I'll try to, father," Danforth replied, rationally.

Judge Crane regarded him for a moment, felt reassured, and turned to another phase of the subject, for which the juncture seemed propitious:

"As it stands now, I don't see as you could gain anything by keeping that body up there."

"No, I don't see that I could, either," Danforth replied, for he now had a different idea of Ted Pennell.

"I want to get that disposed of," the Judge urged. "We may as well."

"I can see Eastman—Corwainer's man—and hear what he has to suggest," Danforth answered; but he was hardly, properly speaking, thinking about that at all. To him the point had ceased to be important; his mind was really occupied with other things. Nevertheless, perfunctorily, he discussed it with his father for some time, finally saying, rather absently:

"Well, I'll get hold of Eastman and see what he has to say."

With that he left the Judge's study—his mind occupied with the other things.

It had been perhaps 20 or 30 minutes since Peggy left the Judge's study. Danforth walked to the stairs and started down them—the errand to Eastman vaguely in his mind—and when, his hand on the bannister, he had got down far enough to have a clear view of the hall on the main floor, he saw Ted and Peggy there.

Ted had put on a rough jacket over his thin coat, for a high south wind was blowing, so that one who intended to drive needed a wrap, and a cap such as he commonly wore in his machine. Peggy was slipping on a long coat. Both of them had an eager air. Apparently, they were on the point of leaving the house together; presumably, judging by their costumes, on the point of going away together in a car.

So apparently nothing would answer—nothing would save her! Hardly half an hour ago she had turned pale and gasped when he told her Ted was not to be trusted—and why; only half an hour ago she had promised him not to go away with Ted. Yet there she was, hastily putting on a cloak, apparently eager to be off.

Peggy glanced up then and saw Danforth standing on the stairs—saw his glaring face, and at that evidently she remembered, for the motion of her hands and body suddenly ceased, as though, swift as a lightning stroke, she had been frozen in her tracks. Her lips parted.

Then Danforth moved again, going on down the stairs, and as he reached the bottom he saw Ted's long, big-headed yellow car roll up to the west door of the house. Undoubtedly they had been going away together. Nothing would answer! Nothing would make her understand!

Diary of a Dying Trapper

try: "10 below; wind N. W., 40; cloudy." On Sunday he knew the end was near, for after noting that the temperature was still 10 below, that the wind was from the northwest and that it was snowing, he added: "Baked, and a hard time I had of it. I am getting weak fast."

On Monday he wrote that it was 10 below, and "still snowing some." On Tuesday he wrote: "My condition is worse." The entry of Wednesday, April 7, was: "No better yet; just a little weaker." On the same day he wrote another note, which was found lying on the floor near the body, and in which he noted curiously and in detail the progress of his disease. It read:

"I doubt if I will be able to make many more entries in my diary. The disease, which started with pains in my legs, has progressed until now my legs are much above their normal size. Very black, and in some places they have a yellow color. The joints do not seem to be affected; it seems mostly in the cords or muscles. They are considerably drawn up, and as I cannot straighten them I must get about on my toes, with the aid of a couple of sticks and at the expense of much pain. I become easily exhausted, and must rest often.

"I am beginning to feel sore at the edge of the short ribs. The disease is working up. When it reaches the region of the heart, my earthly troubles will be over, and I shall not be sorry."

Rinehart was correct in fearing that he would make few more entries in his diary; in fact, there is only one more. He wrote nothing on Thursday, April 8, but on Friday, the ninth, he scrawled the final words: "No better."

Eight months later two trappers, Charles Dysart and S. P. McClenagham, came upon the shack. They found the door securely fastened from the inside, and battered it down. Upon the bed lay Rinehart's body, with a frying pan, food and tea kettle close at hand. Over the bed a kettle hung by a wire—a device which the trapper had evidently rigged up to enable himself to take a drink without getting out of bed.

Illinois Town's Renewed Youth Recipe

tertainment ending up with a rollicking Virginia reel and a community sing.

Two hours passed with amazing swiftness. If Ponce de Leon or any other chance spectator really wishes to preserve the illusion of youth, he does well to remain on the side lines and defend himself from being forcibly drawn into these games, for once in the vortex of all this merry but nevertheless strenuous movement, he quickly discovers, in shortness of breath and stiffness of joint that he is not as young as he used to be.

After that first relay game, the present observer who rashly became a participant could testify to that. Belleville certainly gave one St. Louis tenderfoot a whirl!

The Wonderful "Gift" of Music Can Now Be Yours---

This New Easy Method Makes Mastery of Any Instrument Amazingly Simple

LEARN IN YOUR OWN HOME

Over 250,000 people have learned to play and sing BY NOTE through this new rapid system. Cost averaging only a few cents a day—nothing if not entirely satisfied. Try it on approval.

"I'D give anything to know how to play!"

You've heard it hundreds of times. And how many times have you expressed this very wish yourself!

How often have you wished that you could sit down at a piano—or take up a violin—or whatever your favorite instrument may be and entertain yourself and your friends with your playing?

And now—at last—your great wish can come true!

No longer must you be invited to social gatherings merely to "fill in."

For now, through my wonderful and easy method, you can quickly learn to play any instrument in your leisure moments at home. With this accomplishment your circle of friends will be doubled. You will always be showered with invitations. You will attain a popularity that you never thought possible. And most gratifying of all, you can experience the great happiness and satisfaction that comes from actually creating music yourself.

No Special Talent Necessary

So many people have thought that in order to play the violin, piano, or any instrument in fact, one must be "gifted" or have some special inborn talent for music. And many have thought that a good singer had to be born with a good voice.

But my new method of learning to sing and play has disproved this theory time and time again.

Whether you have ever seen a sheet of music before, even if you have never sung a note in all your life, by devoting a few pleasant moments each day to my lessons, your progress is sure to amaze both you and your friends. Indeed, numbers of my students had formerly studied under private teachers, yet after several months have given up discouraged. They had not the "gift" they thought. Yet under my method in a few short months they had become accomplished musicians.

Any Instrument Now Easy

My method is simplicity itself. Our instructors, all teachers of national reputation, have eliminated all tiresome exercises—all unnecessary theory. They have brought the principles of music right down to fundamentals. They have made the mastery of any instrument as simple as A B C.

And to this fact, more than anything else, do my thousands of students owe their amazing success.

So practical—so thorough—so easily understood—is this system that even children have within a few months been able to play fairly difficult pieces just through a few moments a day interesting study.

The Evidence!

"Since I've been taking your lessons I've made over $200 with my violin. Your lessons surely are fine."—MELVIN FREELAND, Macopin, N. J.

"When I started with you I knew nothing about the cornet or music, but now I can play almost any piece of music."—KASSON SWAN, Denmark, Col. Co., Nova Scotia.

"I want to extend the heartiest approval of your Piano Course. It has done more for me than years of other lessons."—MOXIE N. LEWIS, 319 Jefferson, Neosho, Missouri.

"The folks at home are delighted to hear me play the organ so well. You have a wonderful system of teaching music."—M. F. ALLARD, Caraquet, N. B.

250,000 Successful Students

Just think! Over 250,000 men, women and children in all parts of the world have learned music through this wonderful method. Your age makes no difference—whether you are seven or seventy—we can teach you how to play. We do not say this because we think we can—we KNOW we can. If over a quarter of a million people have learned through this method there is no reason why you can't.

Hundreds of my former students now have orchestras of their own. Dozens have gone on the vaudeville stage. All, through their accomplishments, have gained greater happiness themselves, and have caused greater happiness in others.

Learn Quickly in Your Own Home

One of the big advantages of my new method is that you learn in the privacy of your own home, where there are no strangers around to embarrass you. No need to pin yourself down to certain hours of study—you practice whenever it is most convenient. No need to cancel engagements "to take a lesson." No need to pay from two to five dollars a lesson to a private teacher. My wonderful Print and Picture lessons remove all these difficulties. Every step is made clear, every point is thoroughly explained, so that no matter what instrument you decide to take up, the study is equally as fascinating. Whether you are a beginner or an advanced pupil, your progress is bound to be rapid, easy and certain.

Don't Risk a Penny

But here is the best part of it. You don't have to risk a single penny to find out. If, after completing our lessons you are not completely satisfied, then you don't have to pay us a single penny. We could never afford to make such a sweeping statement unless we were certain that you could learn to play or sing under our instructions.

Just read on the left what some of our students say about our course. These are by no means exceptions. In our files we have thousands of similar letters from our students. All tell the same story—success, popularity and greater happiness—all through knowing how to play or sing.

And it is largely through the recommendations of thousands of satisfied pupils that I have built up the largest school of music in the world.

Vitally Interesting Booklet

If you like music, if you have ever had the desire to learn, to sing or play—here is the opportunity that you have been waiting for! Our interesting free book explains this remarkable new system in detail. It tells of our students and their great and amazing success, and discloses how you can easily and quickly learn how to play any instrument or improve your voice 100 per cent.

COME ON DOGGIE, EVEN IF I AM DOWN AND OUT I'VE GOT A BIG HEART! COME TO LITTLE JEFF THE GREAT VENTRILOQUIST!
WHAT DO YOU SAY TO DROPPING IN ON MISTER MUTT, DOGGIE?
MUTT'S QUICK LUNCH ROOM
WHAT'LL IT BE, JEFF?
A GLASS OF MILK FOR ME, MUTT!
AND I'LL TAKE A HAM SANDWICH, MUTT!
CHEF!! THERE'S A GUY IN THERE WITH A DOG THAT CAN TALK! ISN'T THAT WONDERFUL?
WELL, I SHOULD SAY SO!
MM! SOME DOG!
MUTT, I'LL HAVE ANOTHER GLASS OF MILK!
AND YOU CAN SLIP ME ANOTHER HAM SANDWICH, MUTT!
LISTEN, JEFF! I'LL GIVE YOU FIFTY BUCKS FOR THAT DOG!
NOTHING DOING! HE'S BEEN MY PAL FOR YEARS AND I WON'T PART WITH HIM! THERE AIN'T ANOTHER DOG LIKE HIM IN THE WORLD!
I ADMIT HE'S AN EXCEPTIONAL DOG! I GOT TO HAVE HIM AND I'LL GIVE YOU ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY DOLLARS SPOT CASH!
WELL, IT BREAKS MY HEART TO SELL HIM BUT I CAN'T RESIST THE OFFER! SLIP ME THE MONEY!
HAM AND EGGS 50¢
REALLY NOW, JEFF, YOU'RE NOT GONNA SELL ME TO MISTER MUTT, ARE YOU?
YES, DOGGIE, MUTT'LL TREAT YOU FINE!
SOME DOG!
DO YOU MEAN TO SAY YOU'RE GONNA PART WITH AN OLD FRIEND LIKE ME FOR A HUNDRED AND FIFTY BERRIES?
SOME DOG!
YES, DOGGIE, THAT'S THE DOPE!
THEN JUST FOR THAT I'LL NEVER SPEAK ANOTHER WORD AS LONG AS I LIVE!
HUH!?
TEE HEE!
